'HOSPITAL' SHIP DISGORGES JAP ARMS AND MEN

Guns for Regiment; 1,562 Fighters

AT AN ALLIED PORT, Southwest Pacific, Aug. 8 [Wednesday]—The seized Jap hospital ship Tachibana Maru, the stinking ship of a traitorous nation, today began yielding up her tons of crates, marked with the red cross of mercy, but containing enough guns to arm a regiment.

The 1,562 Jap soldiers, veterans of the New Guinea campaign, who were being transported by the Tachibana as "patients" when she was intercepted in the East Indies Aug. 3, already have been transferred to an army stockade in a jungle clearing seven miles from the port. They rode from the pier to prison in army trucks.

Removing the cargo is the nauseating job for the eight man prize crew which seized her. The ship reeks indescribably from the filth in which the troops, packed in tighter than sheep in railroad cars, lived.

Fit for Combat

The Tachibana, a pre-war Jap liner and a war time troop transport masquerading as a hospital ship, was brought into port here by an American prize crew from two 7th fleet destroyers.

The ship was seized when a boarding party discovered her cargo, marked with red crosses, contained hundreds of rifles, small arms ammunition, artillery shells, mortars, Jap and German grenades and machine guns. Most of the Japanese soldiers packed into her as "patients" are physically fit for immediate combat.

All except one of the 1,562 "patients" walked without difficulty from the ship. They had left New Guinea in small boats for the Kai Islands, a few hundred miles to the west, in the final months of last year. The Tachibana took them aboard in the Kai Islands on Aug. 1 to take them to Soerabaja, Java.

Bed of Guns

The prize crew broke out in a sweat today when they learned that crates piled three feet deep in a saloon and used as beds by 500 of the Japs, were filled with arms. For three days and nights while being brought to port the big roomful of Japs, equal to half a battalion, lived atop more rifles and guns than they could man.

"We are just now realizing what a powder keg we were sitting on," said Lt. John Hansen, 7235 Merrill av., Chicago, a member of the prize crew.

Ten officers and 70 sailors and marines from the two destroyers had taken turns, four hours on and four off, guarding the Nip "patients" and the Jap crew of 63. The ship's captain, a squatty, bald merchant marine, Yasuda Kigiro, and his 13 officers had been transferred to the destroyers immediately after seizure, together with some of the 62 troop officers.

Seizure Packed with Drama

The story of the seizure of the Tachibana Maru is full of drama. On Aug. 1 a royal Australian air

THEIR SCARS ARE HIDDEN, BUT THEY ARE HEROES, TOO

BY NORMA LEE BROWNING

(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Danville, Ky., Aug. 7—One of the most important but least understood problems this war has produced is the army casualty with an N. P. tag.

The doctors call him neuropsychiatric, or sometimes psychoneurotic. His buddies call him "jump happy," "jungle happy," or "bomb happy," depending upon how and under what circumstances his trouble began.

Many people refer to him simply as "psycho," then proceed to steer clear.

Twofold Job for Doctors

Here at Darnall General hospital, an army "specialized treatment center" for N. P. patients, topnotch army doctors have tackled the difficult twofold job of bringing mentally ill vets back to reality and dispelling some of the fears and gross misconceptions the general public has of N. P.'s.

Not long ago a man called at the hospital to see his son, a patient in the "depressed and suicidal" ward.

For days on end the boy, a veteran of 23 months' combat in the Pacific, had sat staring into space, taking no food, refusing to talk to any one, and frequently breaking into convulsive sobs.

His father took one look at him and said with disgust, "I'm ashamed of you. I never thought you'd do a thing like this."

"That's the kind of thing," said Col. Theodore C. C. Fong, head of Darnall's neuropsychiatric service, "that can undo months of our work here."

No Purple Heart for This

Medics had found the boy struggling back to the lines carrying a dead buddy in his arms and sobbing violently. Tho physically unscathed, his memory was gone.

"If he'd lost his leg instead of his mind," said Col. Fong, "he would be a hero. But Purple Hearts are not awarded for wounds of the mind and the soul."

The army does not consider N. P. patients as combat casualties. Yet practically all the patients at Darnall have been in combat, most of them for many months.

There is a general conception among the civilian public that N.P.'s are malingerers or goldbrickers.

"In all the time I've been at this hospital," said Capt. Herman M. Serota, one of the hospital psychiatrists, "I have not seen one single patient who was malingering. That is plain outright prejudice on the part of the public. Their ignorance of this problem is appalling."

He Talks of 'Graves, Graves'

Sit in on one of Capt. Serota's interviews with a patient, a handsome, husky man with hollow cheeks and vacant eyes who was with a combat engineer's outfit all

THE FELLOW WHO LIGHTED THE FUSE

Seize Sailor, Kidnaper of Three in Day

Seaman 2d Class Jack G. Navarre, 23, of Independence, Kas., an escaped prisoner from the naval training center at Great Lakes, was captured last night at Savanna, Carroll county, after kidnaping two girls and a forest preserve policeman.

Navarre and two other prisoners, Tracey W. Wood, 30, of Rose City, Mich., navy seaman 2d class, and Harvey L. Hinderliter, 22, of 4835 Ash av., Hammond, Ind., coast guard seaman 2d class, escaped yesterday by slugging their guard, Marine Corp. Clifton D. Mantey, and seizing his pistol.

Take Clothes from Three

They compelled Mantey and two navy civilian employes to accompany them in a truck to a woods near Libertyville where they exchanged clothes with the trio and drove off in the truck.

A short time later, Navarre halted a car containing Dorothy Wagner, 15, and Marie Stoffel, 18, both of Volo. He compelled them to drive him to a spot near Arlington Heights, where they parked.

When Hugh Donnelly, 45, of 820 Belleforte av., Oak Park, a forest preserve policeman, approached the car and told them to move on, Navarre drew his gun, disarmed Donnelly, and compelled Donnelly to drive him away in the latter's car.

Drops Note on Bar

When they reached Savanna, Donnelly told Navarre he was thirsty and offered to buy him a drink. They entered a tavern. Donnelly excused himself to go to the washroom. There he wrote a note stating the man with him was an escaped prisoner, was armed, and was dangerous.

He dropped the crumpled note on the bar in front of two soldiers, who summoned military police. When military police sought to question Navarre, he walked out of the tavern, and on the sidewalk drew his gun, and jumped between two parked cars. Military police stationed themselves behind another parked car.

Bullet Grazes Nose

A Savanna policeman, George Kalleneyn, summoned by the owner of a near-by store, fired at Navarre from across the street. The bullet grazed the bridge of his nose. Navarre fell to the sidewalk and was seized by the military police.

The two girls kidnaped by Navarre told authorities he had told them of slugging two companions with whom he escaped, and leaving them in a woods. They were being sought.

NAVY TELLS JAPAN FLEET AGAIN IS OFF COAST FOR NEW RAIDS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP)—The navy told the Japanese tonight that Adm. Halsey's 3d fleet is again off their homeland and will soon "let loose more and more destruction on vital coastal installations."

Explaining the silence from Halsey's fleet for a week, a news review read on the navy hour radio program said the 3d had been avoiding a threatening typhoon.

"Adm. Halsey had been caught in one destructive typhoon on June 5," the navy commentator said. "He was going to make sure it didn't happen again so the 3d fleet moved into safe waters."

This is the typhoon season in the far Pacific. Four or five a month can be expected until about December. The navy said it has a patrol system, however, which will make it a rare instance when a typhoon is not spotted before it threatens an area where its ships are operating.

Hold Military Funeral Today for Maj. Bong

Superior, Wis., Aug. 7 [Special]—Members of the families of Maj. Richard I. Bong and his bride gathered here today and arranged for funeral services in Superior tomorrow in the same church where he was married on Feb. 10 on his last trip home.

Tonight the body of America's ace of aces was being flown here in an army C-47 transport from California where he was killed yesterday in the explosion of a jet plane he was testing. His young widow, the former Marjorie Ann Vattendahl of Superior, accompanied the body. She was attended by an army nurse. The plane is scheduled to arrive at 8 a. m.

Services for the flyer, who shot down 40 Jap planes before the army retired him from combat, will be held at 2 p. m. in the Concordia Lutheran church, of which his wife is a member. Officiating will be the Rev. Arvid F. Hoorn, pastor of Bethany Lutheran church of Poplar, which Bong attended as a boy.

Plan Military Services

A telephone call this afternoon from an officer of the 8th army air force command in Washington, D. C., to Norman Le Pole, president of Bong's home town of Poplar, disclosed elaborate military plans in connection with the funeral.

The officer said a 30 piece military band and a military escort of 16 soldiers were being sent here by plane and that numerous war department dignitaries would attend.

Interment will be in the Poplar cemetery, at the outskirts of the little village of 400 and only two miles from the farm where Bong was raised and had his first inspiration to learn to fly.

Flags at Half Staff

Flags in Superior and Poplar flew at half staff today and plans were made to close business places in the two towns tomorrow. A mass turnout of residents thruout Douglas county is expected for the last rites of the hero.

Bong's mother, Mrs. Carl T. Bong, came from Poplar, 20 miles east of Superior, to aid in the funeral arrangements, which were planned at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sigurd Vattendahl, parents of his bride.

It was disclosed, meantime, that several days before Maj. Bong's death a report reached Superior that he was soon to be given an honorable discharge. He was eligible to discharge because of holding the congressional medal of honor. According to the unconfirmed report, he was slated to take a key position with the Douglas Aircraft corporation in Santa Monica, Cal.

BLAST ROCKS B-29 10 MILES AWAY; 4 SQ. MI. OF HIROSHIMA DESTROYED

Photographs Show Damage Outside Obliterated Zone

GUAM, Aug. 8 (Wednesday)—(AP)—Four and one-tenth square miles "or 60 per cent" of Hiroshima was wiped out by the devastating atomic bomb dropped Monday by a B-29, the United States army strategic air force headquarters reported today.

Five major industrial targets were obliterated in the city of six and nine-tenths square miles.

Leaps Seven Streams

Photographs showed clearly that the heart of Hiroshima was wiped out with such awful thoroness as if some giant bulldozer had swept across the buildings and houses. Several manmade firebreaks and seven streams failed to stop the fires.

One of the spanned firebreaks was three city blocks wide and a photograph evaluator said it was one of the best seen on Japan.

In the heart of the city only a few concrete structures remain standing. They were believed to be air raid shelters. Even they had been burned inside.

A United States army strategic air forces expert said there was no comparison between the fire caused by an atomic bomb and by the tremendous concussion. Hiroshima is a city of 343,000.

Port Barely Touched

Altho additional damage was revealed by the camera outside the completely destroyed section, the lower part of Hiroshima with its harbor and dock facilities appeared to be barely touched by the tremendous concussion.

Photographs, taken a few minutes after the atomic bomb blasted Hiroshima, showed a spectacular formation of white smoke rising like a long necked mushroom over the city. Only several dots were perceivable in the target city—the remainder was obscured by clouds of smoke.

So, with a single bomb, a single Super Fort accomplished as great damage as normally is inflicted by a large force of B-29s. Actually, the force of the atomic bomb is reported equivalent to 2,000 B-29s.

TRUMAN ARRIVES IN CAPITAL AND MEETS CABINET

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 [Special]—President Truman returned to Washington tonight from the Big Three meeting in Berlin after telling reporters earlier in the day that the successful use of the atomic bomb on Japan raises hope that this country and its allies have "the most powerful weapon for war and peace ever devised."

Members of the cabinet met the President at the White House. He conferred with them until about 11:45 p. m.

Besides foreshadowing early victory over Japan the President told newsmen the bomb "means a wonderful peace time release of energy if its powers can be harnessed for commercial use." Industrial studies, scientists have told him, indicate it may be the "greatest discovery of any age for the benefit of the people."

Ranks It with Charter

The President listed development of the bomb, which he first announced to the world yesterday, along with the allied nations charter and the Big 3 agreements at Berlin as potent assets by which peaceful nations can keep down future aggressions.

Mr. Truman and his party reached the nation's capital aboard a special train from Newport News, Va.

Plans Broadcast to Nation

It was learned that Mr. Truman plans to delay any news conferences until he has made a radio address to the nation on the agreements reached in Germany with British and Russian leaders.

His speech will be broadcast probably Thursday or Friday night. As tentatively drafted aboard the Augusta, it will take 30 minutes to deliver.

U. S. SCIENTISTS RUSH TO MANILA ON SECRET TRIP

[By Wireless to the New York News and The Chicago Tribune]

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 7—An impressive shipment of Uncle Sam's most eminent scientists arrived here today, rushed by plane from America's east coast in 48 hours. The use to which they are being put and their names is a military secret.

Heading the party rushed half way around the world by the air transport command's speediest planes is a silver haired scholar whose work is a household word back home.

Traveling with the rank of major general, this famous scientist wore a simple GI uniform, without insignia, in which he seemed perfectly at ease. His only slightly less distinguished colleagues bore themselves with the same aplomb.

Chicagoan Tells of Awesome Scene from Plane

GUAM, Aug. 7 (AP)—Crewmen of the Super Fort from which the first atomic bomb in the history of war was dropped on the Japanese city of Hiroshima Aug. 6 said today the new weapon struck with a flash and concussion that brought an exclamation of "My God" from the battle-hardened airmen 10 miles away.

There are more B-29s ready to carry more of the same awesome bombs from their bases in the Marianas in a follow-up on other enemy targets. This was announced by Gen. Spaatz, commander of the United States army strategic air force. Spaatz said there would be a leaflet campaign to let the Japanese people know they had been atom-bombed and could expect more.

Like Close Explosion

Crewmen who carried the new bomb, which is declared to have an explosive power the equivalent of bombs that 2,000 Super Fortresses would have had to carry previously, altho they were far away, felt the concussion like a close explosion of anti-aircraft fire.

Col. Paul W. Tibbets Jr. of Quincy, Ill., and Miami, Fla., who piloted the Super Fortress, and Chicago born Navy Capt. William S. Parsons, now of Santa Fe, N. M., navy ordnance expert, described the explosions as "tremendous and awe inspiring."

Plane Speeds Away

"It was 0915 (9:15 a. m.) when we dropped our bomb and we turned the plane broadside to get the best view," said Capt. Parsons, who has the title of "Weaponeer." "Then we made as much distance from the ball of fire as we could.

"We were at least 10 miles away and there was a visual impact, even tho every man wore colored glasses for protection. We had braced ourselves when the bomb was gone for the shock and Tibbets said 'close flak' and it was just like that—a close burst of anti-aircraft fire.

"The crew said, 'My God,' and couldn't believe what had happened.

Mountain of Smoke Rises

"A mountain of smoke was going up in a mushroom with the stem coming down. At the top was white smoke but up to 1,000 feet from the ground there was swirling, boiling dust. Soon afterward small fires sprang up on the edge of town but the town was entirely obscured. We stayed around two or three minutes and by that time the smoke had risen to 40,000 feet.

"As we watched the top of the white cloud broke off and another soon formed."

British Saved at Dunkerque by Fluke

FRANKFURT, Germany, Aug. 7 (AP)—The accidental discovery of a secret German document enabled the British to evacuate 330,000 men from the trapped beaches of Dunkerque, the United States army disclosed today.

"This was the paper that lost the war for Germany because it opened an escape hatch thru which the core of the British regular army slipped and gave Britain at least the semblance of enough strength to hold on until Russia and the United States were drawn to her aid," an intelligence officer of G-2 said.

General Fired Upon

At an hour when the French were being slaughtered and the British were making a desperate effort to evacuate their helpless divisions, a member of the German general staff on a reconnaissance mission pushed too far ahead of his own lines and was fired upon by a British patrol.

The Nazi officer and his men took off across the fields, but their vehicle was captured by the patrol. In it was a copy of a surprise attack in the Calais region aimed at cutting off the British escape.

The document fell into the hands of the commander of a small British force screening the Dunkerque beaches only a few hours before the attack was scheduled to begin.

Foretold Hook Drive

It foretold a hook movement by a German force moving up from Abbeville and striking in the rear of the Dunkerque area. The British commander concentrated every man he had at the point of attack.

The Germans attacked on schedule but their initial thrust was stopped and the British covering force held for three days while British and French troops escaped the Dunkerque beaches.

told of his reaction to his first atomic bomb flight with the calmness of a professor lecturing to a group of students on butterflies. He is the man who actually designed the bomb.

Beginning in June, 1943, he worked to perfect an explosive of such tremendous force that could be carried with comparative safety in a plane for as long as it takes to fly from the Marianas to Japan. Parsons said it was good psychology from the outset to have the person in charge of designing the bomb know that he was to go along on the first battle mission.

Bomb Not Controlable

A little more than a year elapsed between the first tryout in New Mexico and the first atomic bombing. Parsons said so many facsimiles had been dropped experimentally that when the great moment over the target came yesterday he could hardly realize it was the real thing.

The "weaponeer" explained that the atomic bomb is not controlable like the ordinary bomb, but he could not, of course, go into detail.

As close as Parsons has been associated with the top secret project, he was in the dark about some phases of it. After reading background material distributed among the correspondents, he commented, "I learned a lot from this handout."

Spaatz Is Elated

Details of the bombing were disclosed at a press conference attended by Gen. Spaatz, who termed the new bomb the "most revolutionary development in the history of the world."

Spaatz was obviously highly elated at the new bombing weapon. He said if he had had it in Europe "it would have shortened the war six to eight months." Maj. Gen. Curtis Le May said that if this bomb had been available there would have been "no need to have had D-day in Europe."

Le May, former commanding general of the 20th air force, is chief of staff under Spaatz.

Known to Three Only

The Super Fortress which carried the bomb took off from a Marianas base and only three men knew what they carried—Col. Tibbets, Capt. Parsons, and the bombardier, Maj. Thomas W. Ferebee, Mocksville, N. C. Other crewmen knew only that it was a highly secret, important mission.

Tibbets had been trained specially for this mission, which Gen. Spaatz considered so vital he awarded Tibbets the distinguished service cross as he stepped from his plane after the flight. The plane was named "Enola Gay," after Tibbets' mother in Miami.

There were many secrets about the flight and the bombing which followed. One secret was the selection of Hiroshima as the target. It was believed probable, however, that it was selected not because of its great importance but partly because the weather was clear there and visibility was such as to permit a close watch of the bomb explosion.

No difficulty was encountered in reaching the target.

Best of Facilities

"When we went out we had the best of facilities made available to us," Tibbets said.

"The bomb run up to the target was uneventful and there were no disturbing elements in the bomb run when the release was made.

"We saw a flash, felt the concussions and it reminded me of a close burst of flak. We stayed in the target area looking at the scene below and the towering column of smoke. I have never seen anything like it."

Other members of the crew were Capt. Robert A. Lewis, Ridgefield Park, N. J., airplane commander; Capt. Theodore J. Van Kirk, Northumberland, Pa., navigator; 2d. Lt. Morris Jeppson, electronics officer; Sgt. Joe A. Stiborik, Taylor, Tex., radar operator; Sgt. Robert R. Shumard, Detroit, Mich., gunner and assistant flight engineer; Staff Sgt. Wyatt E. Dusenberry, Lansing, Mich., flight engineer; Pvt. Richard H. Nelson, Los Angeles, Cal., radio operator, and Staff Sgt. George P. Caron, central fire control gunner.

Discussion of the size or other features of the atomic bomb wasn't permitted, but it is carried by a single Super Fortress.

Spaatz, Le May, and other general officers discussed guardedly the possible effectiveness of the new bomb which was described as giving off intense heat for some distance around it. In experiments in New Mexico, the heat was said to have been felt 20 miles away.

Essentially An Air Weapon

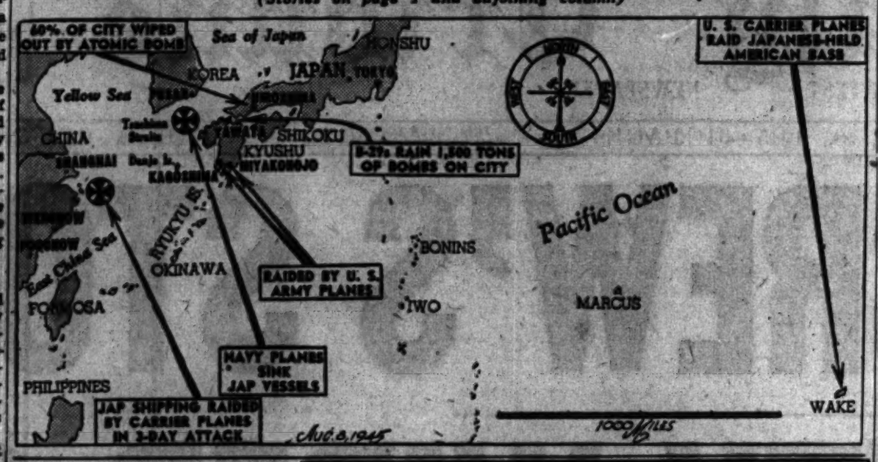
One officer described it as essentially an air weapon when asked if it would be possible to be used by the fleet. Parsons was asked whether a bomb was capable of starting tidal waves. He said if it were dropped in the sea, there would be a lot of waves and high geysers but expressed doubt that it would start a tidal wave.

Another officer said that "its effect probably would be disappointingly slight on shipping."

Granting the tremendous power of the atomic bomb, Spaatz refused to conjecture specifically on how it would affect the end of the war with Japan, but said: "It won't be pleasant for the Japanese to absorb."

Far Ranging Americans Strike Again at Japs

(Stories on page 1 and adjoining column)



Leaflet Warning to Japan

Propaganda leaflet of type being dropped over Japan from American B-29 bombers, exhibited yesterday in Chicago by Lt. Ernest O. Saltmarsh. The inscription reads: "Is it all right if Japan becomes a country of dead men, leaving only women and children?"

CALL JAP CABINET

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 7 (AP)—The Japanese cabinet was reported assembled in special session today, presumably to discuss the drastic turn of events prompted by the loosing of an atomic bomb on the homeland.

Enemy broadcasts also warned the people to brace for renewed attacks by the superbombs, and gave repeated accounts of the new bomb, carefully refraining from using the word "atomic" or admitting the breadth of destruction, but branding it a "diabolic weapon."

"Since it is presumed that the enemy planes will continue to use this new bomb," the Osaka radio said in a domestic broadcast, "the authorities will point out measures to cope with it immediately."

Train Travel Forbidden

Japanese accounts said "several bombs" fell on the big military base Monday, coming from the bomb bays of only a few Super Forts, and Osaka added: "Even if the enemy does raid with a small number of planes we must be careful not to look at the raids lightly."

Another broadcast beamed to the United States declared that the use of the atomic bomb branded "the enemy for ages to come as a destroyer of justice and mankind."

All train travel into Hiroshima—which the Japanese conceded was "considerably damaged"—was forbidden.

"The destructive power of the new weapon cannot be slighted," warned Domei agency, which said "a few" of the annihilating bombs floated in over the military city by parachute and burst "before reaching the ground."

"As a result of this wanton attack," added Domei, "a considerable number of houses in the city were demolished, while fires were caused at several points."

Hopes for Quick Victory

Domei speculated that the Americans hoped to bring Japan quickly to her knees by the use of the atomic bomb but asserted "effective measures are being worked out" to combat this weapon new to history.

Domei said tonight that Prince Ri Gu, nephew of the present head of the house that formerly ruled Korea, was wounded fatally in the atomic bombing of Hiroshima.

He was on duty as a lieutenant colonel in the Japanese army.

Oak Park Navy Flyer Missing on Night Flight

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 7 (AP)—Two pilots are listed as missing after their planes failed to return from night training flights from the naval air station at Chincoteague last night, the 5th naval district office of public information said tonight. One of them was Ensign Robert W. Fulton, U. S. N. R., son of Robert N. Fulton, 914 N. Grove av., Oak Park, Ill.

VATICAN VIEWS ATOMIC BOMB 'UNFAVORABLY'

'Sinister Shadow on Future of Humanity'

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 7 (AP)—The Vatican City newspaper L'Osservatore Romano today called the new atomic bomb dropped on Japan "a catastrophic conclusion . . . to the war's apocalytic surprises."

The official Vatican press office permitted itself to be quoted as follows regarding atomic bombs:

"The use of atomic bombs in Japan has created an unfavorable impression on the Vatican."

Msgr. Enrico Pucci's Vatican press bulletin said that the revelation of the development of the atomic bomb "made a deep impression in the Vatican, not so much for the use already made of the new death instrument as for the sinister shadow that the discovery of this weapon casts on the future of humanity."

"Should Destroy Invention"

L'Osservatore Romano compared the invention of the atomic bomb with the invention of a submarine by Leonardo da Vinci, the 16th century Italian artist and inventor.

It expressed regret that the bomb's inventors did not, like Da Vinci, destroy their creation in the interest of humanity.

"Da Vinci wanted to defeat death by thought," L'Osservatore said, "but the road of men who have not his Christian charity must defeat death with death. This incredible destructive instrument remains a temptation, if not for horrified contemporaries, then for posterity, to whom little is taught by history."

[The Encyclopaedia Britannica says that da Vinci "knew of a method of remaining a long time under water, but he refused to tell of it because of the 'evil nature of man'."]

Race of Destruction

"Mankind did not think as did Leonardo. Mankind thought as he believed it would think under the impetus of passions, of hatreds, or conquests. The most efficient instruments were put into the service of hate and conquest.

"And among all parties of every conflict there was a race, fierce, always more frightening, always more destructive, on the earth, on the water, in the air, calling in all elements to participate."

Mines Speed War

Importance of mining Japanese waters to speed end of the war in the Pacific was stressed here yesterday as one of the outstanding moves in American strategy by Lt. Ernest O. Saltmarsh, Pensacola, Fla., commander of a mine sweeper sunk in the Pacific.

Saltmarsh, now stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training center, was injured when his mine sweeper struck a Jap mine in Tawitawi bay.

"It sure is good to hear the Nips are hemmed in by our mines," he said. "Reversal of the mine picture is that much done to end the Japanese war. Now, instead of the Japs blowing us up, we'll have a chance at them—and a good one."

Among Saltmarsh's prized souvenirs are two propaganda leaflets sent to him by Sgt. De Witt Lounsbery, a member of the United States army air forces ground crew in the Marianas. The leaflets are the newest propaganda pieces dropped over the Japanese homeland by the Mariana based B-29s.

225 B-29s BLAST YAWATA, JAPAN STEEL CENTER

GUAM, Aug. 8 [Wednesday]—(AP)—Two hundred and twenty-five Super Fortresses, escorted by 140 Thunderbolt fighters from Okinawa, spilled 1,300 tons of demolition bombs today on Yawata, "the Pittsburgh of Japan." Yawata had been warned only three days ago that it was marked for destruction.

Returning pilots brought back word they started large fires which spread to conflagrations—noteworthy because it was a demolition and not an incendiary attack.

Carrier planes of the Pacific fleet raided Wake Island on Monday and struck shipping off the coast of China Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, it was announced in a fleet bulletin. The three day hunt netted only small shipping victims. Four enemy planes were shot down.

Yawata, on the north tip of Kyushu, has a population of 261,000. Its industrial area comprises the cities of Yawata, Wakamatsu, Tobata, Kurosaki, and Kokura.

Weather Is Clear

The weather was clear and the bombardiers bombed visually.

Yawata was the first target ever hit on Japan by the B-29s, having been attacked June 14, 1944, again July 7, and a third time Aug. 20, by China-based B-29s.

It was the third straight B-29 raid in as many days on Japan, following a 580 plane attack in the pre-dawn of Aug. 6 with 3,850 tons of bombs on four cities and a coal liquefaction plant, and a strike by about 121 B-29s at Toyokawa naval arsenal Aug. 7.

Today the United States army strategic air force said the B-29s dropped 70 tons of high explosives on the arsenal at Toyokawa and returning crews said results were generally excellent. There was no enemy intereception and anti-aircraft fire was meager. One damaged bomber was abandoned while flying back to base but the crew was rescued.

Japs Attack Okinawa

MANILA, Aug. 8 [Wednesday]—(AP)—Japanese planes "harmlessly raided our Okinawa positions before dawn" Monday, Gen. MacArthur announced today as he reported continuing heavy aerial attacks on Kyushu.

YANKS CAPTURE NAZI CHEMICAL TRUST CHAIRMAN

HOECHST, Germany, Aug. 7 (AP)—Dr. Karl Krauch, elusive chairman of the I. G. Farbenindustrie chemical trust, has been captured by American intelligence officers after a three month chase, it was announced today.

Col. Edwin S. Pillsbury, in charge of the seized combine, said Krauch was taken in Heidelberg. He described him as the chief contact man between Farben and the Nazi party.

Pillsbury said that before the fall of Berlin three Farben officials fled with $36,000,000 in marks that they apparently intended to use to keep key Farben men on their pay rolls.

ILLINOIS PILOT ADDS NEW 'FIRST' IN ATOM ATTACK

UNITED STATES STRATEGIC AIR FORCES, GUAM [Delayed]—(AP)—In piloting the B-29 which loosed the atomic bomb upon Japan, Col. Paul W. Tibbets Jr., a native of Quincy, Ill., marked up another "first" on his eight year record with the army air forces.

The bombardier who released the missile was Maj. Thomas W. Ferebee, Mocksville, N. C., who, along with Tibbets, is a graduate of the B-17 Flying Fortresses.

Tibbets is a veteran of the European and North African theaters and wears the distinguished flying cross with cluster, the air medal with three clusters, and the Purple Heart. He piloted the first B-17 to cross the channel on a bombing mission of occupied France on Aug. 17, 1942.

Maj. Ferebee was bombardier of Tibbets' B-17 in the first strike against Europe and was a crew member on Tibbets' plane that flew Gen. Eisenhower and Gen. Clark to Gibraltar to lay final plans for the invasion of North Africa.

REHEARSE 1,500 VOICE FESTIVAL CHORUS TONIGHT

Lutheran Group to Sing Guest's Composition

FESTIVAL RESERVED SEATS

Reserved seats for the Chicago Musical Festival, on sale at 50 cents and $1.25, may be purchased by mail, at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st., or in the lobby of Tribune Tower. Money orders or checks in mail orders should be made payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and sent with stamped, self-addressed envelope to Festival ticket manager, Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL

Two rehearsals of the adult Lutheran chorus of 1,500 voices, which will sing Saturday night, Aug. 18, at the 16th annual Chicago Music Festival in Soldiers' field, will be held tonight and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Tonight's rehearsal will be in Jehovah Lutheran school, Belden and Ridgeway avs., and tomorrow night's in Hope Lutheran church, 64th st. and S. Washtenaw av. John Rieck, organizer of an adult and juvenile Lutheran chorus for the festival, will conduct the rehearsals.

To Sing Guest's Composition

The adult chorus will sing "Wondrous Things the Lord Hath Done," by Dr. F. Melius Christiansen, who will be a guest of honor at the festival. The chorus, accompanied by the festival symphony orchestra, will be directed by Dr. Edgar Nelson, general choral conductor of the festival. The singers also will join the regular festival chorus members in Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus," also to be led by Dr. Nelson.

Miss Carol Smith, 19, contralto winner of the women's voice contest of the 1944 festival, will sing at the festival luncheon Friday noon, Aug. 17, in the Stevens hotel. She will be accompanied by Robert Macdonald.

Young Tenor to Sing

The second soloist at the luncheon will be Joseph Konitzki, 17, who will sing "The American Prayer." Konitzki, a tenor, was roundly applauded when he recently appeared before the Chicago Rotary club in Hotel Sherman as a guest of honor at the "Citizens of Tomorrow" luncheon given by that organization. He later won approval on the final broadcast of The Tribune youth show on W-G-N last spring.

The festival's suburban vocal contest has been shifted from the Drake hotel to Lyon & Healy hall, 64 E. Jackson blvd., at 4 p. m. Friday, Aug. 17.

RUSSIANS ADMIT RAPE, AUSTRIAN OFFICIAL SAYS

'But We Don't Kill the Women,' He Is Told

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 7 (AP)—An official of the provisional Austrian government said today he had protested rape by Red army troops in their victorious sweep across Austria and was told:

"Our troops are different from the SS. They raped our women and killed them. We don't kill your women."

The official commented: "That's true—they don't kill our women."

His own daughter, he said, escaped violence by being covered with a blanket so that the Russian soldiers thought that she was very old or very ill, but a woman in the same room was violated 40 times.

Desire for Revenge

The official said the Russians, entering a country which spoke the same language as the Germans, naturally felt a desire for revenge against the people, and this was strengthened by the fact that several divicions of Austrian troops fought alongside the Germans on the eastern front.

Most Viennese profess to understand the "revenge attitude" and all say that the Russians now are as well behaved as the soldiers of any other conquering army.

An attractive young woman living in the American zone said venereal diseases were spread by the troops and that "many women committed suicide" after violation. She said a Russian soldier once attempted to molest her, but she was saved by the intervention of her mother with a revolver.

Seen as "Reparations"

"You can't blame us for trying to protect ourselves," she said.

Viennese say pillaging and looting of homes of furniture and removal of wristwatches and jewelry still goes on, but on a much smaller scale. Here again the Viennese—who seem bluntly honest in reference to general acceptance of nazism in the early days of the anschluss—appear resigned in the belief the Russians are only exacting a sort of "reparations in kind" for the vast destruction wrought on their homes by the Germans

RATION FORCES TRIBUNE HELP ADS OUT 3 DAYS

Beginning tomorrow and continuing thru the remainder of August and thru September, THE TRIBUNE will carry no regular help wanted classified advertising in the Thursday, Friday, and Saturday issues.

On other days, no help wanted ad may contain more than three lines. Advertisers will be limited to two ads in any day's issue and to two insertions of the same ad within one week.

These announcements were made yesterday by W. R. Blend, classified advertising manager, who explained that such steps were necessary to keep within the newsprint tonnage that the advertising department's program makes it possible to allot to this type of advertising during the third quarter of 1945.

Step Caused by Rationing

"Since rationing of newsprint began," Blend said, "it has been our policy not to deny the use of TRIBUNE help wanted columns during any given week to any firm or individual, but rather to limit the size of the advertisments and the number of insertions per week."

The new restrictions represent no change in this policy, he pointed out, for the help wanted columns are still open to all. He ascribed the necessity for further limiting the size and the number of insertions of ads to the unprecedented demand for help wanted advertising space.

Exception for War Plants

"Conditions in May," Blend said, "indicated that our volume of help wanted advertising in the third quarter of this year would show an increase of 16 per cent over the same period a year ago. However, during July, the first month of the third quarter, our help wanted lineage increased 54 per cent and the number of help wanted advertisments increased 65 per cent over the total in July of last year."

An exception is to be made in the case of critical war plants. Their advertisments, if recommended by the United States government, will be published daily except Saturday.

NEW BOMB DIDN'T TINT SKY HERE, EXPERT ASSERTS

Meteorological conditions over Chicago were responsible for the unusually colorful sunset last Sunday and the atomic bomb dropped on Japan two hours earlier had nothing to do with it, Weather Forecaster Gordon E. Dunn said yesterday. And unless future atomic bombs actually shake the world, which Dunn hopes won't happen, they won't have any effect on weather at home.

Atomic bombs can't be compared with volcanoes, Dunn insisted. After Mount Pelee erupted in 1902 the whole world enjoyed beautiful sunsets for several years, but that was different. The eruption blew immense quantities of volcanic dust into the upper atmosphere. Atomic bombings might make the Japanese islands rattle on their moorings, but they wouldn't kick that much dust that high, Dunn opined.

Like other men who spend their lives studying the weather, Dunn insists that artillery and aviation bombardments have nothing to do with the wet spells and drouth here and abroad.

Mathematician

[Associated Press Wirephoto]

DR. LISE MEITNER

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 7 (AP)—Dr. Lise Meitner, 67, Austrian woman mathematician, will be linked in history with the atomic bomb.

In an interview by telephone from Leksand in central Sweden, near where she is vacationing in a small boarding house, Dr. Meitner said her sole interest in the atom had been "from a scientific and theoretical standpoint." She had no idea that her pioneering work in the early 1930s—which showed for the first time that the uranium atom could be broken down—would help in the development of the most destructive explosive force yet discovered.

She acknowledged that the development of the atomic bomb might have widespread effects on the future of civilization and forecast the development of a "power machine," but said the atom splitting action would have to be slowed down to something less than the explosion point before this would be practicable.

In 1935, she said, she and a German scientist named Hahn "didn't think at all about splitting the atom," but she conveyed the information they had collected to her nephew, Dr. Otto Robert Frisch, who began practical experiments. Dr. Frisch later went to England and in 1943 to the United States, working for a time at an experimental atomic laboratory in Santa Fe, N. M.

Dr. Meitner, who is Jewish, said her own part in atomic experiments virtually ended in 1938 when she was forced to leave Germany because of nazi anti-Semitic laws. She resumed atomic work only a few months ago, she said, at the Royal Swedish Academy of Science where she is an experimental physicist.

British Scientist Says Japs Know Atom Bomb Theory

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Prof. Nevill Mott, 39 year old Bristol university professor and authority on physics, was quoted by the Daily Herald today as saying that the Japanese know a great deal about the theory of atomic bombs but are not near the stage of producing one. Dr. Mott said that a Japanese named Y. Nishina had worked with Dr. Niels Bohr at Copenhagen on atomic research.

DATE FOR ATOM BOMBING SET OVER YEAR AGO

GUAM, Aug. 7 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Thomas F. Farrell, Albany, N. Y., disclosed today that the Aug. 5 [United States] date for dropping the first atomic bomb on the enemy was set "well over a year ago."

Farrell, aide to Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, Pasadena, Cal., veteran army construction engineer who was in charge of the bomb development program, said at a news conference the goal was set in order to lay out a schedule for completing the huge project.

For a while, he indicated, American and British scientists thought they were racing against time with the Germans who had been known to have started work on an atomic bomb of their own.

"One of our major worries over in Europe was that some secret weapon was being developed by the Germans comparable to this," said Gen. Spaatz, commander of strategic air forces in the Pacific. "We were vitally concerned. All of the stories were that they were ahead of us."

NEW ULTIMATUM FOR SURRENDER IS LOOKED FOR

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP)—The terrible destructive power of the new atomic bomb led military observers today to forecast a fresh allied surrender ultimatum on Japan with likelihood it may be quickly accepted.

"I don't see how the Japanese war lords can stand by and watch their people annihilated as certainly will happen," one competent military authority declared.

"Inevitably Japan will be told again—and soon—that she must surrender or face renewed attacks with this devastating bomb. I don't see how the enemy can avoid surrender any longer.

'TRIGGER' TO SET OFF ATOM BLAST SIMPLE DEVICE

Details Known to Reich as Well as Allies

New York, Aug. 7 (AP)—The trigger which was expected to set off the atomic bomb was a fairly simple mechanism, as planned just before the secrecy blackout.

Censorship permits a description of the early trigger because its details were published before the blackout.

The mechanism was a bit of radium, a bit of the common metal beryllium, some paraffin wax and a little Uranium 235. It was developed at Columbia university, and in modified form in other American laboratories as well as in England, France, and Germany.

Rays Set Off Other Rays

The rays of the radium struck the beryllium and caused that metal to emit rays of its own. These rays from the metal were different from those of radium. They were neutrons, which are noncharged particles and very penetrating.

As the neutron rays came off the beryllium, they were traveling too fast to have any effect on the uranium. Here the job of the paraffin wax came in. It slowed down the neutron rays. When the neutrons reached the very slow speed which is designated by 25,000 volts, these particles easily split the uranium atoms in two.

That split released enough explosive energy to make an atomic bomb possible. The problem was to get the uranium to continue exploding its atoms automatically after the trigger had started the fire.

Key to Problem Found

The pre-war uranium atoms supplied a key to this last problem. When a uranium atom split it emitted not only the explosive energy, but also a few neutrons. These neutrons were traveling too fast to break other uranium atoms. But if they could be slowed down they too would break atoms, and would presumably set off an atomic explosion with large numbers of atoms cracking simultaneously.

It was calculated, and published, that this kind of slowdown could be accomplished readily. This would be done either by packing the uranium in paraffin, to slow the neutrons, or by using plain water as the slowing agent, for water works about as well as paraffin.

Whether this experiment was done or even tried never was published. When the blackout went on, scientists didn't have enough uranium 235 to make the test.

The unexplained use of heavy water by the Germans, from a plant in Norway, might be connected with attempts to slow down the speed of neutrons enough to produce atomic explosions in uranium. Heavy water contains hydrogen of twice normal weight. And in water or paraffin, the hydrogen is the principal slowing barrier to neutrons.

ATOMIC ENERGY SEEN AS FUTURE BOON TO PLANES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP)—Scientists of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics said today that an atomic engine for aircraft is a distant possibility.

They said it is not fantastic to visualize a fuel supply the size of a brick with sufficient power to fly around the world many times.

Payloads Could Be Increased

"Without the need for large gasoline storage," the NACA said in a statement, "the payloads of commercial aircraft would be greatly increased, and the knife-like wing profiles essential to supersonic craft could be constructed with needed strength of solid light metal.

"Release of atomic energy promises to widen and broaden the application of air transport to the world's extension of communication and business, and not be limited merely to destructiveness."

The NACA is a body credited with much of the development and improvement of America's warplanes and aircraft engines. It said that "many years of research and development lie ahead before such an engine successfully emerges" because the degree of control achieved over atomic energy's use as a bomb "nowhere near approaches the measure of control needed to convert atomic energy to engine horsepower."

Present Engines Wasteful

Present type engines are "characterized by a relatively high fuel consumption and a staggering waste of energy," the committee said, with one nine-millionth of the total fuel energy utilized if the calculation is in terms of atomic energy.

For example, it pointed out that 4,320 BTU's [a measurement of heat] per pound are obtained from the molecular reaction of aviation fuels, while 35 billion BTU per pound can be obtained from atomic reaction.

ATOMIC BOMBS CALLED CHEAPER TO USE THAN TNT

Engineer Sees Saving in Lives

Oak Ridge, Tenn., Aug. 7 (AP)—Atomic bombing is cheaper and more economical than the use of TNT as an explosive, Col. Kenneth D. Nichols, district engineer of the Manhattan Engineer district, said today at a press conference.

"Figuring the cost of the 2,000 bombers it would take to drop a similar destructive charge, atomic bombing is cheaper both in costs and in men's lives," he said. "The number of men that atomic bombing enables to stay far behind the lines must be considered."

Production Continues

He said also that construction is continuing at Oak Ridge where, it was disclosed yesterday, the bomb is being manufactured at the Clinton Engineer works in what the army has designated as the Manhattan Engineer district.

The 37 year old colonel held the first press conference of his life in a room marked by a detailed map of Japan covering much of one wall. He explained to the news correspondents that scientific details of the atomic bomb must remain secret for the present.

Plant Safety Record Good

"But what we have produced here was done more to help end the war than is shown in the expenditure of 2 billion dollars.

Nichols said the safety record for the Manhattan district was better than for army engineering construction as a whole.

NEW BOMB DRAWS PROTEST FROM CHRISTIAN GROUP

LONDON, Aug. 7 [Reuters]—Cables protesting against use of the atomic bomb have been sent to President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee in the name of the British "Christianity Calling" council.

Signed by the Rev. A. D. Belden, the council's chairman and its honorary general secretary, the Rev. Joseph Jones, its message to Attlee said, "Unparalleled terrorism disgraces united nations. Beg you secure veto use."

The council has asked Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, archbishop of Canterbury, and the Rev. Newton Flow, moderator of the English Free churches, to express the "indignation of the Christian public" at the use of the bomb, and to associate with Christian leaders in an attempt to prevent its use.

REVEAL ALLIES DESTROYED NAZI ATOM FACTORY

GUAM, Aug. 7 (AP)—High ranking army officers disclosed today that a laboratory at Orienenburg, Germany, in which nazi scientists were working on an atomic bomb, was destroyed by allied bombs last March.

The allies learned of the existence of the German laboratory just outside Berlin and Generals Marshall, army chief of staff, and Arnold, chief of the air forces, sent a courier from Washington, D. C., with oral orders to Gen. Spaatz, then strategic air forces commander in Europe, to destroy the laboratory.

The heavy raid destroyed it "completely and absolutely."

Britain Eases Censorship of Overseas Mail, Freight

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Britain made another modification in her steadily shrinking censorship code today. Censorship permits will be required for overseas mail and freight only if addressed to China, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, and Switzerland. Censorship control at British ports also was modified to apply only to travelers to or from those countries.

Oak Ridgers Celebrate, but Stick to Bomb Job

Oak Ridge, Tenn., Aug. 7 (AP)—Workers at Oak Ridge went back to work today after a night of celebrating the revelation that they were producing atomic bombs. Tho some workers became excited at the news, all stuck to their jobs, Clinton Engineer works officials said absenteeism caused no loss in production.

BERLIN'S HEALTH CALLED GOOD IN VIEW OF CHAOS

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Aug. 7—During July, 1,100 Germans died in the Berlin area from dysentery, out of 6,900 cases reported, and 37 of 380 typhoid cases proved fatal. The American sector contained 1,200 dysentery cases, of which 300 succumbed, and 75 typhoid cases, among which there were only five mortalities. There were 10 typhus cases in July, including one death, with three cases in the Yank zone.

Thus, altho the United States zone contains 25 per cent of the civilian population, the disease rate is less than 20 per cent.

Dysentery Relatively Scarce

The number of sufferers from dysentery is considered small, considering the polluted water, which is contaminated with sewage seeping from cracked pipes, but the motality rate of 16 per cent is explained by the fact that most cases are chronic over many months from constant bombing, and the sufferers' resistance was weakened by malnutrition.

The burgomeister's records reveal that a typhus epidemic occurred early in 1944, reaching the peak of 360 cases in March, last year.

Begin Garbage Collection

Garbage collections started to function today. This is expected to eliminate many focal points. The city water is being chlorinated.

Physicians assert that thru the long reign of terror, when Berlin's municipal services were disrupted, the consequent inability to provide the populace with adequate food built up a certain immunization among the inhabitants, preserving them from many minor illnesses.

Considering the conditions prevailing, Berlin's health is regarded as better than might have been expected.

CAR STOLEN FROM PARKING SITE

BOMB PROJECT NO. 1 ON LIST FOR DEFERMENTS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP)—The atomic bomb project has long held the top man power priority in the nation.

Selective service said today 5,500 persons in varying occupations were deferred from military service between January, 1943, and June, 1945, for their work with the "Manhattan Engineer district"—the code term used to designate the secret project.

By Aug. 1 of this year the deferments had been reduced, voluntarily, to 4,500 but the war department still rated the project as No. 1 for deferments.

SCIENCE 'DOPED' ATOM BOMB ON MIDWAY LAWNS

Meadows, Benches, Mall Heard Their Secrets

BY FRANK HUGHES

One of the greatest secrets in world history, which promises to unlock virtually a new universe and a new way of life for mankind, was discussed and perfected in informal conferences on the grassy meadows of the University of Chicago's midway, on the benches lining the mall, and over luncheon tables in the Quadrangle faculty club, it was learned yesterday.

Leading physicists and chemists from the allied nations of the world who have been developing the atom bomb there did a great part of their work in these informal discussions, outside of the heavily guarded secret laboratories, it was learned. "Atom smashing," which gives the new bomb its tremendous power, had been a laboratory phenomenon for many months, but these men first put it to practical use as a dreadful weapon against Japan.

They can be expected to continue its perfection for man's benefit in peace, as a source of energy unrivaled in the world's history, but no corps of busy men ever were more tight-lipped about their achievement. They are under oath not to discuss the atom bomb or its processes.

Won't Hazard Guesses

Not even will they hazard a guess as to how much research lie ahead before people will be using "cracked atoms" instead of fuel oil, gasoline, and coal for locomotion, power, and comfort, or what the cost of atom power will be. The part "heavy water" and uranium-235, known to be constituents, play remain secret. Most of the details that can be told are "educated guesses" rather than fact.

The British published a "guess" that the atom bomb, which exploded with the force of 22,000 tons of TNT over Hiroshima, weighs one-tenth the weight of a blockbuster, or about 400 pounds.

There are probably several ways in which "heavy water" used by the Germans in an unexplained manner in Norway, could figure in atomic research. Hydrogen is a chemical element which has an atomic weight of one. Ordinary water is hydrogen oxide, represented by the chemical formula H_2O. "Heavy water" is deuterium oxide, the deuterium being "heavy" hydrogen, which has an atomic weight of two instead of one but otherwise has the chemical properties of regular hydrogen.

Speculate on Nazi Plans

This isotrope of hydrogen, as such substances are called, was discovered by Dr. Harold C. Urey of Columbia university in 1932.

One theory is that the Germans may have attempted to use "heavy" water to slow down other neutrons in bombarding uranium atoms. It is known that uranium 235 atoms can be split only by neutrons traveling at relatively low speeds, and that the hydrogen in ordinary water serves to slow down the speed of neutrons.

Meanwhile, Dr. Gustav Egloff, chief chemist for the Universal Oil Products company here and one of the pioneers in "oil cracking" said he believed about 50 per cent of the petroleum industry's output is "safe and secure" against competition from atomic power in peace times.

"The oil industry still will be needed to provide lubricating oils for the machines driven by atomic power," he said. "Wax and other products from petroleum still will be on the market and other uses may be expected to be developed by research.

Chicago Industries Help

A number of Chicago industries announced yesterday the part they played in the development, manufacture, or preparation for the atomic bomb. The Fansteel Metallurgical corporation of North Chicago announced it has been fabricating some of the parts, as has the Crane company and the Hallicrafters company. The Independent Pneumatic Tool company made tools to be used in the Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Richland, Wash., atom bomb plants.

Officials of the Chicago firm of Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, architect engineers, disclosed that the entire city of Oak Ridge was designed and constructed by them, at a cost of "somewhat less than 500 million dollars."

The regional war man power commission office, meanwhile warned that while the atom bomb promises to shorten the Japanese war, "we must not assume that the war will soon be over; in fact, it cannot end without a long and bitter fight." Lester Brown, Chicago area director, urged war workers to stay at their jobs.

ROBS TRUSTING JOB SEEKER

Dale Samuels, 35, of 6124 S. Sacramento av., entrusted his watch and ring to a stranger who offered him a job yesterday, and the stranger disappeared. Samuels reported to police.

ATOMIC BOMB—'BIG STICK' TO ENFORCE PEACE

May Be Weapon of Air Police Force

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP)—The revolutionary atomic bomb might become the peace enforcing weapon of the united nations thru a special air police force equipped with the secret, terrible missile by the United States and Britain, some diplomats suggested tonight.

They also speculated that the bomb would raise the question of putting all militarily important scientific inventions under control of the united nations security council when the new world organization is born.

One prime question was whether the secret of the atomic bomb would be—or should be—shared with other allied nations.

There was general agreement that the weapon could become the "big stick" of peace and security, provided it did not fall into the wrong hands.

May Seek Control by Council

Some diplomats said that the Americans and British, even if they did not wish to reveal their secret, might agree to furnish a special air force to the security council. Under such an agreement the international organization would not be given the secret of the bomb but could use the air force wherever aggression might break out.

While authoritative officials would not comment on the question whether Russia had been kept informed of the developments, most unofficial sources expressed belief there was no reason why Britain and the United States were obligated to disclose the workings of the bomb to the soviets since Russia is not fighting Japan.

Some military experts said the bomb already had outdated some of the strategical decisions made at Potsdam and earlier conferences. Such a weapon puts an entirely new aspect on many matters of strategy and security, they said, altering the importance of control of certain ports, rivers, mountains, or frontiers.

Sees Quick End of War

B. Neville Wallace, the British scientist who perfected the 10 ton bomb, said: "The allies' new atomic bomb is certain to end the war quickly because no nation or group of nations can for long withstand its unprecedentedly devastating effects."

The new explosive "is probably one of the most powerful weapons for peace the world has ever devised," Wallace said. "Its possession by policing powers would make war an improbability because no nation would dare to make war for fear of utter destruction."

The consensus among authorities was that the question of control of the manufacture of the atomic bombs was much more important than strategic frontiers. There were predictions that as soon as experts of the Big Three have had an opportunity to study all the strategic implications, new consultations will begin to consider methods of agreed control over the manufacture and use of the weapon.

While the harnessing of atomic power has tremendous implications in peace time, such developments were believed likely to come slowly.

Pacific Veterans

A note of confusion was introduced into the naval air technical training center at 87th st. and Anthony av. yesterday when William Ward Stafford and Robert Eugene Stafford, 23, identical twins, of Brooklyn, N. Y., reported for an advanced course in aircraft instruments after two years with the fleet in the Pacific. Both are aviation chief machinist's mates. No one at the center can tell one from the other. There's only one difference. Robert is left handed. William is right handed.

BOMB NOT EQUAL TO EARTHQUAKE, SCIENTIST SAYS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP)—It's as silly to compare an atomic bomb explosion and an earthquake as it is to stack an ant up against an elephant.

That's the opinion of the Rev. Frederick W. Sohon, director of the seismograph observatory at Georgetown university, He says that altho man certainly has become a destructive little fellow, nature still is champ. No question of it.

Neither the practice atomic bombing in New Mexico nor the attack on Japan caused the slightest ruffle on the earthquake recording seismograph, he said in an interview.

ATOMIC BOMB SUPPLY AMPLE; OUTPUT IS HIGH

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7—The United States has a sufficient supply of atomic bombs to make good President Truman's notice to Japan that unless she surrenders promptly her people will suffer a "rain of ruin from the air," army high command sources revealed today. Already, it was said, the output has reached a high production rate in American factories, tho censorship forbids publication of figures.

Despite the terrible havoc wrought, the high command is not depending upon the atomic bomb to end the war. The army is going right ahead with the preparations for the invasion of the Jap homeland. All the physical resources at the command of the army are being mobilized for the landing of ground forces in sufficient numbers to overcome the Japanese army in as short a time as possible.

Hope People May Rise

The atomic bomb might end the war before the invasion but the army is not counting on it. It could end the war only if the devastation wrought should impel the civil population of Japan to rise against the militarists and compel the government to sue for peace. This will be the mission of the atomic bomb while the forces for the invasion are being massed. If it succeeds, the invasion will be unnecessary. If it fails, the invasion will go forward as planned.

Twenty-four hours after President Truman's announcement that American and British scientists had succeeded in harnessing the energy of the universe to the uses of war the capital was echoing with speculation on the ultimate implications of the epochal discovery.

The universal opinion is that in the atomic bomb the United States and Great Britain possess a weapon that makes them invulnerable to attack by any power that lacks the secret of loosing the stupendous energy of the atom and the enormous resources required to apply it to engines of destruction.

Could Suffocate Earth

The President evinced a lively appreciation of this fact when he said that the secret would be withheld from the world ostensibly pending a survey of "possible methods of protecting us and the rest of the world from the danger of sudden destruction." That such danger is inherent in the atomic bomb is testified to by the scientists who say that the explosion of a sizable bomb could destroy the earth's atmosphere and cause the human race to perish of suffocation.

The implications of the possession of this secret by the United States and Great Britain are far-reaching, according to officials considering the present state of international relationships. The Russians, it is pointed out, have extended their hegemony over eastern Europe and dictated territorial dispositions at the Teheran and Potsdam conferences because they were in possession of that region with the largest army in the world.

With the sole possession of the atomic bomb, however, the United States and Great Britain possess a military power superior to the Russian and no longer need to bow to the potential of an invincible force in ordering the future of Europe and Asia. Russia Dictator Stalin thereby loses his power to ride rough shod over the other two members of the Big Three tho apparently he was not made aware of his disadvantage at Potsdam where he got what he wanted with little, if any, opposition.

Statesmen are already suggesting that when the secret of the atomic bomb becomes common knowledge nations will find a compelling argument for universal peace and disarmament in order to save mankind from this devastating force. The suggestion is also heard that the United States and Great Britain place a few planes armed with atomic bombs at the disposal of the allied nations organization as the only force required to maintain world peace.

RETAIN ISLAND BASES PAID FOR IN AMERICAN BLOOD, INDIAN URGES

Island bases won from the enemy in the Pacific by American fighting men, as well as any in the Atlantic necessary for the protection of this country, should be placed under American possession and control, Charles Madrid, full blooded Pueblo Indian and former member of the New Mexico state legislature, yesterday told members of the Chicago Rotary club in Hotel Sherman.

"I have heard that our commander in chief has committed himself to the proposition that America doesn't want any territory as a result of this war," said Madrid. "If that means giving away all the bases we have taken from the enemy, then I say we should not leave the gate open for future Americans to shed their blood to regain what we have paid for in this struggle."

"I hold no brief for any country that wants to keep possessions that are too close to our American coast or the Panama canal," the speaker added. "There is Martinique, for instance. We liberated France, so why not ask France to cede Martinique to us for the future protection of America? Why not retain all the Pacific islands necessary for the future protection of America?"

He mumbles incoherently about voices and graves.

"Graves . . . graves . . . graves," he says. "I've got to go back." Suddenly he drops his head in his hands. His whole body trembles and a horrible choking sound escapes him. When he looks up at the doctor again, his eyes are steady and in a dry toneless voice he says:

"Go ahead, give it to me. I'd rather take it."

"You'd rather take what?" the doctor asks softly.

"Death," answered the man who still had enough contact with reality to know he'd been branded N.P.

The army psychiatrists emphasize that a neurosis is not a stall—it's an illness. And, like an enemy bullet, it is no respecter of persons. It can hit any man, regardless of his courage, intelligence, age, or physical strength.

Doctors Become Patients

Capt. Martin J. Grotjahn, internationally known psychiatrist who has charge of the officers' wards at Darnall, told of one of his doctor-patients who had worked tirelessly without food or sleep to care for 200 badly wounded soldiers in an overseas hospital.

The hospital was bombed. Not one patient survived. The doctor escaped death, but the horror and sudden shock of losing all his patients swept him over the brink into insanity.

Many of Darnall's patients are doctors, chaplains and air corps men.

One patient here is a 19 year old airman who made 35 missions over the Brenner pass before he cracked up mentally.

"Just a child," Capt. Grotjahn described him. "A little shrimp of a kid who knew by the law of averages that each mission might be his last."

Another is a 20 year old navigator with 11 times over Tokyo on his record.

Another is a youngster whose tank hit a mine, killing all his buddies. He had never seen death before.

Another is a machine gunner with 14 Japs to his credit.

They're All Good Soldiers

"These men are soldiers," said Capt. Grotpahn. "They should be treated as such. They have given part of themselves as surely as those who have given parts of their bodies.

"We have asked superhuman endurance from our men. The miracle is that any of them hold up."

Many employers are turning cold shoulders on GIs who have been discharged for "nervousness." Unless this attitude changes, Darnall doctors warn it will create a "serious situation."

They ask the public to remember that N. P. patients should not be penalized; that psychoneurosis does not mean a soldier is crazy, queer, abnormal, stupid, or yellow; that even insanity sometimes lasts only a few days or weeks or months; that many mentally ill victims of this war can and are being cured, and that these soldiers are heroes no less because their battle scars are the kind you can't see.

INDICTED IN AURORA KILLING

Claudie Jenkins, 21, Negro, was indicted by the Kane county grand jury yesterday for the murder of Blanche Wagner, 16, also a Negro, who was stabbed in a restaurant at 116 York st., Aurora, July 28.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Aug. 8—The Battle of Amiens (1918)

In the pre-dawn darkness of Aug. 8, 1918, Gen. Rawlinson flung the British 4th army against the German lines east of Amiens, France. The dazed enemy broke. This crushing onslaught of seven divisions and 450 tanks, supported by devastating artillery fire, could not be withstood.

The 4th crashed on thru. The second day of the battle the 131st infantry of the American 33d [Illinois] division, which was attached to Rawlinson's army, entered the line and attacked with the British 58th division. Its valor and endurance won the highest praise.

Other regiments of the 33d held active sectors during the Somme offensive but did not take part in the attacks.

The Germans, already shaken by the success of the allies' Aisne-Marne operation of July 18-Aug. 6, in which seven American divisions had participated, never recovered from the effects of this latest defeat.

For on Aug. 8 whole divisions failed. Hopelessness and war weariness had replaced the confidence and zest which as recently as the spring of 1918 had characterized the German troops.

"Aug. 8 was the black day of the German army," Ludendorff said later. "It put the decline of our fighting power beyond all doubt."

A few days after the breakthru, a secret conference of German military and civil officials, presided over by the kaiser, conceded that Germany could no longer hope to win the war and that she must seek peace. However, it was decided that nothing precipitate should be done lest revolution grip Germany. At the expenditure of thousands more lives, Germany kept up the now hopeless fight until Nov. 11.

2 DESTROYERS FROM NAZI NAVY DOCK IN BOSTON

Boston, Mass., Aug. 7 (AP)—Two German destroyers, manned by volunteer German crews under American supervision, steamed into Boston harbor today, but the reason for their arrival was cloaked in mystery.

A navy spokesman said they were the first of Hitler's navy, aside from submarines, to come to this country. The vessels came from Europe by way of the Azores, where they refueled. Beyond that information, naval officials said they had no knowledge.

One navy officer "guessed" the vessels were brought here for "experimental" purposes.

A navy spokesman said the German crews, all of which had volunteered to bring the vessels to this country, would be kept under close surveillance but would not be interned. Eventually, he said, they would be returned to their homeland.

Loan Applicant with Gun Menaces Girl, Takes $800

After threatening Miss Margery Coens, 23, of 6520 Glenwood av., a clerk in the office of the Family Loan corporation, 6349 N. Western av., with a revolver yesterday, a man who had posed as an applicant for a loan scooped $800 from the cash drawer and fled, Miss Coens told police.

World Charter O. K.'d by New Zealand House

20 Cyclists Hold Up Bank in Palentine, Take $12,000

JERUSALEM, Aug. 7 [Reuters]—Twenty persons cycled up the main thorofare of Tel Aviv, on the Mediterranean coast of Palestine, stopped outside a Jewish bank today, entered, and holding up the tellers with revolvers, made off with nearly $12,000.

91ST DIVISION TO LEAVE ITALY FOR U. S., PACIFIC

ROME, Aug. 7 (AP)—The 91st infantry division which played a distinguished role in the final fighting in Italy, will be redeployed to the Pacific via the United States, U. S. army headquarters announced today.

The 91st [power driver] division will be the third infantry division to leave Italy in August. The 10th mountain division, also Pacific bound, is already en route home and the 85th which is to be deactivated is scheduled to sail the middle of the month.

Paint Splashing of 2 Boys Costs Mechanic $200 Fine

Clarence Edwards, 20, of 1519 N. California av., a mechanic, accused of splashing paint on two boys, was fined $200 and costs by Judge Jacob M. Braude in Boys' court yesterday on a charge of assault. The charges were made by Robert Richlee, 10, of 1324 N. Claremont av., who appeared in court with his head shaved and said he had to go to a hospital to have paint removed from his eyes, and Charles Costello, 8, of 1320 N. Western av.

NO LESSENING OF DRAFT CALL FOR 18-30 MEN

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, (AP)—Selective service held out little hope today for any relaxation in its draft policies toward able-bodied men between 18 and 30.

In a monthly report to the house military committee, it asserted that "factors beyond its control" are making necessary and will continue to make necessary the continued induction of large numbers of men in the 18-30 group now deferred as essential workers or farmers.

Current draft calls of approximately 100,000 monthly, the report explained, cannot be met fully with youths becoming 18 years of age.

New Warden Appointed at Michigan City Prison

Ralph Howard of Indianapolis was appointed warden of the Indiana state prison at Michigan City by Gov. Ralph Gates yesterday. He has served as warden of the state farm at Putnamville and the reformatory at Pendleton.

Petain Witnesses Tell of Negotiations

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 7—The existence of a working agreement between France and England, which remained in effect thru the entire German occupation, was described today by one of its sponsors, Jacques Chevalier, 63, dean of Grenoble Literary college, who appeared as a star defense witness in the Petain trial. He came to testify from Fresnes prison, where he is being held because he was at one time minister of education in the Vichy regime.

The secret accord, which proved invaluable both to France and England, was engineered by Ambassador Halifax, then British foreign secretary, said Chevalier, and was put into effect with the full assent of then Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Petain. Chevalier said he and Pierre Dupuy, Canadian minister, acted as go-betweens in the brief negotiations preceding the acceptance of the agreement.

[The British officially have denied such an accord.]

Tells of Negotiations

As outlined by Chevalier, the agreement was concluded early in December, 1940, a few days after Dupuy called on him with a message from Halifax, who had been an intimate friend of Chevalier ever since they attended Oxford university together.

In the message presented by Dupuy, said Chevalier, Halifax stated that England wanted to resume contact with the French government, and counted on Chevalier to act as intermediary. Halifax proposed that the two countries maintain a "state of artificial tension" in order to avert German suspicion that the French might be violating article 9 of the armistice convention, which stipulated they should take no action unfavorable to Germany.

Fleet's Fate Involved

In addition to this, Halifax proposed that the French should keep their fleet and air and naval bases out of German hands, that they should retain their colonies, and that they should do nothing against any allied action in their colonial possessions, Chevalier testified.

In return Halifax promised that the British would allow passage from North Africa of food supplies, gas, oil, and coal, on condition that they would not go to the Germans, the witness stated.

On Dec. 5, 1940, the day after receiving Halifax's message, Chevalier presented the proposals to Petain. The latter asked more details about the colonies, and insisted that the "artificial tension" be changed to "artificial coolness."

Chevalier said he and Dupuy spent the evening drawing up the official text, which they presented to Petain on Dec. 6, receiving his entire agreement.

Tells Churchill O. K.

Dupuy left immediately for London with the text of the agreement, and Chevalier stated he wired Dec. 9, "Everything okay," which meant that Churchill had accepted the agreement which went into effect immediately.

Chevalier added that the Gibraltar passage was opened to the French and the imports permitted by the English prevented shortages and the paralysis of French industry and transport.

He asserted that H. Freeman Matthews, then first secretary of the United States embassy at Vichy, and now assistant head of the European division of the state department, came to see Petain about the agreement on Dec. 31, while Adm. Leahy, United States ambassador, had talks with him about it shortly afterward, and on April 6, 1941, President Roosevelt sent Petain a personal message on the subject, said Chevalier.

When Chevalier completed his testimony, presiding Judge Paul Mongibeaux said: "You know Churchill has denied the existence of such an agreement."

Chevalier replied, "No, not this agreement."

Another witness who described negotiations for an agreement between Vichy and Britain was Adm. Jean Fernet, former secretary general of the Vichy council.

ARMADA OF B-17S REMINDS NAZIS OF YANK POWER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MUNICH, Germany, Aug. 7—A huge armada of B-17 Flying Fortresses has arrived at the air field at Holzkirchen, near Munich, where it will be kept as a reserve for the American occupation air force.

Holzkirchen, which Gen. Patton of the United States 3d army uses as his air field, is one of 10 bomber and 10 fighter stations the United States has established in Germany to insure peace in central Europe while negotiations are under way to obtain additional air bases in countries we helped to liberate.

To Germans who witnessed the devastation that can be wrought in one air raid, the row upon row of heavies on the air field near the 3d army's headquarters at Bad-Toelz are a grim reminder of defeat.

GEORGIA PASSES NEW CHARTER IN LIGHT VOTE

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 7 (AP)—Georgia adopted a new constitution today in light voting. The "streamlined" charter to replace the 1877 model, which has been amended 301 times, was championed by Gov. Ellis Arnall. Returns from 111 of the state's 159 counties showed 39,333 votes for the constitution and 16,222 against. The new document will make constitutional abolition of the poll tax—a step already taken by statute—and will throw various safeguards around state finances so their manipulation by a governor will be more difficult.

DRAMA OF FAKE HOSPITAL SHIP'S CAPTURE IS TOLD

force Liberator from a base near Darwin, Australia, sighted the ship leaving the Kai Islands and heading southwest. Adm. Kinkaid, commander of the 7th fleet, ordered Capt. W. A. Watson, Washington, D. C., commander of the destroyer division, to send two destroyers into the Banda sea to intercept the Tachibana.

Capt. Watson picked two destroyers, commanded by Lt. Comdr. Gerald Joyce, Green Bay, Wis., and Lt. Comdr. William Siasons, Detroit, Mich.

About 9 o'clock on the next night the destroyers found the ship near the tiny Api Islands, still heading southwest. Her three 15 foot red crosses glowed. Deck lights and open port holes twinkled impudently.

The destroyers followed her all night, keeping her on the horizon. Aboard one warship Capt. Watson and his officers and men were busy planning. According to international law a boarding party must go unarmed. The boarding party commander was Lt. Comdr. Ernest Peterson, Council Bluffs, Ia., executive officer of one of the destroyers.

Job Full of Danger.

The job was dangerous. There was every chance that should arms be found the Jap crew and "patients" might try to overpower the searching party and hold them hostages. Should that happen, the destroyers were prepared to sink the Tachibana. Many of the boarders wrote letters home to be mailed only if they did not return.

At 6:45 a. m., a few minutes after the full light of tropical morning, the destroyers pulled alongside the Tachibana. One, on starboard, hoisted a signal flag to stop ship. From the other side the other destroyer raised its signal. The Jap ship stopped, rolling in the rough sea. The Japs lowered the gangway and the boarders came alongside.

Peterson jumped from the bouncing gig and climbed the gangway. Behind him came Lt. James Baley, Columbus, O., the ship's engineer, Lt. Robert Kowetz, Roxbury, Mass., who was to conduct the search, and Lt. Louis Cartall, Marfa, Tex., the ship's doctor.

The Nip captain, dressed in a loose white shirt, white trousers, and wooden clogs, showed all the gold in his teeth, bowed, and nodded. He invited Peterson and the officers into a circular lounge under the bridge. They declined. He asked an orderly to bring tea.

Cartall went into the troop quarters to inspect the patients. Baley hurried to the engine room to cut the electrical system and thus prevent the discharge of any mine. Kowetz, wearing a telephone and stringing a line behind him, began his search. With him were 11 sailors, including Daniel Spurr, 1016 S. Oakley blvd., Chicago.

Fit for Combat

The doctor returned soon to the bridge. He said three-fourths of the "patients," most of whom were listed as ill with malaria or beri-beri, were fit for combat. Only one was a litter case. The only injured "patient" was a Nip who had lost a thumb when a crate dropped on it.

Lt. Cartall said, "Actually, you can't call it a hospital ship accurately. There was no surgery, no X-rays, nor a place for decent treatment."

The only semblance of a medical room was a cubbyhole with a surgical table. Cartall said the presence of only three doctors for more than 1,500 patients was ridiculous for a hospital ship.

On the bottom deck a three foot square hatch opened into the hold. "Food and medicine," the storekeeper said.

"Open up," Kowetz said. His crew jerked the hatch up and pulled out a sack nearest the opening. It held rice. The storekeeper grinned. Next came a case of saki. The sailors removed a box and pried it open. It was full of artillery shells. So was the next.

"Mickey Finn!" Kowetz shouted into the telephone. "Mickey Finn" was the code that signaled the discovery of arms. Kowetz and his crew grabbed the two cases of shells and ran for the bridge.

"Mickey Finn, send them over," Peterson said into the walkie-talkie radio that connected him to the two destroyers.

Nip Captain's Face Red

He told the Nip captain contraband had been found, that he was under arrest and that his ship would be seized. The Nip turned red and stammered he didn't know of any arms aboard.

Three boats standing ready on the destroyers dropped into the rough water and, with engines running full, bounced toward the Tachibana.

Within five minutes 70 sailors and marines were aboard, all heavily armed. They scattered over the ship.

Sailors and marines spread barbed wire barricades around the two big main deck saloons, which held the bulk of the troops. In one of these large rooms a wooden platform had been built between the floor midway and the ceiling, providing an upper deck. On this and on the floor about a thousand Japs sprawled. In a second saloon crates marked with red crosses, indicating they contained medical supplies, were piled three feet deep and on these some 500 Nips squatted, sat, or lay. The stench was nauseating.

The only sanitary facilities for these 1,500 Nips was one three place latrine. For washing there were two lavatories.

Three sailors ran up the American flag. Below it they put the Jap Rising Sun. For the first time on any ship an American ensign flew above Nip colors.

Electricians, including Nicholas Thome, 6557 S. Fairfield av., Chicago, prepared to darken the ship. They disconnected the big crosses. But when dusk came light leaked from the ship. It was a question of blacking out completely to lessen the danger of a Jap sub attack or keeping some lights on to assist in guarding the prisoners. The crew decided on some lights.

On the destroyer the crew led the Nip captain to a shower. He sat down in it until showed that showers are taken standing up.

The Tachibana and the destroyers arrived at port at 8 a. m. Monday. Troops lined the pier to see the Japs brought ashore. Among the guards was Earl Lightfoot, Chicago.

The prize crew will remain aboard for some time because it will take several days to uncrate and list the ship's arms.

The Tachibana, 1,772 tons, 279 feet long, was built in 1935 for passenger service in Japan's Inland sea. In 1943 she was painted white and given the red crosses of a hospital ship.

... the kite that made history

IT WAS just a simple, home-made kite that Benjamin Franklin used in 1752 to lift the veil of mystery from the lightning flash . . : a piece of silk cloth stretched over two crossed sticks.

Yet it was a dangerous experiment . . . this one with the kite. For Franklin courted death as well as lightning with his cloud-flying contrivance.

But Franklin lived to report on his momentous discovery that lightning was, in fact, electricity . . . and to go on from there. He went on to invent the lightning rod—an invention that has saved lives and property beyond calculation—and to other experiments and other discoveries.

That was nearly 200 years ago... but already in Franklin, the scientist, aspects of American character were revealing themselves . . . ingenuity, inventiveness, intrepidity!

And it is American character that you reflect—and uphold—when you buy and hold War Bonds. So buy them often. And buy them for keeps!

IF you naturally like "first nights," best sellers, hit movies—be among the millions to start "The Unsuspected" in this week's Post.

We have put Charlotte Armstrong in our own editorial hall of fame for one of the outstanding writing performances of the year . . . and especially for creating a truly different mystery story, a story in which all the sacred rules are ignored, all the orthodox patterns discarded.

You are never in doubt as to who the guilty person is. And your suspense is more intense because of that. Here is sparkling change—intriguing technique—something new and fine and very exciting. It is recommended in the belief that it will make you squirm from suspense as much as we did.

The Daring Young Man of Wall Street

by Matthew Josephson

THE shrewd, bellicose Robert Ralph Young is known to today's financial world as "the fair-haired boy of modern railroading."

The story of his meteoric ascent—from a hundred-dollar-a-week statistician to "emperor" of one-tenth of America's railroad system—reads like a tale from Arabian Nights.

How he secured control of the defunct Van Sweringen interests for a song is told in the first of three parts. An epic of cool daring, seldom equalled in the American business scene.

We Put the Flattops on the Night Shift

by Comdr. Turner F. Caldwell, Jr., USN as told to Lieut. Philip H. Gustafson, USNR

NIGHT fighters now shoot Japs out of black tropical skies—land safely on the little deck of a night-encircled carrier. The naval commander who pioneered this "new experiment in suicide" gives you a flattop view of the technique that stopped Jap night marauders—a rich legacy for air-line passengers of the future.

MAD NIJINSKY SEES RUSSIANS; LAUGHS, DANCES

Wife of Ballet Artist Hopes for Recovery

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 7 (AP)—The great but insane dancer Vaslav Nijinsky broke his 26 year silence, laughed, danced, and capered like a youth before a Russian army campfire, so overwhelming was his joy in fraternizing with troops of his native land, his wife said today.

Vaslav Nijinsky

"The Russians were marvelous to us," Mrs. Romolo Nijinsky said in her Hotel Sacher residence behind the ruined opera house. "They gave us food, joked, laughed, and capered with my husband. He began to speak again with people of his native land. They even made him drunk, which was naughty of them."

Refugee in Coal Mines

The world famous ballet dancer's first known performance since his reason snapped in 1919 was 50 miles from Vienna at Sopron in May, shortly after the Russians had overrun that section close to the Hungarian frontier. Nijinsky and his wife had sought refuge there and in near-by coal mines from almost daily air raids.

His wife, a personable writer, lecturer, and former dancer, said the 54 year old Nijinsky's mental condition still precludes interviews but that he now asks for what he wants. She said Russian officers declared he "often was completely articulate" while with them.

Insulin shock treatments in a private asylum in Switzerland "practically cured" the dancer before the war broke out, his wife said, but the harrowing experiences of the war years, including bombardments and constant travels, caused his condition to deteriorate.

Sees Hope of Recovery

Mrs. Nijinsky said his reborn speech was an indication that he was again moving toward recovery.

"The principal difficulty now is undernourishment," she said. "We can't continue to ask the Russians for help. My hope is to get to America or London where all my funds are. My God, if I ever get once more to America, I will never leave again."

Currency restrictions cut off their funds.

The Nijinskys were in Budapest, Hungary, when the United States entered the war and were interned, but allowed to remain in a home. Mrs. Nijinsky earned money by writing, but this was forbidden after a while. She said Hungarian Jews aided them financially.

Nijinsky's daughter, Kyra, lives in Florence, Italy.

"It's my fault, dear. I told him anybody who has been driving a jeep could drive any car."

Three little kittens born on July 4 in the Englewood police station have located themselves next door to it. They've been adopted by engine company 51, whose station adjoins Englewood police. DE GAULLE MEN SPLIT ON FORM OF LEGISLATURE

Cabinet Meets Again Today in Row

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 7—Gen. De Gaulle's 21 member cabinet in four hours' debate today failed to reach a decision on the formula for constitutional referendum to decide France's future form of government and the method to be followed in holding elections set for next October.

No announcement was issued after the cabinet meeting which was stormy and marked by strong disagreement between the Socialists, Communists, and other leftist elements and the moderates. The cabinet will resume discussions tomorrow morning.

It was said that while the cabinet debate was impassioned it did not go so far as to threaten the cohesion of the De Gaulle government. The major dispute centered on the form which the constituent assembly to be elected by popular vote this fall would take. Should it devote its attention exclusively to drafting a new constitution for the country or will it be soverign in power and able to censure or even bring the De Gaulle government while it is drafting this constitution? Furthermore, should France's new constitution provide for an assembly of one or two houses?

Wants Assembly Curbed

Gen. de Gaulle favors a constituent assembly with limited powers. Probably most of his cabinet, made up of resistance men, Socialists, and Communists, desire a sovereign assembly.

In the ensuing debates it will be decided whether an agreement can be reached on a compromise formula for the constitutional referendum which has been drafted by Socialist Vincent Auriol. That formula would give the constituent assembly power of scrutiny over government action while it is preoccupied with drafting the constitution. Its censure would not necessarily cause the fall of the government as in usual parliamentary practice.

Behind the sovereign assembly project, which was overwhelmingly favored by the consultative assembly, is the fear of the Communists and Socialists of a dictatorship and their belief also that their hold on power is augmented by a unicameral rather than a bicameral legislature. De Gaulle desires a bicameral assembly with a senate as a conservative check on France's multiple and volatile political groups.

600 to Be Elected

De Gaulle and his cabinet must also produce a satisfactory plan of voting for the October elections which will be held to elected 600 members to an assembly of whatever type is agreed upon.

Here again there are disagreement and efforts to maneuver for political strength.

If the cabinet should reach a decision on the referendum and elections in tomorrow's session it is expected that Gen. de Gaulle will broadcast tomorrow night or the following day on what plans and principles for voting it proposes.

TITO DEMANDS REPUBLIC, END OF MONARCHY

BELGRADE, Aug. 7 [Reuter]—Marshal Tito, newly elected president of the Yugoslav united peoples front, made a strong plea to the national congress here today for a republican form of government and the destruction of the "reactionary bands" still hiding in the forests.

The time had come, Marshal Tito said, to discuss the question of the monarchy, which had been postponed under the agreement made between himself and Dr. Ivan Subasic, minister for foreign affairs.

During the war, he asserted, King Peter's name had been associated with acts by Gen. Draja Mihailovitch, leader of the Chetniks, and Gen. Milutin Neditch, Serbian prime minister "who had collaborated with the Germans against the liberation movement."

Tells of Chetnik Attacks

Moreover, whenever there had been large scale attacks by the Chetniks against the Partisans, the king had "always decorated the Chetnik leaders."

"The Yugoslav national liberation council decided for these reasons not to allow the king to return to the country in 1943," Tito added. "The monarchy would inevitably try to overthrow the new democratic institutions. Therefore, the mass of the Yugoslav people is openly republican."

Thruout his speech, Tito repeatedly referred to help given by "international reaction" to reactionaries in Yugoslavia, and to campaigns abroad against the Yugoslav liberation movement.

Still Hide in Forests

The rebel bands still hiding in the forests were not an organized armed force, he said, but the relics of Quisling forces.

Taking advantage of the thick cover of the Bosnian forests, they occasionally attack isolated Partisans and officials.

U. S. FREES 15,000 UNJUSTLY SENT TO GERMAN PRISONS

FRANKFURT, Germany, Aug. 7 (AP)—American military authorities said today they have freed more than 15,000 inmates of German prisons after a review of their cases disclosed they were unjustly sentenced.

Capt. John J. Reymond, Ann Arbor, Mich., of the army's legal branch, said so many releases have been approved many of the 40 prisons in the American zone are finding it difficult to operate without outside help to work in gardens and do other chores formerly performed by inmates.

A military review board at Munich examined 7,549 cases, and released all but 1,064. Of 6,000 inmates still in prison in the American zone about 1,000 were convicted by nazi courts, but the sentences were deemed just. The remaining 5,000 were convicted by military government courts for curfew violations and other petty crimes.

AUSTRIA TO TRY 4 ACCUSED OF KILLING 102 JEWS

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 7 (AP)—Four Austrians will go on trial Monday accused of murdering 102 Jews. Dr. Otto Nahrhaft, judge and lawyer for 40 years and now president of the provisional government's court of justice, will preside.

New Prison for Nazis

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Top ranking Nazis held as prisoners of war will be moved shortly from Mondorf, Luxemburg, to the Nuernberg jail, where they will be held for the approaching major war crimes trial, it was disclosed today. They will lose their status as war prisoners and be held without bail as civil criminals.

Trial in Prague

FRANKFURT ON MAIN, Aug. 7 (AP)—Karl Hermann Frank, Nazi protector of Bohemia-Moravia, was flown to Prague today to stand trial, probably at the end of this month, as a war criminal. Guards said Frank has been rude and arrogant all during his imprisonment here.

NAVY OFFICER IS PUT ON TRIAL IN 'ARSENAL' THEFT

Accused of Stealing 42 Cases of Weapons

New York, Aug. 7 [Special]—The navy today began prosecution of the biggest larceny case in its history, the court martial of Lt. Comdr. Equen B. Meader, 36, of Forest Hills, N. Y., on charges of filling up 42 wooden cases with weapons and ammunition and shipping them here from Africa as personal belongings.

The courtroom of the New York navy yard in Brooklyn was turned into an arsenal as the machine guns, automatic rifles, and bayonets which the navy accuses Meader of stealing were arranged as exhibits.

All Types of Weapons

Navy officers said Meader is facing 12 charges containing 101 specifications and involving 180 stolen weapons. The loot, they said, included hand grenades, mixed pyrotechnics, and live ammunition. The government alleges that Meader appropriated the various articles while stationed at Mers-el-Kabir, Algeria, as executive officer of the naval station there.

As the case got under way no hint was given as to what use Meader intended to put the weapons he is accused of stealing. John E. York, chief ordnance mate, and one of the prosecution's first witnesses, testified that ammunition in unlabeled boxes shipped by Meader aboard the U. S. S. Kearny, a destroyer, endangered lives and property.

Attended Annapolis

Lt. Comdr. Allen Blank, USNR, is prosecuting the case, assisted by Lt. Harold E. Magnuson. The navy has spent seven months preparing the evidence, it was said.

Meader served overseas for 18 months and wears one battle star for his part in the North African invasion. He attended the naval academy at Annapolis but transferred before graduation to Princeton, from which he was graduated magna cum laude in 1935. He was in business in New York when he volunteered for overseas duty in August, 1942.

The array of exhibits, it was said, includes captured enemy equipment as well as British, French and United States army and navy munitions.

VOTE TO INDICT POLICEMAN ON CHARGE OF RAPE

True bills charging William Beck, 33, of 1102 Webster av., a suspended policeman, with rape and contributing to the delinquency of minors, were reported voted yesterday by the grand jury. Beck, who is married and the father of five children, was arrested and suspended from the police force July 25.

The charges were made by two girls, 14 and 15 years old, who live in Beck's neighborhood. The alleged attacks occurred in his automobile July 17 and 21.

Beck recently was discharged from the marines after serving overseas for two years. He was a policeman for nine years, and was assigned to the N. Damen av. station when he was suspended.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Jeanne Thorkildsen, 2019 N. Karlov av.]

THE QUESTION

WHERE ASKED

Insurance Exchange Building, 175 Jackson blvd.

THE ANSWERS

Thomas Kerr, grain broker, 5302 Ohio st.—I like that new hair style where the hair is all swept up on top of the head and tied with a little ribbon. Either that or some kind of an upsweep hairdo is my first choice. Thus the hair isn't hanging down on the girl's neck and it looks as if attention had been given to its care.

Martin Norman, personnel work, 422 Melrose st.—Hair is naturally pretty and can be even more attractive if properly cared for. I like to see long, natural looking hair that's well-brushed and has just a slight wave in it, with some soft curls on the ends. Long hair emphasizes femininity, and that's fine!

Corp. Alfred Amundsen, 1805 Congress st.—I think few women look well with their hair up. That needs a doll-like face that's really something to look at, because an updo attracts attention. To look sweet and unsophisticated, I think a girl should wear her hair long—none of those boyish bobs or feather edge cuts.

M. H. Miller, insurance broker, 1621 Division st.—In a windy city like Chicago, every girl with long hair is usually outdoors only a few minutes before her hair is all snarled. A short haircut with curls is probably the only practical way for a girl to wear her hair here. Short hair is easier to keep clean, too.

Nathan Spirs, insurance adjuster, Morrison hotel—Nine out of 10 women these days are running around with long hair that's neither clean nor neat. Because they don't have the patience, the time or the ability to keep long hair in shape, they should by all means wear it short and take care of it.

Coxwain Harry Dakulil, Hammond—There's nothing more attractive than long tresses on any girl. I don't care how well they look with short hair or with their hair done up—they still look better with it long. These pinned up hair styles look pretty, but all you can do is look at them.

BANDIT ROBS LAUNDRY DRIVER

A Negro armed with a knife held up Morris Kahens, 6362 N. 73d st., laundry truck driver, and robbed him of $65 near 69th st. and Eberhart av. yesterday, Kahens reported to police.

GRAIN ELEVATOR EXPLOSION KILLS 13 IN ONTARIO

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Aug. 7 (AP)—Recovery of three additional bodies tonight brought to 13 the total known dead in the explosion that wrecked a 2,000,000 bushel storage elevator near here today, and caused officials to revise downward their previous estimate of at least 19 killed.

Site of explosion

It was believed that most, if not all, of the workmen trapped in Elevator No. 5 of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, Ltd., had been accounted for. Earlier, in the confusion of the blast, officials said the death toll might reach 20 to 35.

A score of seriously injured workers were taken to the hospital. The storage elevator was one of the largest at the head of the Great Lakes.

British Troops to Stay Longer in Southeast Asia

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Aug. 7 [Reuters]—British troops in this command are to forego a previously shortened period of overseas service so as to carry out "certain operations" against Japan this year, Adm. Louis Mountbatten, supreme commander in southeast Asia, announced today. Instead of going home after 3 years and 4 months overseas service they will do an extra 4 months in this theater.

REPORTS HIS AUTO STOLEN

Martin Hibert, 4437 N. Mason av., told police yesterday that his car was stolen from in front of 1215 S. Halsted st.

JAPANESE FLAG BROUGHT BACK BY NAVAL VET

Chief Petty Officer Thomas R. Johnson, 36, of 4131 W. 21st st., home on a 30 day furlough after 18 months in the Pacific, yesterday took to the war relocation authority office a Japanese battle flag covered with inscriptions and names of Jap soldiers.

Typical of the Japanese mind, one message reads, "To a fellow who is going to die as a shield of the emperor, I wish you luck." This and other greetings were deciphered by Corky Kawasaki, 5323 Wayne av., a Japanese-American. All were written apparently by Jap soldiers.

Johnson said he got the flag from a Filipino guerrilla on Luzon Island in the Philippines.

Soap Spills from Truck; Neighbor Ladies Clean Up

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 7 (AP)—Three barrels of soap powder fell from a truck on a street here today. Neighborhood women rushed to the scene with pots, pans and boxes. The truck driver salvaged one barrel which did not break open.

Can the life of steel products really be increased by 4 to 1?

"Sounds impossible" you say? Well, before Pearl Harbor you would have been right.

Then something happened. A startling discovery that means you may soon be able to buy washing machines, automobiles, hardware, many important metal items that can outlast any you've ever owned before by 4 to 1!

The discovery is CORRONIZING, a miraculous new weapon against corrosion and rust. Invented by scientists of the Standard Steel Spring Company, CORRONIZING is a new alloy "armor" that outlasts other rust-resisting coatings for steel.

This is no mere claim. It has been proved in the war, on land and sea in every kind of climate. Progressive manufacturers and retailers will soon be able to bring you products made with "Corronized" steel. Motor car makers—always a step ahead—may be among the first to offer this sensational advantage.

So watch out for the wonderful new products that will be made with "Corronized" steel. They can defy rust . . . keep their beauty and safety years longer . . . increase the service you get for your money as much as 4 to 1.

A SPIRITUALIST'S LARYNGITIS HAS SPIRITS RASPING

Voices from Other World Also Choke a Bit

(This is the fourth of a series of articles based upon an investigation of Chicago's mediums by Miss Rose Mackenberg, former investigator for Harry Houdini, the magician.)

BY E. W. WILLIAMSON

In the pitch darkness of a rear room at 2651 N. Central Park av., the Rev. Frank Joseph, come Wednesday night, conducts a "developing class" for spiritual neophytes, with trumpet readings thrown in free.

Miss Mackenberg and I arrived early, and found the room almost insufferably hot. One of the women present had anointed herself with pungent smelling spirit oil.

After several hymns, the Rev. Joseph, altho suffering from a bad case of laryngitis, discussed spiritualistic powers and urged his audience to believe, adding that "Doubt don't git us nowhere."

Collect 50 Cents from Each

When 50 cents had been collected from each person present, the lights were turned out, the windows were shut, and the doors were locked. The room became still hotter. The Rev. Joseph sat at a table beside which stood two aluminum trumpets about four feet long. Miss Mackenberg explained to me that these were for the spirits to speak thru, after they had been properly invoked.

Following five minutes of silent concentration to attract the proper spirit forces, the medium, with the air of a hopeful school teacher, asked each member of the audience what he had seen or felt during the silence.

One woman said she saw a pale red light. The medium said that was a good sign, because red was a good spiritual color, altho if it had been dark red, it might have meant danger.

"Ouch," said Miss Mackenberg. "Someone pulled my hair."

"The spirits did that," said the medium.

Miss Mackenberg inquired who it might have been and the medium said he felt the spirit of a young boy standing beside her. Further questions elicited the medium's belief that it was her "son."

Everyone Knows John

The medium said he was hearing the spirit of John and asked if anyone there knew John. Apparently everyone did. So the medium instructed the members of the audience one after another, to inquire, "Is it for me?" The first few inquiries were answered by a single rap. The fifth, however, was greeted by three raps, and the spirit of John, speaking in a faint voice and apparently suffering from laryngitis, told the inquirer that he was happy.

Another woman held an emotional conversation with several deceased members of her family, whose voices, all singularly afflicted with laryngitis, came from the trumpet.

Occasionally the trumpet voices were so weak that the medium had to repeat them in his own voice, a procedure which Miss Mackenberg later informed me never is necessary unless the medium has a cold.

At this point Miss Mackenberg mentioned that she felt faint, and someone unlocked the door and let us out.

"Son Harold Appears"

Earlier we had attended a meeting at 3424 N. Avers av. conducted by the Rev. Lena Schaefer. This was a basement room, neat and clean, fitted up as a small chapel, a rostrum at one end facing several rows of chairs.

The small audience apparently was composed entirely of middle-aged neighborhood women. After several hymns and a talk on mediumship by Mrs. Schaefer, she began giving platform messages.

Placing her hand on her shoulder, she said she felt the spirit of a young man. Miss Mackenberg inquired if it could be our "son" Harold who had been killed in an explosion. The medium said it was, that she saw Harold standing beside Miss Mackenberg, and that Harold resembled her. She said she saw the figure three, and that that might mean that Harold had suffered three hours or three days.

She told me she seemed to see a large "A" above my head, and wanted to know if I didn't sometimes see white forms. When I helpfully said I did, she told me I could have great powers.

Baby's Operation Approved

Then we inquired about an imaginary baby we were planning to take to the hospital for an operation, and she said everything would be all right. She said the baby was nervous. She said she saw an elderly woman who parted her hair in the middle and wanted to know who that was. When Miss Mackenberg told her that was an aunt, the medium said the aunt was going to watch over the baby and make everything all right.

At the time Miss Mackenberg was working for Houdini, the magician had a standing offer of $10,000 to any medium who could produce a phenomenon that Houdini could not duplicate by natural means. The money never was claimed. Exposing fakers among mediums was Houdini's chief delight, and in doing it, he duplicated all the phenomena Miss Mackenberg reported to him, and even threw in a few frills of his own.

I asked her to tell me about some of them.

"One of the commonest," she said, "is for the medium to read and answer questions in sealed envelopes. This is ridiculously simple. The medium ordinarily rests her left hand on a small cushion, which is dampened with alcohol. Passing the envelope over this alcohol dampened cushion makes the envelope sufficiently transparent for the question to be read.

Bares Slate Reading Fakes

"Then there is slate writing, where messages purporting to come from the spirits appear on blank slates. In one form of this trick, where two slates are tied together with a piece of chalk in between, the chalk is really half powdered chalk and half iron filings. It follows a magnet drawn over the other side of the slate by the medium, producing a faint but readable line.

"Another form is a simple switch. The subject sits in front of a dark curtain, while the medium holds a blank slate above his head. An assistant behind the curtain passes over a slate on which a message has been written, and this is substituted for the blank slate.

"The trumpet trick, where the voice of a spirit appears to come thru a trumpet, is equally simple. Of course, it is the medium's voice. The trumpet reading is always performed in a dark room, so that the manipulation of the trumpet cannot be seen. Various devices are used to cause the trumpet to 'levitate,' or float in the air.

Paper Switching Is Easy

"Another common trick is the old pellet-switch, where a subject writes a question on a piece of paper, folds it, and hands it to the medium. The medium accepts it, rubs it across his forehead, answers the question, and hands the paper, still folded, back to the subject.

"The trick here is that the paper which the medium rubs across his forehead is a blank piece of paper which has been substituted, by sleight of hand, for the paper on which the message is written. This latter has been dropped into the medium's lap, where it is easily read. After the question is answered, the two pieces of paper are switched again.

"Materializations, in which spirits appear as a luminous mass, are done with a thin, filmy cloth treated with luminous paint. Sometimes this is concealed in the medium's sleeve, sometimes in the finger of a glove. There are even instances on record of mediums who were able to swallow a sufficient quantity of luminous cloth, and bring it forth when needed.

"Virtually all the equipment needed for these tricks is available at magicians' supply houses. The spiritualistic papers even advertise trumpets and other spiritualistic paraphernalia."

I asked why, in view of this, the persons who consult mediums do not question the possibility that these appliances are placed on the market to cheat them.

Desire to Believe Is Aid

"Mediums tell their followers that these devices are to help the spirits in their difficult task of manifesting themselves in the darkness of seance rooms," Miss Mackenberg explained.

"They will tell you that luminous paint is used only to make seance apparatus visible so that the audience may be aware of the miraculous feat of their moving and floating by their own power."

"But how," I persisted, "can normally intelligent people be so gullible?"

"It isn't so much that they're gullible, as it is that they want to be deceived," explained Miss Mackenberg. "The bereaved mother who visits a medium in search of contact with her dead son is hoping against hope that maybe she will succeed. She WANTS to believe the things she sees and hears. She is disarmed beforehand. It is that fervent desire to believe on the part of his customers which makes the medium's job easy. Nowadays business is so brisk they don't even bother to dress up their deceptions to make them look good. Why should they, when they can get all the business they can handle with few mechanical tricks?"

NEW RECORD IS SET BY PLAYGROUNDS IN SALVAGE OF PAPER

Chicago's playgrounds collected 238 tons of waste paper last week, the largest collection in any week of the summer salvage drive., The total collected for the last six weeks is 916 tons.

William H. Bennett, chairman of the campaign, said the playgrounds would attempt to keep collections equal to last week's in the campaign windup. It ends Aug. 24.

Supervisors of the leading playgrounds will receive war production board citations at a luncheon Friday in the Morrison hotel.

Children in the vicinity of Cornell Square park, 51st and Wood sts., who opened their second anual water ballet last night in the park pool, collected a ton and a half of waste paper by offering free admission for each 25 pounds.

HOW DOES CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEAL?

THE DISAPPEARANCE of organic and functional disease, as well as of trouble in other forms, is continually recorded among those who have turned to Christian Science for help.

The method of such overcoming of difficulty is prayer—a spiritually scientific manner of thinking based on the teaching of Christ Jesus.

What this prayer is and how anyone can understand it and use it effectually in accordance with his need are fully explained in the Christian Science textbook,

IS BRITAIN SOLVENT?

When the Labor party government takes over the Bank of England, in accordance with plans announced by Prof. Harold J. Laski, the head of the party, there ought to be a full disclosure of the size of the gold pot held by the bank. This has been a top war secret, which has been well kept. Usually well informed authorities in talking about the British gold reserve use a very wide range of figures.

The British mobilized their reserves for war by transferring their gold to an equalization fund managed by the Bank of England for the treasury. Since the transfer was made no figures have been made public. During the early years of the war, and especially before lend-lease, it may have been sound policy to withhold from the enemy figures which could be used for propaganda purposes by him. But since 1941, and especially since the end of the war in Europe, the refusal to make a full disclosure has had no military justification.

The British themselves are getting fed up with the secrecy. The London Economist recently, after tossing some figures about in trying to get at the size of Britain's reserves, finally exclaimed, "Is it not time that authentic figures were regularly published, both of the exchange account and of overseas indebtedness?"

It seems beyond question, however, that Britain has accumulated large quantities of gold. Gold production has continued without serious diminution in South Africa, the world's leading source. Producers are required to sell their whole output to the South African government, which has retained less than a quarter of the new output. Where is the gold? It isn't in Africa and it isn't in the United States. It seems more than probable that the missing portion will turn up in the British exchange fund.

Britain also has dollar exchange in large amounts. This accumulates as a result of American spending and the operation of the sterling bloc, consisting of the member states of the British commonwealth of nations and the dependent colonial empire. Members of this group surrender to the United Kingdom all foreign currencies obtained in their international transactions, and receive in exchange deposit credits at London in pounds sterling. Thus, when the American army spends some of our money in India, the dollars that we pay are promptly sent on to London to the treasury's foreign exchange pool. The amount of the dollar holdings is another secret.

To be sure there are sterling balances to the credit of the bloc, and these are now said to have run up to 12 billion dollars, but the balances are frozen. As Prof. Alvin Hansen, an adviser of the federal reserve board recently pointed out in his book, "America's Role in the World Economy," this 12 billion dollars can only be used to make payments between members of the bloc. Furthermore, "exports to countries outside the sterling area are permitted only if payment is made in a foreign currency."

The British have recently made much of the poverty the war has brought them. It is pointed out that Britain cannot feed herself and lacks most of the necessary raw materials for the operation of her manufacturing and for rebuilding. British imports for more than a century have exceeded exports. The balance was paid with income on foreign investments, and payments for shipping, banking, insurance, and other services.

Some of the investments were sold during the war, before lend-lease, to raise money to pay for military supplies. Investment income is said to have declined from 800 million dollars a year to somewhere between 200 and 400 millions a year. It is also stated that British income from shipping may be smaller after the war. The 12 billion dollars of frozen sterling balances are also mentioned in setting forth Britain's poverty.

It may be entirely true that Britain is bankrupt, but before making up our minds about that we should like to see an honest and complete balance sheet. We want to know just how much gold there is in that fund at the Bank of England. We can accept the 12 billion dollars' worth of frozen sterling as a liability, but how much do the offsetting assets amount to in the form of dollars remitted to London from India and Egypt? What is the amount of the dollar account accumulated in London from the expenditures by our army and navy, and by the soldiers and sailors individually since we first landed troops there?

The unsupported and incomplete stories of British poverty need to be documented. They are told with the obvious purpose of getting 14 billion dollars of lend-lease indebtedness and 4½ billions of World War I. debts wiped off the books. There is also talk of further large gifts. Before action along any of these lines is taken, the whole situation of the British should be revealed.

FOR THEIR COUNTRY

Maj. Richard I. Bong encountered 40 Japanese pilots in combat and shot them all down. None of them ever touched him. He knocked the last 10 out of the sky while he was supposed to be instructing other fighter pilots and was not expected to engage in combat at all. Winner of the three highest army decorations, he continued to serve his country as a test pilot. Monday some defect in a jet propelled plane did what the Japs never could do, Bong was killed in the explosion and crash.

Maj. Bong was a Wisconsin boy from a town named Poplar. He worked on his parents' farm and was a student at Teachers' college when he entered the air force at 20. No one knows what gave him his unequaled combination of skill, courage, and steady nerves. America is fortunate that her sons always have been able to shield her in time of peril. She has given them the faith for which they readily give their lives.

It is a tragedy that so many of the best of our youth have been sacrificed, but the country stands safe. We owe everlasting honor to their memories for that. For our dead young flyers dedication to duty was the highest reward. Each as he fell knew that he had given all that can be asked of any man by his country.

Maj. Bong's name goes on the roll of the great flyers whom the nation will remember with solemn pride. Capt. Colin Kelly, who made his bomb run on the battleship Haruna in the first days of the war, is there. So is Lt. Edward H. [Butch] O'Hare, who single handed repulsed a flight of seven Jap bombers attempting to attack his carrier, shooting down five.

Lt. Comdr. John Charles Waldron, commander of torpedo squadron 8, of whose 30 officers and men only one survived in an attack of unexampled courage at the battle of Midway, is there, too. So are two of the marine flyers at Midway, Capt. Richard E. Fleming, who crashed his dive bomber on the deck of a Jap warship, and Maj. Lofton R. Henderson, who dived his blazing, bomb laden plane down the smokestack of a carrier. And another on the long roll is Lt. Col. William E. Dyess, almost a one man air force on Bataan, who survived the infamous death march after the surrender, only to die when his fighter plane crashed in California.

Maj. Bong will be among worthy companions. Others of equal gallantry will carry on the fight.

THE AIR OF FREEDOM

Atomic energy was an achievement by all men who love freedom. For security reasons, the research which produced the bombs that are devastating Japan, and which some time in the future promise the world a major technological revolution, was carried on in this country.

Also, it is doubtful whether any other nation could have furnished the production genius to put into execution the theories of the pure scientists. That genius was in this generation uniquely American. An Englishman, for example, discovered the marvelous curative properties of penicillin, but it took American production methods and the scientific organization very like the production line to advance the manufacture of penicillin from the laboratory flask to the 10,000 gallon vat.

But to help forge the terrible weapon of the atomic bomb the Danish underground spirited Niels Bohr, that nation's greatest physicist, out from under the eyes of the Gestapo. He appeared in time in this country. Enrico Fermi, the Italian who was thought for a time in 1935 to have discovered the nonexistent 93d element when he came upon U-235, had left his own dictator-ridden country and threw in his lot with freedom. Still earlier, a woman mathematician of the race whom Hitler persecuted so cruelly had fled the nazi terror, taking with her her theoretical studies which pointed to the potential power of the uranium isotope. From the universities of Great Britain came some of the world's most brilliant physicists. Canada mobilized its physical scientists on one phase of the problem at a Canadian university. The University of Chicago was headquarters for the bulk of the research.

Entirely aside from the isolation that made America the most suitable site for the project, and the production technology available in this country, the very air of America was best suited to such an undertaking by men of many nations. This country has for more than a century opened its doors to the people of Europe. The great bulk of the immigrants have been humble workers, but among them have also been many men of high intellectual attainments. In recent years some of the most brilliant scientists of Europe have chosen to make new homes in this country. It is a trend which unrest and distress of that continent will probably continue for a long time.

The bulk of the research, of course, depended on American trained men, not only for attention to the thousands of details involved, because we had the greatest pool of scientific man power, but also for a very large share of the leadership. And in the American contingent there was a far greater spread of racial origins than in all of the scientists who came from across the seas to lend their aid. It is one of the peculiarities of America which fits this country for world leadership, that in this country, more than any country in modern history, we have been able to take the talents of other countries, amalgamate them with ours, and make the people who possess them one with us.

Even assuming, as is probable, that the terrific power of the atomic bomb will bring a speedy victory in the war against Japan, the struggle to harness atomic energy for man's benefit has only fairly begun. We know that atomic energy has as great potentialities for peaceful benefits as it is now demonstrating for destruction in war. Its secret is now shared by the English speaking peoples, a fact which is bound to arouse the jealousy of other races to whom, nevertheless, we dare not confide it. The very possession of this new weapon, and the secret that makes it possible, makes essential that the United States remain militarily dominant on land, at sea, and in the air.

Already in discussion in ruined Tokyo is a grandiose scheme for rebuilding the capital in solid structures, possibly with a heavier grade of tar paper.—Detroit News.

Mussolini's widow wishes she and her husband had gone to America, as they planned, years ago. That's one thing we were saved.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Many persons seem to think that Uncle Sam ought to go farther than merely guaranteeing their pursuit of happiness—and catch it for them.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

TALL TALES COME TRUE

The atomic bomb, which has given this war its largest blast of news, is no novelty to addicts of a form of light reading that has acquired a trade name—"science-fiction." For many years they have been viewing this method of obliterating the human race with horror and alarm, and then have dropped their bedside books to fall into slumber unhaunted by nightmares. Science-fiction fans are far less numerous than murder mystery fiends, and their favorite reading matter has always been treated with scorn by literary critics, but their hour of triumph has struck. The prophecies that amused them have come true, unless the American experiment on the Japanese city of Hiroshima was a failure.

* * *

We believe that the atomic bomb, as a literary contraption, was invented by H. G. Wells 40 or 50 years ago. Our first acquaintance with it, at any rate, dates from Wells' scientific fantasies of that period. We forget the title of the tale but vividly recall the effects of Mr. Wells' atomic bomb. After tearing its original crater in the heart of some unhappy city, it continued to eat away its environment until it cleaned off everything in the county. Hell continued to pop for weeks.

* * *

Wells was also the first imaginative writer to deal with pitchblende, chief source of uranium, with which, it seems, atomic bombs are loaded. His novel, "Tono-Bungay," which is not science-fiction, contains an account of an expedition into Africa to locate a deposit of this mineral, with some eloquent and stimulating remarks about the mysterious possibilities of the rare elements, including radium, which are found in it. This was written in 1909, when radium was in its childhood, aged 11.

* * *

In recent years science-fiction has had its own pulp paper magazine, whose files are rich with short stories about atomic bombs and other terrors of the laboratory. The writers in this field regard H. G. Wells as the Old Master, but also pay homage, now and then, to Jules Verne.

AFTER THE FURLOUGH

All lovely things are short in permanence;
The regal phlox swaying in mounds of snow,
The sky-blue morning-glories on the fence,
Pay sacred calls and suddenly must go.

The poppies flirt a while, their cheeks aflame,
Then tremble as the wind with scolding speed
Scatters their petals and their fragile fame
Is caught in cuddly cups turning to seed.

How like the poppy's bloom was your short stay,
How like the petals of a flaming flower;
Your thirty days of grace seemed just a day—
But I have planted seeds of every hour.

Annette Victorin

The Class in Astronomy

Thirty years ago our teacher informed us that Vega would smack the Earth into ethereal stardust and strew us across the universe like unto a filmy celestial veil glowing in perpetual autumnal gold.

"It has been calculated," he said, "that this event will occur in about 30 billion years."

My drowsy seatmate jerked upright. He rose, with trembling hands gripping the back of the chair in front of him.

"Wh-wh-whut?" he stammered.

"About 30 billion years," repeated old ox-eyes.

"O!" A long sigh of relief brought a flood of happiness to the lad's face. "I thought you said only 30 million years." The Smiling Fisherman

"IMMORTAL HAND"

You put the robin in his nest
But were not satisfied with that;
The Hand that dappled his small breast
Coiled steel into the crouching cat.

You breathed on dust and song began,
But with the same creative word
You put that in the heart of man
Which pounces on the singing bird.

What's Your Hobby?

Telephone songs, recently glanced at in this column, are a hobby of Clarence A. Swoyer, 1496 S. 4th st., Columbus, O. He may be the nation's chief authority on this branch of the Tin Pan Alley industry. His collection now contains more than 500 publications, and his records list about 500 other titles for which he yearns.

The Swoyer catalog starts with a piece of instrumental music, believed to have been first in the field. It is "Telephone March," composed in 1877 by E. Mack. [Bell's invention was filed for patent Feb. 14, 1876.] The cover design depicts a cornet player before a receiver, apparently broadcasting to Boston, China, and Ireland.

In the same year the first example of words and music on this theme appeared with the title, "The Wondrous Telephone." Its cover design is also a flight of imagination about the telephone's future in public entertainment. The drawing contains groups of people listening to a lecture, home music, the Thomas orchestra, and the opera, with the aid of the telephone, and also a family chat with the man in the moon.

"The Wondrous Telephone" was written and composed by Thomas P. Westendorf, cited as author of "I Will Not Forget You" and "Little John, Bottle John." The publishers were Balmer and Weber of St. Louis.

So that's why the University of Chicago dropped football—to pick up atomic bombs!

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

Mrs. R. B. writes: "My son will be home in a few days on a 30 day furlough. His automobile has been in storage since he went into service three years ago. Does he have to buy a 1945 license to use the car during his furlough? If he should be discharged does he have to have a 1945 license for the remainder of the year? How much gasoline is he entitled to for the furlough? We plan to drive to another state for several weeks."

Under a recently passed Illinois law service men on furlough whose cars have no licenses for 1945 may obtain a temporary license in the form of a windshield sticker good for 30 days at a cost of 50 cents. If the furlough is for a longer time the sticker may be renewed for 30 day periods at 50 cents for each period. Discharged service men may obtain a state license good until the end of 1945 for $1. Men on furlough are entitled to one gallon of gasoline a day. If discharged they must obtain an A ration book the same as any other civilian.

P. T. B. asks: "Can parents of a World War I. veteran who was their sole support obtain a pension from the government after his death?"

Not unless his death was the result of his service in World War I. Pensions are payable only to widows and children when death was not the result of service or service connected.

THE LIFE CYCLE OF A MOSQUITO

THE mosquito is small but, in spite of its size, may carry thousands of germs capable of spreading disease to man. In addition, its bite often proves unpleasant, particularly to those who are sensitive.

By knowing the life cycle one begins to understand the rationale of control. The females are the troublemakers because they are supplied with the equipment necessary for obtaining human blood. The male, on the other hand, lives on plant juices and could not nip if he wanted to.

The female lays her eggs in water and each species has a favorite site to bring up its family. Many prefer lakes or rivers; others, the sea. Certain types use swamps while others fancy muddy holes in trees or stumps; some even seek leaves or plants which hold moisture. One of the difficulties in eliminating the vermin is that when the nest dries up the eggs do not spoil, but lie dormant waiting for the next rain to refresh them. They then go on to hatch.

The eggs come in many shapes and contain a little air chamber which permits them to float. When numerous, they are grouped together like a raft. The anopheles, or malaria-carrying type usually deposits them singly and in the same locality. Under a magnifying lens they are brown and on the under side is a trapdoor where the young can escape. Hatching occurs in 3 to 4 days but, if the weather is warm, this may take place sooner.

Instead of baby mosquitoes coming from the eggs, larvae are born. This is the intermediate stage in their development and is not uncommon in insect life. They live beneath the water and, needing air, thrust a breathing tube thru the surface, like a submarine would its periscope. In time they grow but those who survive are lucky, as fish, dragon flies, and man attack them constantly. Since there are so many, however, some are bound to escape. Eventually, a shell forms about them and when this ruptures, the mature mosquito emerges.

After mating takes place the female needs blood to nourish her potential progeny. Here is where we humans come into the picture. She finds a likely spot on our skin and digs in. When filled almost to the point of bursting, she releases her hold and flies off. Fortunately for the mosquito, this process is painless to the victim for, by the time he feels the bite, the invader is usually on her way.

Other than the annoyance and the intense itching which follow, we could probably tolerate the pest. Of greater concern, especially in the south and tropical regions, is the possibility that organisms may be introduced while a meal is being consumed. Malaria, yellow fever, dengue, and elephantiasis are the main disorders capable of being transmitted in this fashion.

For successful eradication every one must coöperate—not just once in a while, but always. By the use of such insecticides as DDT or aerosol bombs, many can be killed. Large areas may be sprayed by utilizing the airplane. Swamps and rain filled buckets and tin cans must be drained to prevent suitable egg laying areas. By correctly applying oil to the surface, the tiny larvae cannot breathe and thus die off. To prevent being bitten, adequate clothing, netting, and the use of chemical repellents are of value.

The world is growing smaller. Regardless of where we live, no one knows when the infected variety will select us.

MALARIA AND BLOOD

N. S. J. writes: Is there a blood test to determine malaria or is the diagnosis made by symptoms only?

REPLY

A blood smear will usually show the parasite, especially if made before the chill. When such a procedure is not available, treatment is given in those presenting typical symptoms.

NOT ALL

E. I. W. writes: Is X-ray treatment helpful in acne?

REPLY

Some cases respond well to this therapy, but make certain that you are in the hands of an expert in this field. There is danger of worse after-effects if the skin is unusually sensitive.

B. M. R.

J. F. S. writes: What does a metabolism rate of 24 plus mean?

REPLY

Assuming that the test was done under ideal conditions, this reading can be considered high and indicative of overactivity of the thyroid gland. Skilled medical care is called for.

Uo Sounds Familyer

The English, who have a way of becoming extremely preoccupied with minimuscular matters that no one else would ever fool with, are working hard to make the world of the future an English speaking one. The first attempt was Basic English, which seems to be doing a magnificent flip-flop because it reduced the language to 800 words, none of which made it possible for a foreigner to ask for a bath or a free meal or to say his prayers. It was so simple an American or Englishman couldn't speak it.

The English, however, are by reputation an undauntable race. Today brings a brochure from B. C. Wrenick of Ashley Rise, Walton-on-Thames, a member of the Simplified Spelling society. Mr. Wrenick presents three new methods and wants to know what we think of them. All of these leave the language alone; they merely make it hard to spell.

One of the principal handicaps of the English language, they assert, lies in the vowels a, e, i, o, u as in the sounds eh, ee, eye, oh, ewe. These now are spelled in 53 different ways. The simplifiers say they should be spelled in only five ways.

If you think you can stick all the way thru this, draw a long breath, and the first class will leap into New Spelling, the first method. Here the vowels listed above come out as ae, ee, ie, oe, ue. All you do is add the letter e to each unadorned vowel. The second, S. O. S., or Simple Orderly Spelling [not Save Our Spelling], spells these: ai, ee, y, oe, eu. The third, the apostrophic method, merely uses an apostrophe after each letter: a', e', i', o', u'.

They have a few rules in common. C is not used except as ch in church. G is hard. J is soft; thus, sing, but sinj to burn. Q is not used. Kw is used instead, as kwel, kwest. R remains single after a long vowel, but is doubled after a short one: taring [but tarri], stori [but sorri]. S is never pronounced zzz. It hisses, as in hens [hence] and tens [tence]. To say hens, meaning fowls, or tens, meaning the numeral, you make it henz or tenz. In all of them you leave the article a alone, as you do he, she, me, be, no, so, O, and I. From here on you are in trouble.

One method spells of, to, and you as ov, to, and U. The other two spell to and of tu and of and leave you alone. One spells good wood and too soon as good wood, tuu suun; the others spell them as guud wuud, and too soon. One, New Spelling, makes a distinction between the heavy th, as in then, and the light th, as in thin, by making the heavy th into dh.

How this works out may be seen in examples of the three systems.

New Spelling:

In dhe sun, dhe muun, dhe skie,
In dhe mounteinz wield and hie,
In dhe thunder and dhe raen,
In dhe woodz and in dhe plaen,
In dhe litl burdz dhat sing,

The S. O. S.:

In the sun, the moon, the sky,
In the mountainz wyld and hy,
In the thunder and the rain,
In the wuudz and in the plain,
In the litl berdz that sing,

Apostrophic:

In the sun, the moon, the ski',
In the mounta'nz wi'ld and hi',
In the thunder and the ra'n,
In the wuudz and in the pla'n,
In the litl berdz that sing,
God iz se'n in everithing.

This department's sole comment is that some of our English cousins certainly have a lot of time on their hands. It seems much simpler to stop all education in the third grade and write valentines: Ie luv U. It iz pitifool, but dhat Ie duu. Y not stik with Chawser?

Germanic Folklore Now

The Evanston Review reports that the Baha'i temple [called "God's lemon squeezer" by the young whippersnappers of the north shore] has a new name. An Evanston soldier had to escort a truckload of German prisoners to Fort Sheridan and found, to his surprise, that he had been elected tour conductor with "on the left you will find ——" remarks expected. When he and party passed the temple, the P. O. W.s evinced great interest. "Why, that is the Chicago city hall," he explained solemnly. "You've all heard it wasn't on the square."

HOLDING BACK DEMOBILIZATION

Chicago, July 24—Pathfinder of July 23, page 5, quotes an OPA official as saying, "Sudden collapse of Japan would sink us," the theory being, as I see it, that a certain length of time must elapse between now and the return of our armies to permit reconversion so the nation can assimilate all the additional labor caused by an influx of soldiers.

If any one made such a statement in any seriousness, he was just plain nuts and should be jerked out of his position and sent to an insane asylum.

If the nation can keep large armies on foreign soil, feed and clothe them, and furnish them large quantities of equipment while they fight, then, in all common sense, it should be able to do the same thing when it brings them home. The boys would at least be here to give a hand in harvesting the crops that are now going to waste or not being raised for lack of hands.

My guess is that by the time the officials are ready to give the word to turn them loose from the army, most of these soldiers could have found useful employment for themselves if permitted to do so. A. W. MOORE

THE GREAT ENGLISH VIRTUE

Chicago, July 20—Why don't the great number who bellyache about the trimming which the English always give us put their fingers where the trouble really lies? Here we are, stronger in every way and with everything than any other country, yet helpless to help ourselves and satisfied with what we call leaders—leaders who never will stand for our rights. That's where the trouble lies.

We call ourselves a great democracy; but isn't England a greater one? There the people actually govern and at a moment's notice will throw out leaders who fail them. The English are for themselves first, last, always. Why can't we be that way.

JOHN W. ANDERSON

THE AMERICAN TRADITION

Chicago, July 23—Let me express my appreciation of your new feature "This Day in History." The people of our country need these reminders of the glories of our history. Schools do not give the modern children enough of our great tradition. The way they are indifferent to reducing it to something else is evident. "Let it go by default" seems to be the axiom, while the great thinkers are agreed there has never been on this globe so splendid an example of national liberty and progress under a wise system devised by the founders. ELMER LUERS

THE ARMY HOLDS ON

Decatur, Ill., Aug. 2—Gen. Hershey states he's going to draft 100,000 men a month, even after the war with Japan is over. That's 1,200,000 a year. Secretar of War Stimson states the army will release 800,000 men this year and will revise the point system to release another 700,000. This adds up to 1,500,000 releases, so our army will be reduced only 300,000 men by next June. The New Dealers seem to want to keep this war going on forever.

BOOTLEG DAYS RETURN

Roselle, Ill., July 24—We have not forgotten the abuse and calumny from the prohibition fanatics when THE TRIBUNE maintained that the recall of the noble experiment was opposed by the black market boys of those days, better known then as bootleggers. It would run them out of business.

You were vindicated. Let's hope you don't lose the present battle. In spite of the Bill of Rights, the OPA is still operating a la Gestapo. If it's patriotic to report black market operators, why assure anonymity to the accuser? Quote: "If you wish, your name will not be used to investigate." Just phone! It's cowardice to refuse to face the enemy at the front at peril to life, but patriotic to refuse to face the enemy on the home front. No respectable person honors an anonymous letter. It's prima facie evidence of cowardice, if not dishonesty.

So it's open season now for nitwits with fancied grievances or inferiority complex to persecute the little man around the corner. The black market boys can safely torture an honest operator out of business by repeated unsubstantiated accusations, unleashing the OPA bloodhounds. Sooner or later some unintentional error may be detected, resulting in criminal charges and subsequent fines. The good old bootleg days are back again!

ELEVATORS SAVE PUFFS

Forest Park, Ill., July 15—In today's paper you have printed a picture and description of a new apartment building to be built. Chicago certainly needs new apartment buildings. However, I see that its design is the old three flat walkup. Don't the people who plan Chicago's apartment buildings believe in elevators? Or is there a law against that convenience? As one who comes from New York and knows what it means to ride up instead of having to puff and puff, I am anxious to see Chicago go modern and start building attractive elevator apartments for the middle class, because, doggone it, I have to rent these walkups and I don't like it! R. H.

TWO-WAY STRETCH

Chicago, July 23—Commenting on the experience of "Incipient Nudist" and his troubles with masculine not-worth-mentionables, the less expensive, if any, garments are being made without elastic inserts, under the sanctimonious pretense that the rubber is being conserved on account of the war. But for $5 one can buy these garments with elastic all around the waistline.

Will the parties responsible for this bit of conservation please explain?

Restaurant Owners Rap Red Point Cut

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP)—Office of price administration officials agreed tonight to restudy red point rationing for restaurants after witnesses from several states testified "hundreds" had closed or would close.

Following the testimony, Max McCullough, OPA deputy director for rationing, told the senate small business committee he would confer again with the industry advisory committee this week on the problem.

George R. Lesauvage, chairman of the OPA national restaurant industry advisory committee and president of the National Restaurant association, said he would summon a subcommittee for the conference.

Hit by Point Cut

Most witnesses testified that many small restaurants had been affected by a cut in meat, butter, and fat points as a result of an OPA order July 1 which reduced the maximum allotment of red points to .7 a point per meal per person.

Bayard Evans, a restaurant operator of nearby Arlington, Va., testified today before the committee that current prices for black market food in the nation's capital are like this:

Steak, $1.50 a pound; turkey, $1 a pound, duck, 75 cents a pound; chickens, 58 cents to $1 a pound; bluefish, 60 cents a pound; mackerel, 45 cents a pound; oysters, $5 a gallon, and tomatoes, $9 a bushel.

832 Close in California

William Bradford, secretary of the Southern California Restaurant association, said 832 of 5,058 restaurants in that area had closed. A general black market situation exists, he said.

Belief that 60 per cent of the 17,000 restaurants in Wisconsin must close or go into black market operations unless relief is provided by September 1 came from Elmer Conforti, secretary of the Wisconsin Restaurant association. "Plenty of butter and cheese as well as meat" is available, he said.

Lynes D. Boomer of the Detroit Board of Commerce, said surveys indicated "eight out of every ten" restaurants there would be forced to close soon unless point allocations are resorted.

Nicholas Kostatolus, Portsmouth, Va., estimated only 200 of the 1,000 restaurants in the Portsmouth-Norfolk area have red points left.

Simmons will also describe how he got the first word on the fate of the U. S. S. Houston, American heavy cruiser that was last heard from near Java on Feb. 28, 1942, and his coverage of the Shangri-La valley story on New Guinea.

The University of Chicago, which pioneered in atomic bomb research, will present a half hour dramatization relating the background of scientific toil and research that went into the creation of the bomb at 9 p. m. today on the Mutual network's "The Human Adventure." The program will be heard in Chicago over W-G-N.

'This Nettle Danger' . . . . . By William MacLeod Raine

(Copyright: 1945: By William MacLeod Raine)

SYNOPSIS: In the feud between homesteaders and cattlemen, Bruce Sherrill, leader of the homesteaders, is wounded. Bruce shot Ben Randall, son of old Jeff Randall, owner of the Diamond Trail ranch. Trapped, he rides to the ranch of Cliff Applegate, his chief enemy and brother-in-law of Jeff Randall. Linda Applegate hides him. While Bill Cairns' men search the ranch buildings Cairns remains with Linda and becomes insulting. Rod Randall, older half-brother of Ben, arrives opportunely and warns Cairns never again to annoy Linda. When her father and brothers return Linda learns Ben was shot in a fight—not ambushed. She hides Bruce because he is wounded and insists he be given shelter until he is able to travel, then they may turn him over to the law. Cliff feels they are betraying their friends. Linda quarrels with Bruce when he accuses the cattlemen of trampling down the homesteaders, and during the night he slips away. Then Linda and her father tell Jeff Randall what they have done. Jeff and Cliff quarrel bitterly. Bruce reports to the sheriff and is released on bond. He suspects Flack is a spy for the cattlemen. Bruce makes a trip to Washington. Cliff tells Sheriff Humphreys they are looked upon as traitors and double-crossers. Jeff calls upon the sheriff, looking for Bruce. When Bruce returns, Ramrod meets the stage and finds Bill Cairns, Wally Jelks, and Quint Milroy there, too. Ramrod has two saddled horses ready and he and Bruce ride away. In Washington, Bruce lunched with the President, having been one of his Rough Riders in Cuba, and obtained his promise to investigate the feud. While having dinner with the sheriff, Bruce's horse is shot.

INSTALMENT XV.

BEN INTERCEDES

Mary Randall, third wife of Jeff, came back from visiting her people at Redrock with a queer rumor she had heard, to the effect that the Applegates had picked up Bruce Sherrill, weary and wounded, had fed and nursed him, and sent him on his way.

She found Jeff irritable as a bear with a wounded paw. He was nursing not only a grievance but a hurt. The marriage of his sister to Cliff Applegate had cemented their friendship. He had liked all of the children. Now he felt an obligation to hate the whole tribe.

After two or three unhappy days she took her problem to Ben, whom she found sitting on the porch reading a magazine. Neither Ben nor Ned were her own sons. Ben had been 6 and Ned only a baby when at 17 she had married Jeff Randall, already close to 50 and with grown sons in homes of their own. Mary had been a good mother to her husband's little sons, and she had continued to love them even tho she now had two girls of her own.

Ben put down his magazine and rolled a cigaret. He knew Mary was troubled and he could guess why. The situation did not please him either.

"It's your father," she said. "He is unhappy, and all he can do about it is make life a burden for the rest of us."

Ben nodded. He was very fond of this dark eyed young woman who had given him love and care.

"If there is anything I can do about it," he said.

"I don't suppose there is. He sits there and broods, and if the children get in his way he barks at them."

"Father has a memory like an elephant. Mighty little chance of his forgetting or forgiving. Matter of fact, I don't blame Uncle Cliff much—or the rest of them. What could Lindy do when Sherrill showed up wounded with Bill Cairns and his wolves hard on the fellow's heels?"

"Your father won't take that into consideration. Bruce Sherrill had shot you down, so they ought to have turned him over to us."

"I don't like these homesteaders any more than he does, but you have to look at things as they are. Sherrill wasn't gunning for me. He knocked me off to save that nester Engle. In a way I'm kinda glad he did. Engle has a mess of kids, and I'd feel like the devil if I had killed him."

"Could you tell that to Jeff? Would it do any good?"

"I can tell him. Some day I'd have to get it off my chest anyhow. I'm not going to join him in a feud against the Applegates."

"There are the children," she sighed. "They don't understand it. How could they? All their lives they have adored Lindy and liked the boys."

"The thing is poisonous," Ben agreed. "Hand me my stick, Mary. I'll have it out with the old man. He'll probably skin me alive."

"I don't know what I would do without you, Ben," she told him gratefully. "You have more influence with Jeff than anybody else."

"Yeah," he scoffed. "You sure owe me a lot. I started the whole mess."

Mary gave him the walking stick and he hobbled to the small disorderly room his father used as an office. Jeff Randall's huge shapeless body was huddled over the table. With a stub of a pencil he was working out the net returns from several carloads of beef he had driven to Casper.

Jeff's school education had consisted of one term at a country school, and it made him sweat to get the correct answer to a simple problem in arithmetic. Ben did not hurry him. He knew that what he was going to say would bring an explosion from the old man.

Jeff looked at the sheet of paper dubiously. "You might check this, son," he said. "Save me from doing it over. I might of made a mistake."

The young man added the columns, made the subtractions, and handed the paper back to his father. "Right," he said.

"I had eight of Cliff Applegate's stuff in one car," Jeff mentioned. "I'll have to send him a check. He and I won't be doing business together any more."

"Why not?" Ben asked.

Jeff glared at him. "You know dadgummed well why not. Because he turned out to be a traitor."

"Aren't you taking it too hard, father?" Ben asked. "Uncle Cliff had to do what he thought was right. He held Sherrill a prisoner till he found out whether I was going to make the grade. Knew our boys were so mad they were liable to act crazy."

"Now my own son is throwin' in against me," Jeff shouted. "By God, I won't stand it."

"We want to be fair to Uncle Cliff, don't we?" Ben protested. "He had a wounded man on his hands. He couldn't have done less for a stray dog."

"This wasn't a stray dog," his father roared. "He was our enemy—and his. The fellow had killed you, far as Cliff knew."

"Look at it this way," argued the young man. "I ram-stamped in with my gun smoking and likely would have killed Engle if Sherrill hadn't stopped me. If that raft of kids had been left fatherless because of me I would have felt like a murderer."

"You talk like a fool. I won't discuss this with you. Shut up and do as I say. Engle had a gun in his hand, didn't he? You're too soft for this country."

Ben smiled, a bit grimly.

"Get this," Jeff stormed on. "We've got to fight against this riff-raff—or be licked. It's war. Either they lose or we do. It's not yore fault Engle had a passle of young uns. If he wanted a safe life he shouldn't come homesteading my water and plowin' up my land."

"I understand that," Ben agreed. "What worries me is this business of Uncle Cliff. Say he did make a mistake. We can't cut loose from him."

"I have cut loose from him," Jeff corrected. "It's done.

"If we don't make up with the Applegates, Mary will be unhappy," Ben continued. "So will the children. They have been close to us long as I can remember. It's like cutting off an arm."

"Don't tell me what I'm to do," Jeff cried angrily. "I'll decide who will be our friends and who won't. That girl Lindy may boss the Bar B B, but long as I'm alive I'll run the Diamond Tail and dictate its policies."

For the first time in his life Ben had come into direct rebellion against his father. He was an easy going young fellow who liked his fun, and he preferred the line of least resistance. But this involved a point he could not dodge. He had to stand his ground or admit himself a weakling. His eyes met those of the older man steadily.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by GAIL COMPTON

Aug. 7, 1945

WITH the small grain harvest under way, the managers of the two farms again are involved in their yearly argument over the use of the combine in threshing. The combine is used on the Wheaton farm and a steam powered thresher is used on the Fox river farm.

The Fox river farm men argue that the old time method of harvesting grain by cutting it with a binder, shocking the bundles, and then hauling them to a threshing machine is the best way of handling small grain. For them, one of the most important products of threshing is the big straw stack.

Straw Stack for Cattle

The farm has a breeding herd of almost 100 cows and the straw stack is used as winter feed and also as bedding. By using a combine, they contend, much of the straw and all of the chaff is lost. The farm counts on the beef herd getting a good deal of winter roughage from the chaff and straw. The men do not see any equity in a farm producing a good grain crop and then being forced to go off the farm to buy straw at around $18 a ton.

Their arguments are good. Farmers this year have been forced to set the combine's cutting bar high to avoid tangling the machine with the rank growth of straw. As a result, it is a common sight to see a stubble six inches high where a field of oats has been combined. A large amount of straw is lost this way. And when the men attempt to gather and bale straw behind a combine, a sizable amount also is left on the ground because the rakes will not pull it all together for the baler.

Combine Cuts Labor

Another fault of the combine is that it necessitates leaving the grain standing in the field until it is dead ripe. In this condition, it faces the risk of being flattened by a storm. The combine does not do an efficient job of handling the grain when it is down.

Combine enthusiasts are correct in their statements that the machine greatly reduces the labor of harvesting. The combine in these war years has proved a life saver for a small farm labor force. Without it large amounts of grain would have been lost.

Both sides have proof for their beliefs and the argument boils down to a matter of personal preference. Meanwhile, the arguments will get great satisfaction out of proving their points to one another.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

GARDENERS whose plots contain onions planted from sets in early March or early April should pull these bulbs before they start to rot. The standard rule is to harvest onions when 90 to 95 per cent of the stems have broken and lie flat. If left in the ground too long, the tops of the bulbs and the lower portions of the stem will become soft, making the onions unsuitable for storage.

Onions planted from seed have not reached this stage in northern Illinois, but set plantings are approaching the harvest period.

Pulled bulbs should be dried on screens in full sunlight for several days, or spread on the floor of a shed or other dry room. Do not place them on a cement floor because of the danger of absorbing moisture. When thoroly cured, they should be stored in onion sacks. These have a large mesh for air circulation. The bags may be hung in a garage or other dry place until freezing weather approaches, then transferred to a basement.

PEACHES HIGHER, GRAPES LOWER IN RATION LIST

Effective tomorrow, the ceiling on all peaches, except California Elbertas, will be 15 cents a pound, an increase of 1½ cents, James F. Riley, acting director of the Chicago area office of price administration, said yesterday. At the same time tomatoes will go off the ceiling list and grapes will drop 7 cents a pound to 18 cents.

Other changes in the weekly price list will include dry yellow and red onions [3 inches and over], 32 cents for 3 pounds, up 3 cents; white Arizona and California grapefruit, 11 cents a pound, down 2 cents; dry white onions [1½ to 3 inches], 25 cents for 3 pounds, down 4 cents; dry yellow and red onions [under 3 inches], 23 cents for 3 pounds, down 5 cents; white red-skinned potatoes, 28 cents for 5 pounds, down 1 cent; spinach, 12½ cents a pound, down 1 cent; sweet potatoes, 21 cents for 2 pounds, down 5 cents.

WRIGHT PLANE'S BRITISH 'EXILE' ENDING IN FALL

New York, Aug. 7 [Special]—The world's first airplane, in which Orville Wright and the late Wilbur Wright made their pioneer flight near Kitty Hawk, N. C., on Dec. 17, 1903, will be brought home to the United States from London about Sept. 15, the New York Daily News said today in a copyrighted article.

This is the first indication of the approximate date of the return of the famed "exile," altho last week the science museum at South Kensington, London, a branch of the British museum, confirmed reports published in this country that a journey home for the Wright plane was imminent.

The plane was sent to London as a guest exhibit by Orville Wright 17 years ago as a protest against the insistence of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington that a plane designed by the late Samuel P. Langley, at one time secretary of the Smithsonian, was the first plane "capable of flight."

JOHNSON RITES TO BE HELD IN SAN FRANCISCO

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP)—Funeral services for Sen. Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] will be conducted at the grave in Cyprus Lawn cemetery, San Francisco, Monday morning.

Lt. Col. Hiram W. Johnson Jr., the senator's son, said the services will be simple, in keeping with the senator's wishes. A committee of the senate will be appointed to attend the funeral.

Sen. Johnson, whose 28 years in the senate covered some of the most stirring events in the nation's history, died yesterday in Bethesda, Md., naval hospital.

Col. Johnson said he and the senator's widow will leave Washington with the body Thursday night in a special railroad car provided by the senate. In Chicago, the car will be attached to the Overland Limited leaving at 8:15 p. m., Chicago time, Friday.

In a message of sympathy to Mrs. Johnson, President Truman expressed regret at the loss of "a long-time personal friend."

Sgt. Lichenstein obtained a room for the family for the night at 2347 W. Madison st. and made an appointment for them with the Red Cross today.

WPB PREDICTS MORE LOWER PRICED SHOES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP)—A larger supply of inexpensive shoes was forecast today as the war production board lifted controls on the number of pairs that may be produced.

The revocation covers rationed and nonrationed lines of adults', childrens', and infants' shoes which sell at retail at an estimated range of $1.25 to $6.25. Work and dress types are covered.

WPB predicted improved supply in about 60 days. Controls are being lifted to encourage manufacture of these types, it said.

RESTAURATEURS HEAR RATIONING NEARS COLLAPSE

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 7 [Special]—OPA Director Bowles and his aids were accused today of dilly-dallying and buck passing while the entire ration program is on the verge of collapse.

The charge was made by E. C. Schlosser of Belleville, president of the Illinois Restaurant Owners' association, in his address at the opening of a two day convention of about 120 members of the association from central and southern Illinois.

Schlosser, who owns a restaurant in Belleville, predicted that his remarks may result in his being "kicked out" of his local OPA board, of which he is a member, but he would "stay there until they kick me out because they'll never make me resign."

"They used to call some of them burocrats but I say they are bungiocrats who don't know their business," the association president shouted. "How can they lead business men? There is no reason why theorists should assume the right of telling you how to run your business."

A buffet supper will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock followed by a "Musical Roundup" by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, whose members donate their services on this occasion as a courtesy to the Ravinia festival. Pierre Monteux will be among the performers, and it is expected that the Pro Arte quartet also will take part.

Trustees and guarantors of the Ravinia festival, the guaranty fund committee, and the chairmen and their co-workers of the coupon book committee are invited to attend the concert. Supper will be served by reservation at $1 a person and is planned especially for those who will attend the final concert of the Ravinia season Sunday afternoon and who wish to remain in the park for the festival association party.

Lake County Federation to Hold Meeting Today

Opening its summer season, the Lake County Federation of Women's Clubs will meet at 11 a. m. today in the Bonny Brook Country club, Waukegan. Hostess groups will be the Waukegan Woman's club and the Young Women's League of Waukegan.

You Can't Have Cake and OPA, Too, Bakers Say

If you want a piece of cake, reach for a slice of bread, instead. Preferably rye bread—it doesn't require sugar.

Chicago bakers hinted at such advice yesterday in a survey which disclosed that the office of price administration's slash of sugar quotas to such commercial users as bakers, beverage bottlers, and ice cream makers is sharply cutting the output of large operators and, in some cases, threatening the survival of the little fellows.

The quotas, set for the July-September period, vary from 50 to 60 per cent of the 1941 base period, and they are about 15 to 23 per cent under what the companies received last quarter.

Bakers said they were feeling their way thru difficulties by eliminating production of heavy sugar items and using substitutes such as honey for a curtailed baking of plain cakes and coffee cakes. But honey is hard to get and expensive. And possession of sugar coupons may mean just so much paper because it's hard, if not impossible, to buy sugar.

Big companies bottling soft drinks are slashing manufacture and rationing customers. One expects to carry the rationing into winter for the first time. At least two small companies said they were closing up shop for a while. Ice cream makers are rejoicing in the cool weather, which cuts down demand.

Ernest Dorner, vice president of Heinemann's chain of 12 bakeries, attacked "government bungling of the whole sugar program" and said Cuba should have been encouraged to produce more sugar thru better prices for its good crop two years ago. "What good is lots of wheat," he asked, "if we haven't any sugar to put with it?"

Roy Larson, manager of the main store of the Signe Carlson chain of bakeries, said the chain helped make its sugar last by closing down three weeks last month. Arthur Luxem, general manager of the H. Piper bakery company, said, "We're dipping into sugar we'll need next month."

Sam Davidson, founder of a bakery chain bearing his name, said his stores were closed from one to two weeks last month and are now working two to three hours less each day.

Dr. Franklin Bing, director of the American Institute of Baking, summarized the situation as "pretty dark" and the bakers' troubles as "multiple lacks—lack of sugar, lack of shortening, and, probably, a future lack of fruit."

Arthur Hardgrave, president of the Pepsi-Cola Bottling company of Chicago, said the sugar shortage means "going on the rocks for small beverage bottlers and bakers" and a severe hardship on the soft drink industry of the country. "I see no excuse," he said, "for shipping sugar to Spain and letting American industry suffer."

Elmo Del Grano, owner of the California Valencia Juice Co., Inc., said he was closing up this weekend until Oct. 1. Frank Mayer, owner of the Sunset Valley Orange company, is also closing until he can get sugar.

Joseph Burkhardt, president of the Henry Burkhardt [beverage] company, also said he might close his plant and added that brokers had told him sugar was not coming to Chicago. Mark Maxwell, general manager of the Chicago Dad's Root Beer company, however, said that his company's branches in the east were hit harder than those here.

Large companies reported their sugar supplies were coming thru. An official of one of the ice cream companies explained that the bigger operators were equipped to buy in car load lots and have the advantage of storage space. The man who must buy by barrel and bag suffers, he said.

Ravinia Takes On Festival Stature as Monteux Conducts Chicago Symphony Orchestra

There's nothing like a good beginning and a good ending to make people happy, and on that basis Ravinia's 10th festival season will go down as a rousing success. For as Artur Rodzinski began the Chicago Symphony orchestra concerts with warmth and brilliance, so Pierre Monteux is closing them with an ineffable, almost an Olympian radiance. The plump little French conductor with the curly black hair and the curly white moustache is one of the great men in music, and it is his special prerogative to shed light on music. His qualities of clarity, symmetry, proportion, and their culmination in an electrifying brilliance add up to one of the miracles of present day concert going. When you hear a Monteux concert you quickly understand the vast difference between an excited conductor and a conductor who makes music exciting.

Last night, returning for his fifth consecutive summer to an audience that would, if it had its choice, never let him go, Mr. Monteux began with one of those programs as comprehensive in style as those of older days under Frederick Stock. From Bach to Strauss he was a leader whose sole thought was not to display himself or the orchestra, but to let you hear the music as the composer intended. You have no idea, unless you spend all of your time at concerts, just how rare, indeed, almost how unbelievably rare, that is.

The Bach was the heroic Passacaglia and Fugue in C minor transcribed by Ottorino Respighi. The performance at its best had a biting brilliance, and exhilarating force of impact that made you realize what a remarkable orchestra we still possess, and how superb that orchestra could quickly become should it fall permanently into such wonderfully persuasive hands. The Beethoven was the fourth symphony, a revelation, as such scores are apt to be when Monteux conducts, of how the music should but seldom does sound. The orchestra played with a delicate deftness, a shining buoyancy that had people turning their heads to smile at each other, for it was pleasure that had to be shared.

After intermission the concert took a virtuoso turn with Ravel and Strauss and two rarely heard excerpts from Berlioz's dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet"—the episodes of the solitary Romeo and the feast of the Capulets, typical Berlioz, febrile in mood and prickling in texture, expertly played to make you wish we might have the full score some of these concert nights.

Ravel's "Alborado del Gracioso" was superbly played in that gala mood that holds the tension of the score without losing its supple brilliance, and the concert ended with the best "Tyl Eulenspiegel". I have heard in years. Always one of our orchestra's show pieces, it had Straussian richness, an impish sense of humor, and that necessary aftermath of compassion for a scamp who got what he deserved but had fun while it lasted.

The Lustrous Luce

Clare Boothe Luce made her debut as an actress Monday night at Stamford, Conn., tackling nothing short of Shaw's "Candida." Reports from the scene indicate first-nighters from Barney Baruch and Gov. Baldwin of Connecticut to Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, Tallulah Bankhead, Margaret Sullavan, Eva Le Gallienne, and Theresa Helburn. The performance? Quoting the candid New York Times, "Altho she seems simple and easy on paper, Candida is not a two finger exercise, and even in the freedom of a summer theater production she requires more experience than Congresswoman Luce could bring the part."

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, CAL., Aug. 7.—Walt Disney is planning another combination cartoon and live actor film in "The Little People," a story of Ireland written by Maurice Geraghty. Background scenes will be shot on the ould sod, and how about Barry Fitzgerald for the head leprechaun? . . . Another Disney natural is Isabel Ruthledge's new book for children, "Baldy Eagle, How He Became Uncle Sam's Emblem." It's for children, but they'll have to fight off the grownups to get a crack at it.

Movie on Studio Life

There is small chance of Vivian Blaine getting to do that Broadway show. Twentieth Century has just cast her for the star spot in "Girl in the Moon" because of the hit she made in "Nob Hill," a picture panned by the critics, but popular with the public. Her new picture will be about a girl who wants to get into pictures and will show a lot of inside studio stuff via the musical route. Vivian will go on a personal appearance tour with Tommy Dorsey's band after her present commitment, "Doll Face." She will resume studio work in December.

Star and Picture News

In regard to Deanna Durbin in "Lady on a Train," was that trip necessary? O, please, let's have our little Deanna back as she was before she took to travel. . . . Sam Wood's got Ginger Rogers back on the "Heartbreak" set—she's been out a week with makeup poisoning. Sam's laughing at the surprise turndown he recently got from Judy Gilmore, the messenger girl he gave a part in his picture. When he offered her a contract she refused it on the ground she'd rather have an education. She plans to go to the University of California at Los Angeles this fall. . . . Hear Lee McCarey, who's reading scripts at Lake Arrowhead, may dicker with Horace Jackson for his original, "Baleska." . . . Ann Lehr's got her show for the Hollywood Guild next Sunday at the Troc all ready and on ice. All proceeds will go to Ann's canteen.

Candidate for Youngest Pinup

Joan Carroll, the 15 year old actress you'll see in "Bells of St. Mary's," has just been named the pinup girl of a bunch of fightin' men—the 424th signal corps aviation unit. Corp. E. A. Brinkham V-mailed me the news from Calcutta, India. . . . Kurt Krenger, handsome blond hit of "Paris Underground," is 10th on the new screen poll—fast going! . . . Hear RKO's got its eye to the keyhole for a Laraine Day story; she's just given the studio two of its top money makers.

Here and There in Hollywood

Master Sgt. Ezra Stone [Henry Aldrich] phoned me to say he's off to the South Pacific in the entertainment division. . . . Listeet Veres, who's the lead with the Marx Bros. in their next movie, will arrive in Beverly Hills the end of this month. . . . Ray Milland postcards he'll be back from England in two weeks. . . . You can look for Spencer Tracy at the Waldorf Towers one week from today. . . . Everything went "snafu" with Vera Vague's daughter who jumped aboard her mother's plane when a surprise vacancy occurred, clad in bobby sox and sweater suit. She got bumped off between here and Chicago—had to wire for money to buy an outfit. . . . The "Mildred Pierce" release date has been moved up to Oct. 20. It's put Joan Crawford right back on top. . . . Wait till Reggie Owen cuts loose on the "Carmangole," first chance he's had to sing in the fillums—no they didn't mention anything about dancing. . . . There are 150 ways to lose hired help, but Ann Jeffreys pulled a nifty on herself when she took her maid along on a U. S. O. tour. They needed a maid in the skit. Ann let the girl play it and collect the regulation $100 a week. Now the maid's an artiste and Ann's haunting the domestic employment agencies. . . . Jane Farrar's taking Jeanette MacDonald's place in "Three Shamrocks," the Mike Todd musical show about Victor Herbert's life. Jeanette couldn't fill the engagement because of picture commitments.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	2 diamonds
2 hearts	3 diamonds	3 spades	4 diamonds
5 clubs	5 diamonds	5 spades	6 diamonds
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of spades.

There is not very much to the technique of the cross-ruff. The important point is to diagnose whether or not a hand should be played in that manner. Many times a declarer will have the choice between this line of play and setting up a side suit in the dummy. It is difficult to lay down definite rules to follow in these cases. The exercise of good judgment is required.

One thing is certain, before embarking on the cross-ruff boat, the player must be able to count in high cards and ruffs the number of tricks required to fulfill contract, always bearing in mind that if the lead is ever relinquished the opponents will no doubt lead trumps, in an attempt to spoil the party.

In today's hand East became the declarer at a contract of six diamonds doubled, which he failed to fulfill because he overlooked a fundamental principle of cross-ruff technique. The bidding was somewhat weird. No one seemed to have a clear idea of what was going on, and they all appeared to be swept away in the bidding rhythm. East's refusal to pass the five spade bid around to his partner, who might wish to apply the axe, was a gem of impropriety, but that is not the point at issue.

The king of spades was opened and ruffed by East. A club was ruffed in dummy and another spade in the closed hand. This thing went merrily on until the fourth round of spades at which point North discarded the nine of hearts. Declarer now awoke to the necessity of cashing heart tricks, but it was too late. He was able to cash only one of them and North was able to ruff the other and return a trump.

Declarer had been blessed with great fortune. All his trumps were high so that there was no danger of an over-ruff. He could count five diamond tricks in each hand and the ace, king of hearts for a total of 12 tricks. But in cross-ruffing it is very vital to cash the high cards in the side suits early before the opposition runs out of one of the suits you are ruffing and is allowed a discard of the suit in which you have your high cards.

Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy's search for black pepper, which was publicized recently in a Sunday Tribune column by Thalia, has come to an end. Friends who read of her vain effort to buy some have been provided her with an adequate supply. Two nurses at Michael Reese hospital, where Mrs. Cudahy's daughter, Miss Nancy Cochran, had her tonsils removed about eight years ago, read the article and forwarded some pepper. A Chicago friend also sent a supply to the Cudahys' Mackinac Island summer home, and so did a friend who is at the Virginia Hot Springs and another who is in Pennsylvania.

The Sheridan Handicap, originated in 1884 and named in honor of Washington Park's first president, Gen. Phil Sheridan, will be a featured race at the Washington Park track today. Parents Can Train Child to Be Unselfish

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"What do you think—can one train a child to be unselfish?" asked the mother of three. "My children are all so different in that respect, that I often wonder whether it is possible to train a child to be unselfish."

There is no question but that some people are born with the quality of selflessness in a high degree. Any one who is an observer of human nature knows that. You see mothers and sisters who have all had the same upbringing and lived in the same home atmosphere, who are different in that respect.

I believe we can in large measure train our children to fine relationships with their fellows. Included in this must be a concern for the rights of others; and in the case of those near and dear to us a desire, expressed in action, for their happiness and well-being.

Example and the whole home atmosphere are the most potent influences of all in this direction. A child who lives where considerateness is the order of the day, where giving is warm and enjoyed, must absorb some of it. And by giving I mean all kinds of giving: The giving of one's self in labor, in time, and the giving of material things, like birthday or other gifts, which have been bought with savings that represent real self-denial.

But besides example in unselfishness, which is an unspoken thing, I think children need some suggestion, some guidance, as for instance, in regard to giving Christmas and birthday gifts and saving for them, instead of always just receiving.

Over the years this combination of guidance and example will bear fruit, altho we always must bear in mind that the individual child is something to be reckoned with. All children will not respond the same to unselfishness in their parents, and to training.

Museum Opens Room Honoring Marine Heroes

The third anniversary of the landing of the marines on Guadalcanal was marked yesterday by the formal opening of the new Marine room at the Museum of Science and Industry. Guests at the event were Chicago men who served at Guadalcanal and families of fighters who fell there.

The Marine room was presented to the museum by Andrew Higgins, president of the Higgins industries which manufactured the Higgins landing craft, used in the landings on Guadalcanal and in following invasions. Exhibits include regular sized models of the landing craft, marine instruments such as operating gyroscopes, a lighthouse lamp, a large ship's bell, and a drydock operation.

Murals in the new room depict the planning and construction of an amphibious fleet and enlarged photographs of landing craft in action decorate the walls. Ship models show the progress made in water transportation from the day of the early Phoenicians and Egyptians to the present time.

In his speech of dedication of the Marine room, Higgins predicted that there will be room for all Americans to work in a "very needy and hungry world."

"I do not hold with those timorous skeptics who would sell America short and by negative prognostication create fears and dissensions amongst us," he said. "We are a young but sage people. We have taught the world to behave itself and saved for it the civilization of the ages.

"We are doing our utmost to restore it to normality so that people everywhere may live and enjoy their living. Can we not create an economy in our own midst that is full enough and resilient enough properly to take care of all of us in ever increasing high standards of life?"

After inspecting the new room, guests at the dedication ceremonies lunched together and then attended a coast guard demonstration of breeches buoys in front of the museum building. The demonstration was to show the method of transferring persons from ship to land and from ship to ship. A flag raising ceremony was held in the north court of the building.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

When Peace Comes

When that day comes, when that day comes,
And flags unfurl to beat of drums,
I shall not join the surging throng
Acclaiming peace so loud and long;
I think I'd rather stand apart
To offer prayers within my heart
And light small candles that will burn
For footsteps that will not return;
Remembering them all joy benumbs
When that day comes, when that day comes. M.

End to Endurance

There is an end to endurance! Now a reader says there is no convenient way of shortening "Am I not?" What is wrong with "Amn't I?" Several years ago my English instructor recommended "Am n't I?" and since then I have been using it despite many—and peculiar looks.

If there is any one who wants to argue about this [and I'm sure there is], will he please offer justification for the abominable "Aren't I?" EH.

Posture and Poise

"If I were a white collar girl looking for self-improvement and advancement," says that "model woman," Estelle Compton, "I'd pay special attention to posture and carriage, two vital points that make an impression even before a girl speaks.

"I'd stand and sit tall with midriff muscles stretched up, torso at a slight angle to the lower part of the body in order to give that broad-shoulder-narrow-hip-line effect that is so smart—a posture that keeps the body compact and prevents slouching or sagging.

"I'd practice standing with feet together, weight on the balls of both feet, probably with the ball of one foot drawn to the other foot with one ankle and knee slightly bent. With a little practice I'd be graceful at this.

"I'd study to avoid jerky motions, trying to make all movements smooth and rhythmical and continuous, one blending into the other. By doing this skillfully, particularly in an interview, I could always face my interviewer, even while coming into a room or moving about.

"I'd remember not to have an excess of curls, veiling, flowers, color, or make-up. I'd remember that grace and poise are not things added to a girl, but the result of taking away unpleasant mannerisms and motions which, when removed, leave the simple graceful poise for which every white collar girl longs."

Extreme Belts Are Vogue for College Girls

BY REA SEEGER

Costume accessories continue to play the most important "extra" part for any college wardrobe. New ideas click every season and some return in different versions.

This is the case with the craze for belts this season. The waistline this year is as defined as it used to be obscured under sloppy sweaters four to six sizes too large. All the smartest college girls are wearing belts around their sweaters this year—and around their dresses or any other outfit in their wardrobes.

The belts are anything but unassuming. They're extreme, wide, and decorative. Often, to make the most of narrow belts, three narrow models are worn as one. Not content with exaggerated width, the most popular belts are elaborately studded with nail heads in silver, nickel, and gold metal.

Dress parade belts are barbarically jeweled. They are set with stones of many colors. The stones are frankly fake rubies, emeralds, sapphires, and topazes.

Belts without jewels boast handsome buckles. Some of the smartest have as many as six small buckles. Belts three inches in width are only the ordinary ones. Widths of four and four and one half inches sound shocking, but it's the fashion.

If you want a particular belt, to contrast or blend exactly with a special dress or a skirt and sweater, and can't find just what you need in the current collections, you can have one made. Leather, such as calfskin, pigskin, and suede—or combinations of these—make the newest and the smartest belts. They are officially O. K.ed by the college crowd.

A belt with intricate narrow straps fitted with buckles and attached to a two or three inch wide simple leather belt around the back, makes the best decorative all purpose model for the average wardrobe. The prices for the leathers are high but well worth every penny.

Bunny Slippers

BY ELLEN BRUCE

Bunny slippers for children from 2 to 6 are simple to crochet and are a delight to the youngsters. The warm foot coverings are appealing with the long rabbit ears and pert face. These items make inexpensive gifts.

For instructions in crocheting the bunny slippers, No. 60, send 15 CENTS in coin [wrap coin securely] to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 230 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Thru the Looking Glass

Even tho the weather is warm and exertion rather trying even to think about, this remains the perfect season to reduce. You can get it over with this summer with a little less effort than you can in winter—and think of the fun you'll have appearing this fall and winter in the new and lovely role of a slender woman. You can buy smaller sizes and have your old clothes cut down—and won't it be a grand and glorious feeling.

For one thing, it's easier to eat less in summer than in winter. You can cut down on the calories almost without noticing it. Salads and fruits and lean meat and non-starchy foods are the best items of your summer diet anyway. You can cut down on your intake of alcohol, too, if that's one of the things you need to do. The social pace is slower—and when you're offered a cocktail you can always make the reasonable refusal that it's too hot to drink.

You can even exercise, even tho it is warm. The outdoors should be tempting enough to make you want to golf, swim, or play tennis. The more of this you can do with regularity the better. That regularity is important. If sports are out because you're a working woman, what's to prevent you from getting up earlier than usual in the morning, when it's cool, and either doing some setting-up exercises or walking a good part of the way to work? It will be wonderfully good for your figure. It isn't hard to keep it up once you get started.

If you can afford it, what would be even better would be to start off with some exercise sessions at a cool salon and to carry on the good work by dieting gently between times. In any case, you'll find it ever so much easier to lose weight now than you will in the winter, when we all are inclined to eat too much and to sit by the fire!

CONGRESS DELAY ON HUMAN NEEDS BILLS HIT BY AFL

See Strife in Changeover to Peace Economy

BY GEORGE HARTMANN

Congress was censured by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor yesterday for taking a long summer recess before acting on "vitally important legislation dealing with human needs during the post-war period."

The council released its condemnation thru William Green, AFL president, during his press conference after yesterday's second meeting of the AFL board's 10 day summer session in the Drake hotel.

Strike as Final Resort

The veteran AFL head predicted there would be labor disturbances, including strikes, in the post-war era, "because it is not easy for people in a democracy to change from a war emergency period to a peace economy without some strife."

He maintained that the AFL would "do all in its power" to avoid work stoppages, but said the "strike weapon was all that labor had to finally protect it interests when all peaceful attempts to solve labor disputes had failed."

In its statement censuring congress, the AFL heads urged President Truman to "exert his leadership in this critical situation and to send a special message to the returning congress urging immediate action on a well rounded program of post-war and social justice legislation."

Demand for Two Measures

The "must" legislation, the council said, should include passage of the Kilgore bill broadening the coverage of unemployment compensation and supplementing state benefits with federal funds, and the bill sponsored by the members of the senate subcommittee on labor which would lift minimum wage standards immediately to 65 cents an hour and provide a 75 cents an hour "floor" on wages at the end of three years.

Action of congress also was asked by the AFL council on the new post-war housing bill of Sen. Wagner [D., N. Y.] "which the executive council regards as the most important step to the prompt attainment of full employment after victory." This bill would provide the "impetus for the construction of 1,250,000 dwelling units a year over the next ten years," the council asserted.

Security Bill Passage Urged

Passage of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill, which would amend and broaden social security and institute a national program of health insurance, also was urged by the AFL leaders.

Green heaped praise on AFL skilled workers and AFL unions, which he said had "wholeheartedly" taken over the construction of the huge atomic bomb plants in Richland, Wash., and Oak Ridge, Tenn. He revealed that after conferences in Washington, D. C., before the "secret" plants were built, AFL international presidents had been asked to provide skilled workers for the projects.

John P. Frey, president of the AFL metal trades department, urged the council to draft an amendment to the national labor relations act "which would take the discretionary power for holding union elections away from the national labor relations board."

NEW CHEMICAL PUTS FLAME OUT IN 60 SECONDS

New fire fighting apparatus that sprays a blanketing mist of foam was demonstrated yesterday at the plant of the Douglas Aircraft corporation on Mannheim rd. The demonstration was staged by Douglas engineers and the chemists of Armour & Co., who developed the new substance from animal blood. Thirteen hundred gallons of gasoline were dumped into a pit and ignited. The mist, known as a firefoam stabilizer, was sprayed onto the fire. It was extinguished in less than 60 seconds.

U. S. CHARGES 12 LOOTED YANKS' BAGGAGE HERE

Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw issued warrants yesterday for the arrest of 12 Chicago high school pupils charged by United States Atty. J. Albert Woll with stealing war souvenirs and other articles from baggage of soldiers and sailors at the Union station.

The accused youths, who had summer vacation jobs in the station baggage room, are: Edward W. [Barrels] Mesik, 17, of 3139 S. Karlov av., described as the ringleader; Patrick D. Bonfield, 16, of 2128 S. Ridgeway av.; Loren D. Elk, 17, of 2345 Millard av.; Richard J. Preisler, 17, of 2447 S. Ridgeway av.; Merlin F. Krawczyk, 17, of 2529 St. Louis av.; Donald K. Lesak, 16, of 2403 S. Hamlin av.; Chester P. Olocki, 17, of 4146 Kenmore av.; Howard [Blackie] Risk, 17, of 1605 S. Homan av.; Richard M. Pederson, 17, of 3025 George st.; George S. Jarke, 16, of 1320 N. Claremont av.; Norbert Fiedler, 16, of 3654 N. Whipple st., and Frank J. Votava Jr., 17, of 1815 Wisconsin av., Berwyn.

Conspiracy Charged to All.

All were charged with conspiracy to steal from interstate shipments, under the federal juvenile delinquency act. Convictions under this act usually result in sentences to the National Training school in Washington, D. C.

Assistant United States Atty. Bernard H. Sokol, who prepared the information, said $1,500 worth of stolen property was recovered in the defendants' homes and in their lockers at the Union station. It was impossible, he said, to estimate the value of the articles unrecovered.

Cameras, automatics, watches, knives, sun goggles, a fishing kit, souvenirs of all kinds, flasks, women's jewelry, perfume, and service men's clothing were stolen, Sokol said, from duffel bags, suitcases, and other containers.

Sokol asserted the pupils operated as a corporation and contributed duplicates of any articles they stole into a common pool for sales to "outsiders." They did not keep more than one each of any article except cigarets, he added.

Charges Surprise Mothers

Mothers of three of the boys said they were surprised by the charges. Mrs. Ann Fiedler, stepmother of Norbert, said he had told her and his father a month ago that boys at the station were taking things from luggage.

"He told us he was called on the carpet for it," she said. "He didn't go back to work any more, but we didn't think much about it."

Mrs. Melvin G. Pederson, mother of Richard, said he had never been in trouble before. He quit a month ago. She said the authorities hadn't appeared to be concerned at that time. Mrs. Lezak, mother of Donald, also said she didn't know "what possessed him."

CONSTITUTION GETS BACKING OF COMMUNISTS

New York, Aug. 7 [Special]—The Daily Worker, chief organ of the Communist party in the United States, today published the full text of the constitution of the party adopted at its recently concluded national convention here.

In a preamble to the document, it is set forth that "the Communist party upholds the achievements of American democracy and defends the United States Constitution and its Bill of Rights."

Lip service is paid to democracy in the new constitution, but the preamble states the Communist party "recognizes that the final abolition of exploitation and oppression, of economic crises and unemployment, of reaction and war will be achieved only by the socialist reorganization of society—by the common ownership and operation of the national economy under a government of the people led by the working class."

One article states the purposes of the organization, one of which is the "realization of the historic aim of the working class—the establishment of socialism by the free choice of the majority of the American people."

FIVE SOUTHWEST PLAYERS JOIN ALL-STARS

SOX, SENATORS BATTLE UNDER LIGHTS TONIGHT

Caldwell to Pitch Series Opener

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

The White Sox, who confound their critics and even themselves as they stagger to and fro between the first and second divisions, will try their hand tonight at what seems to be the American league's current No. 1 problem—the Washington Senators. The latter have been tearing the circuit apart for the last six weeks.

Earl Caldwell

The Sox, who did well enough for themselves while keeping company with the Tigers over the weekend, now will have four chances to prove that they play no favorites. That, however, is not indicated by the results of their recent contacts with the surprising Senators. The latter swept a series of four games when here last month and later gave the Sox two more jolts in Washington. That's six in a row in case you are weak on figures.

Caldwell to Pitch.

Mr. James Dykes will have his after dinner specialist—the 40 year old Earl Caldwell—ready for the Senators this evening and if he does as well as he did last Friday in a night battle with the Tigers it will be plenty good enough. On that occasion he applied a coat of whitewash to the Detroiters' pennant plans. In one of his other night jobs he held the Yankees to one run. His other after dinner successes were over the Browns and Senators, the latter a three inning rescue stunt.

Boss Dykes isn't exactly shy on pitching talent but nevertheless isn't forgetting that Joe Haynes is on the mend and may become available for work within the next two weeks. Haynes suffered a broken right ankle sliding into third base in the game of June 17. He has been taking light workouts in uniform the last week.

They'll Pay for Early Leisure.

After finishing the four single games with Washington, the Sox will resume paying for the leisure forced on them by the weather early in the season. They play two next Sunday, a night game Monday, and an afternoon affair Tuesday, all with the Athletics. A week from this afternoon they put on a double header with Boston. There will be a Thursday night game and singles on Friday and Saturday with the same gang. Starting Aug. 19, the Yanks will be here for four days, during which there will be two double headers, one night game, and an afternoon single.

Veach, of Famous Detroit Tiger Outfield, Dies

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 7 (AP)—Robert [Bobby] Veach, 57, who spent 12 of his 14 years in major league baseball as a Detroit Tiger outfielder, died at his home here today after a long illness.

Bobby Veach

Veach, who piled up a lifetime batting average of .311, was a cog in two of the most powerful outfields in the American league. When he came to Detroit from Indianapolis in 1912, he joined Ty Cobb and Sam Crawford, and the trio drove many an opposing pitcher to the showers.

When Crawford retired and was succeeded in right field by Harry Heilmann, the Tiger outfield retained its fame as a powerful batting trio.

Veach was released to Boston by Detroit in 1923 and retired in 1925 after being traded to New York and moving to the Washington Senators on waivers.

Veach is survived by his widow and three sons, all of Detroit. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday in suburban Royal Oak and burial will be in White Chapel Memorial Park cemetery.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 7—The Cubs all were assembled here by supper time this evening and tomorrow will have their first shots at the Boston Braves, Del Bissonette style. In their previous 12 engagements with the Braves, Bob Coleman was their manager and the Cubs won nine of the 13. They will have five chances, weather permitting, in which to gauge how much the Braves have improved, if at all.

Ray Prim and Hank Wyse will see what can be done today about keeping the Cubs in the victory mood that saw them envelop the Braves in four defeats, part of the 10 straight with which the Cubs ended their July invasion of the east. On July 3 the Cubs won, 24 to 2, then followed up with 5 to 3, 7 to 6, and 3 to 2 triumphs. Wyse won the 3 to 2 series final.

Dodgers Won't Concede Anything

The Cubs were not first placers when they were here last month. They went into first place the last day of their second eastern trip, supplanting the Dodgers, present third placers, by beating the Phillies twice on July 8.

When morning detachments of Cubs arrived here today they found the Dodgerr lingering in rooms they had expected to get. With the two clubs in the same hostelry, there was enough interclub chat to reveal the Dodgers, rather scornful of the Chicagoans at times, have come to look on the Cubs as many others have for several weeks—as a good bet for the pennant. The Dodgers, who are distinguished for their persistence, have not conceded any pennants, however.

Play 4 Games in Brooklyn

The matter will become a face to face debate in Ebbets field on Aug. 15, 16, 17, and 18. Before then, the Cubs will have played five games here, four in Philadelphia. After the four in Brooklyn the Cubs will conclude their last eastern trip with four in New York. The Giants are one of two clubs in the league which are up on the Cubs. The Giants have whipped the Cubs seven out of 13.

The two teams which have an edge on the Cubs in season series will start a series tomorrow. That will be the Giants and Cardinals, in case you had forgotten, the Cardinals have beaten the pace setters seven out of 10.

76TH DIVISION TAKES LEAD IN GI BASEBALL

NUERNBERG, Germany, Aug. 7 (AP)—The 76th division took a one game lead in the 3d army's baseball title series today by beating the 71st division, 1 to 0, before 5,000 G.I.s in Soldiers' field stadium.

Ken Trinkle, former New York Giants' hurler, limited the losers to four hits and struck out five. Bill Ayres, who pitched for the 71st, gave up only six hits, but three were bunched in the first inning for the 76th's run.

CHRISTMAN IS LOST TO BROWNS FOR TEN DAYS

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 7 (AP)—Mark Christman, St. Louis Browns third baseman, who was hit in the head by a pitched ball in last night's game with Cleveland, had a comfortable night, Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club surgeon, reported today.

Christman, hit by Allie Reynolds' fast ball in the third inning, suffered a brain concussion and will be out of the lineup for 10 days, Dr. Hyland said. Leonard Schulte will replace him.

EVANS LEADS 32 INTO 2D ROUND OF CITY GOLF MEET

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Favorites, paced by Chick Evans of Edgewater and Harry Wohl, the medalist who remained mysterious for 24 hours, yesterday led a cast of 32 first round winners in the opening match play arguments of the 41st Chicago city amateur golf tournament at Jackson Park.

Evans, who won the 1944 title at the age of 55, gained this morning's second round with a 4 and 3 victory over Capt. Dene Zahn, overseas veteran and former University of Illinois athlete. Chick was one under par for the 15 holes.

Other Former Winners Advance

Now about Mr. Wohl, who led all qualifiers in Monday's medal play test with a fancy 68, two under par, before disappearing into the night. Harry is a pleasant 38 year old, who is the busy president of the Nicro Steel Products company, has played golf eleven years, and is a member of Twin Orchard Country club. This is his second appearance in the city tourney, he having failed to qualify last year. Yesterday, he shot a 75 in the course of winning a 1-up duel from Henry Brinker, unattached.

In addition to Evans, all other former champions competing in the six day show advanced. Ed Kletcke, the city fireman who won the 1941 title, was out in 33, one under par, for an ultimate 8 and 6 decision over Bob Oppenheimer of Ravisloe. Alex Zgorka of Burnham Woods, the blast furnace foreman who works o'nights and was the victor in 1943, played out for a medal of 73 while winning 4 and 2 from Otto Mark of the home club. Hymie Judelson, 1936 titleholder, had the toughest debate of all, being forced to square his match with Jimmy Taylor of Mid-City on the 16th and then to travel three more holes before he could win the 19th and the match.

Lou Esposito Upset

Best scoring of the day was submitted by Harold Mathisen of St. Andrews, only golfer other than Evans to win the championship four times. Harold, winner in 1934, 1935, 1937, and 1942, played out the bye holes after winning from Stanley Biels, unattached, 7 and 6, and finished with a medal card of 67, three under par.

Only upset was turned in by

N. U. Whites Win, 12-7, in Football Drill

Northwestern's 1945 football squad had its first full dress rehearsal yesterday with its new style of play, the T formation man in motion. The Whites, representing the pick of Coach Lynn Waldorf's summer squad, defeated the Purple eleven, 12 to 7, in Dyche stadium.

Jim Farrar, freshman quarter back from Cleveland, O., was outstanding among the new Wildcat backs. After a scoreless first period, Farrar pitched the Whites to a touchdown early in the second quarter. First he connected with a 20 yard pass to Max Morris, veteran end. A 15 yard toss to Bruce Bairstow, left half back, was good for 15 yards, after which Morris made a leaping catch of Farrar's third toss on the goal line. Farrar missed his try for extra point.

The Purple came back to match this touchdown and kick the point for a 7 to 6 half time edge when Dick Wilinski, freshman right half back from South Milwaukee, broke thru on a quick opener for a 65 yard scoring run. Bob Schmidt, freshman end from Rock Island, booted the point.

Reserves played with both squads in the scoreless third quarter. With the regulars back in the lineup, the Whites tallied the decisive touchdown early in the fourth quarter on a quick 50 yard march. Farrar broke thru on a sneak for 20 yards. Then he threw a flat pass to Bairstow, who ran 25 yards for the score. Again the Whites missed the point.

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 7 (AP)—Nineteen 3 year olds, the largest field ever to start in the Hambletonian, tomorrow will race for trotting's richest prize since 1932 with Titan Hanover such a heavy favorite that no betting will be permitted on the Harriman-Gerry colt.

Titan figured to be the 1 to 4 favorite to pull down the winner's share of the $51,046.96 purse in straight heats. Under the plan adopted, horses finishing second, third, and fourth will pay off at the mutuels.

The crowd is expected to reach 15,000.

Size of Field Surprise

The size of the field was a surprise even to horsemen, for never in the 19 year history of the buggy whip Derby has one horse stood out as does the little bay for which E. Roland Harriman and Capt. Elbridge T. Gerry paid $3,000 as a yearling.

The son of Calumet Chuck, trained and driven by Harry Pownall, established three world records for 2 year olds last year, including a two minute performance. He was beaten in heats but came back each time to take the race. This year he won his two starts handily.

Good Time Park's track was slow today from yesterday's rain but, given continued sunshine, it will be fast for the big test, which will be decided on a two out of three basis. If different horses split the first three miles the heat winners will come back for the deciding brush.

$27,608 to Winner

With the purse topping all others since The Marchioness 13 years ago won the major share of $53,339, the winner will take down $27,608.33. Titan already has earned around $32,000, including $25,000 as a 2 year old.

Titan received none of the best of it in the draw for post positions. He drew No. 12, meaning he'll start in the second flight, and it will take some smart driving on the part of Pownall to get the fleet colt thru the large field and in a position where he can find racing room.

Favored in the draw was W. N. Reynold's Reyland, one of the most consistent of the money horses in other races this season. The Winston-Salem, N. C., son of Scotland will be on the pole.

Ensign Hanover, son of Billy Direct, world champion pacer, today won the Geers stake for 2 year old pacers in straight heats as the opening program of a three day Grand Circuit meeting was curtailed by a wet track. The colt is owned by Mrs. James B. Johnson Jr. of Rochester, Mich., and was driven by Sep Palin of Indianapolis.

MILITARY RITES MARK BURIAL OF SOUTHWORTH

Columbus, O., Aug. 7 (AP)—Taps sounded as Maj. Billy Brooks Southworth, professional baseball player and war hero killed in a plane crash in Flushing bay, New York, Feb. 15, was buried following military funeral services here today.

Capt. U. L. Gibson, chaplain at Lockbourne army air base, officiated. Six flyers stationed at Lockbourne, all 8th A. A. F. veterans, were pallbearers. Maj. Southworth piloted an 8th A. A. F. Flying Fortress in 25 missions over German held Europe.

Maj. Southworth's body, recovered last Friday from Long Island sound, was accompanied here by his father, Billy Southworth, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Maj. Charles E. Murray of Mitchel field, military escort.

PARK, TEXAS BACK, TO MAKE 2D APPEARANCE

Penn State's Palazzi Bolsters Centers

BY WILFRID SMITH

Ralph Park, University of Texas half back, and Louis Palazzi, Penn State center, head today's group of College All-Stars who will join the squad at Northwestern university Sunday to prepare for the game with the Green Bay Packers in Soldiers' field Aug. 30.

Ralph Park

The other newcomers are Ralph Foster and J. C. Colhouer, linemen from Oklahoma A. & M.; Albert Cavigga, Louisiana State guard, and Paul Yates, Texas A. & M., full back.

Palazzi was captain of the 1942 Penn State eleven which defeated the University of Pennsylvania, 13 to 7. He was hailed as one of the best centers in the east. Palazzi is 24 years old, weighs 195 pounds, and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. He played two years at Penn State before entering the army Sept. 7, 1943, and received a bachelor of science degree in industrial education before assignment to the army air forces. He now is stationed at Merced, Cal. Palazzi's home is in Dunmore, Pa.

It's an Encore for Park

Park, a member of the 1944 All-Star squad, is particularly effective as an open field runner. He also is a kicker and forward passer. His home is in Austin, Tex., site of the state university, and he played high school football three years before entering the university. Park is 24, weighs 185, and is 5 feet 10 inches tall. He is employed as assistant manager of a jewelry firm. He has been honorably discharged from the marine corps.

In 1943 Park was the leading scorer in the Southwest conference. When Texas A. & M. was defeated by Texas his mates gave Ralph the football with which the game was played.

Yates played full back for Texas A. & M. last fall and was called to the army Feb. 12, 1945, before he had opportunity to engage in basketball and track, other sports in which he excels. Yates weighs 200 and is 6 feet tall. He will be 19 the week before the game with the Packers.

Yates' home is in Fort Worth, Tex., where he attended Riverside High school and his favorite athlete is Sammy Baugh, a graduate of Texas Christian university in Fort Worth.

Football—Navy—More Football!

Foster played tackle for four years at Oklahoma A. & M., but not continuously as he was an ensign in the navy and a gunnery officer for 18 months before receiving a medical discharge. Foster, 28, weighs 230, and was graduated with a bach-

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

The $15,000 added Sheridan handicap, named for Gen. Phil Sheridan and first run at the old Washington Park in 1884, will bring together today one of the finest bands of sprinters the historic event ever has attracted. The seven furlong affair, sixth race on Washington Park's attractive mid-week program, has drawn 18 overnight entries.

Chief among the contenders are Durzna, Three Dots, Signator, Ariel Lad, Armed, Sirius, Burgoo Maid, Harriet Sue, and Occupy, all capable of sustaining a blistering pace.

Durazna, owned by Brownell Combs, and Three Dots, J. H. Rouse's holder of the six furlong track record, hold victories in the two sprinting stakes ran during the Arlington Park section of the coordinated meeting—Durazna took the Clang and Three Dots the Myrtlewood.

Armed Gets Break in Weights

Three Dots, fastest sprinter on the grounds last season when he won six races, took his time about reaching top form this season, but in the last couple of weeks he has attained it. In the Myrtlewood on July 28, he got up in his closing strides to beat Burgoo Maid a half a length in 1:10 4-5. He carried 120 pounds on that occasion, but today he will pack top weight of 126.

Since her victory in the Clang, Durazna ran third to War Date and Night Shadow in the Modesty handicap, then was far out of the running in the Myrtlewood.

Armed, a 4 year old gelding, which has scored four straight victories for the Calumet farm, must be considered a big factor in the Sheridan. He sharpened up Sunday with a five furlong workout of :59 3-5 in the course of which he went the half in :46 2-5. The weights will break nicely for him too—110 pounds.

Mrs. Ada L. Rice, whose Sirde has been among the prominent contenders in several recent stakes, will be represented today by Ariel Lad, a sharp sprinter in 1944, and just reaching his form now.

$68,685 Bet on Daily Double

Leon Tikulski's Bolus, which holds a victory over Three Dots this year, will come in light weighted at 108 pounds. Nick Burger's Traffic Court, winner of the 1944 Beverly handicap, also will be dangerous.

Yesterday's low temperature and threatening skies held the crowd down to about 12,000, one of the smallest turnouts of the meeting, but well filled races brought a lot of action. The daily double pool alone totaled $68,685 and was worth $65.20 to those who selected Vitamin Dee and Sales Talk, winner of the first two races. Vitamin Dee, ridden by Doug Dodson, paid $4.80, while Georgie South brought in Sales Talk at $22.20.

The day's feature race, the $3,000 Kingston purse at six furlongs, went to Herbert M. Woolf's Adulator, which scored by a length over Ben Endovina's Ruditaurus. Billy Nichols laid off the pace set by Zacapet and Adulator withstood Ruditaurus' stretch challenge to score handily. The Brolite farm's Full Cry finished third in the seven horse field. The winner paid $5.80.

The day's mutuel handle was $1,040,266.

TICKETS ON SALE FOR FIREMEN'S BENEFIT GAME

Tickets went on sale yesterday at Chicago fire stations for the intercity baseball game in which Chicago firemen will oppose Milwaukee firemen Wednesday, Aug. 29, at Wrigley field. Proceeds will go to the Chicago Fire Department Mutual Aid and Benefit fund.

Michael H. Corrigan, fire chief, said no one but uniformed firemen is authorized to sell tickets for the game.

"A benefit ball game is held every two years for the fund, the reserve of which is shrinking dangerously this year because of the constantly decreasing returns from the type of investment allowed it under Illinois laws," said Corrigan.

ODT HEARS PRO FOOTBALL PLAN FOR TRAVEL CUT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP)—Professional football laid its travel reduction plans before the office of defense transportation today, saying that approximately 33 per cent of its normal mileage could thereby be saved.

Elmer Layden, commissioner, conferred with ODT Director J. Monroe Johnson a second time in recent weeks. No announcement was made, and Johnson and Layden will meet again tomorrow.

The league's 13 nonchampionship games are involved, and the voluntary reduction outlined by Layden calls for stop overs whenever a team is on the road for two or more consecutive Sundays.

Turn to Water Travel

Further rail travel savings would be effected by water travel between such points as Detroit and Buffalo, and Detroit and Cleveland as well as by limiting squads to 28 men.

Cancellation of nonchampionship games would represent a loss of "about half a million dollars" and make it difficult for the league to operate financially, was one argument put up to the ODT by Layden.

It further was said that the league's nonchampionship games fall into the same category as nonconference games played by college teams.

Eliminate Return Home Trips

The stop-over plan would eliminate return-home trips by New York for games in Buffalo and Cleveland, by Washington when going to Cleveland, Chicago and Buffalo, and by the Champion Green Bay Packers for contests in Philadelphia and Washington.

THE KING'S KISS SEALS DIVORCE FROM HIS QUEEN

Mrs. Frieda Bey Krakow, 31, of 1253 S. Karlov av. yesterday won a divorce before Judge Charles A. Williams in Superior court from her husband, Harry, 34, of 4943 Sheridan rd., who once contended for the heavyweight boxing crown under the name of King Levinsky.

Mrs. Krakow charged her husband with cruelty. She said he was often argumentative and on a number of occasions struck her. "Were you the only person he ever licked?" queried Judge Williams. Mrs. Krakow said she didn't think so.

Levinsky, who termed himself a "tie salesman de luxe," waited anxiously in the corridor during the hearing. When his freshly divorced wife emerged he planted a resounding kiss on her lips. "Come on now, take me home," she told him, and they walked away together.

Under an out-of-court settlement, Mrs. Krakow will receive $15,000 of the couple's $27,000 joint bank account. She waived alimony but will receive $15 weekly support for their daughter, Harlene, 12 weeks old.

The Canadians will meet a picked team of Chicago stars on Sept. 2 in Sparta stadium, and repeat the performance on Sept. 3 against another all-star aggregation in Winnemac park.

LAW IN ILLINOIS NO LONGER ASKS TIP ESTIMATES

Maritime Workers to Get Jobless Compensation

Illinois employers no longer are required to estimate the amount of tips customarily received by employes or to count these payments as wages subject to the Illinois unemployment compensation act, the division of placement and unemployment compensation said yesterday. An amendment lifting the requirement was passed by the legislature.

Employers need count as wages only the amount reported to them by their workers. The employers are required to notify each worker of his right to report such gratuities.

Maritime Workers Included

Other amendments brought maritime workers on American vessels under the act, but no benefits will become payable under this amendment until a new benefit year starts next April 1.

The subsection providing that an employer's liability for contributions shall be limited to the first $3,000 the individual employer pays the individual worker for services performed in each calendar year has been changed. Now, if a company reorganizes or changes ownership, the successor organization receives credit for the contributions made toward unemployment compensation by the original company for that year. However if a worker changes jobs from one company to another, each employer is liable up to $3,000.

Broadens State's Jurisdiction

Another amendment provides specifically that nonresident employing units having one or more individuals performing services in Illinois are under Illinois jurisdiction.

It is unlawful to pay contributions on wages for services not rendered if the purpose of such payment is to reduce the amount of contributions due or to become due, or to affect the benefit rights of any individual. Further, fines for willful violation of any provision of the act or regulation have been changed, and now range from $5 to $200.

The minimum weekly benefit for total unemployment occurring on or after April 1, 1946, has been changed from $7 to $10. The duration of benefits and the maximum amount has been changed so that the yearly benefit range is $125 to $520 instead of $110 to $360. The claimant is disqualified after 26 full weeks of benefits.

PACIFIC COAST UTILITY

Please give me a report on Pacific Gas and Electric company.—O. J.

Pacific Gas and Electric, one of the country's largest utility systems, serves an extensive area of northern and central California, including the San Francisco bay industrial region. About 71 per cent of gross revenues are derived from electricity and most of the remainder from distribution of purchased natural gas.

The federal Shasta dam may offer competition after the company's power purchase contract expires at the end of 1947 or two years after the end of the war, whichever is later. After peace returns, sales of low rate industrial power probably will decline, but increased residential and commercial sales may provide offsets so far as the effect on net profit is concerned.

During the last five years electricity sales to the public increased 71.3 per cent and gas sales 79.3 per cent, but gross revenues, because of lower average service rates, increased only 41.6 per cent. Earnings per share on the 6,261,357 common shares were: 1944, $2.18; 1943, $2.23; 1942, $2.21; 1941, $2.31; 1940, $2.68. Bond refundings in 1944 and 1945 will cut charges more than $1,800,000. Common dividends, paid each year subsequent to 1918, have been at the yearly rate of $2 from 1937 on. Funded debt totals $293,078,500 and first preferred stocks, $144,620,625.

GRAIN FUTURES PRICES DECLINE; SELLING ACTIVE

Grain futures prices were lower yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Hedging sales and the possibility of an early ending of the war with Japan, along with weakness in securities, were factors in the decline.

Short covering caused a rally from the low prices with wheat closing off ⅝ to 1 cent a bushel; rye, ⅝ to ⅞; corn, ¼ to ⅝, with May at a new seasonal low; oats, ⅝ to 1⅝, and barley, unchanged to ¾ cent lower.

Meat Production Rises 2 Million Pounds in Week

Meat production in federally inspected plants last week was estimated by the war meat board yesterday at 267 million pounds, compared with 265 million in the preceding week and 308 million a year ago. Pork, lamb, and mutton output decreased below the preceding week, but the drop was more than offset by increased marketings and slaughter of cattle and calves.

PRICE OF LAMBS RALLIES DESPITE RISE IN RECEIPTS

Lively competition for volume in the lamb packing trade yesterday sent most prices up 15 to 35 cents, with the top 50 cents higher at $14.85 per hundred pounds. Improved quality and the two day absence of direct shipments to packers stimulated buying in the open market at the Chicago stockyards despite the largest Tuesday receipts in nine weeks, 5,000 head.

The recovery came after a $1 drop Monday on the subsidy shift from packers to producers in the wake of a like "adjustment" of prices the preceding 10 days.

Lighter Stock Bring Less

Many lambs from the western ranges weighed more than 90 pounds, making them eligible for the $2.15 peak federal subsidy in addition to the market price. Consequently, some of the best loads will yield the producer a total of $17.

However, some lambs of less than 90 pounds, whose equivalents brought $16.40 in the open market just prior to announcement of the subsidy change, actually brought farmers a slightly smaller return. Lighter lambs are eligible to a $1.50 subsidy and other sheep $1.

Receipts Large, Prices Weak

Country demand held replacement costs firm, with best feeding lambs again bringing $15, the highest August level in 20 years.

The largest Tuesday cattle receipts in four weeks, 7,000 head, plus a slight exceeding of compliance price ranges on which their subsidy payments are based by some large Chicago packers, resulted in a dull trade at weak to 25 cents lower prices for most offerings. Hogs held at ceiling prices on exceptionally small receipts.

REQUIRE SPEED IN SETTLEMENT OF CONTRACTS

Key to Conversion Held by U. S.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

If Japan is defeated within the next few months, new terminations of war contracts totaling roughly 30 billion dollars will be added to a 14 billion dollar backlog awaiting settlement, Robert H. Hinckley, director of the office of contract settlement [OCS], said in his quarterly report.

This would require a settlement rate of 4 billion dollars monthly to liquidate contracts promptly and clear claims, factors rated as of first importance in enabling industry to reconvert expeditiously to civilian production.

Should V-J day not come for a year, it is expected that a settlement rate of 3 billions a month would be required. Only about 20 billions would be added to the backlog which then might be as low as 8 billion dollars.

Must Increase Rate

The V-E day load will require that the rate of contract settlements be raised from 1½ billions in the second quarter of this year to between 2 and 2½ billions a month. Almost 16 billions in canceled war commitments were settled during the year ended June 30.

"Speedy settlement has in large measure been attained," said Hinckley. "On June 30, fewer than 1,300 of almost 15,000 terminated fixed-price contracts pending settlement had been pending over six months. Adequate interim finance is available to war contractors."

He said appeal procedures had been established for adjudicating disputes between contractors and contracting agencies of the government, and, with the consent of the parties, between prime and subcontractors. Few appeals have been taken from actions of contracting agencies.

Get Action Within 60 Days

Most plants were reported being cleared promptly. Hinckley said requests for clearance were getting action within 60 days, with few exceptions, and measures were under way to clear plants in an even shorter time. In June only 194 of 4,753 clearances completed by the war department required more than 60 days; for the navy, 484 of 1,303, and for the maritime commission, 6 of 13.

Failure to determine early whether to scrap an item of inventory has delayed plant clearance in the past. However, with an increase from 23 to almost 1,000 scrap consultants provided by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the work is expected to accelerate.

Removal of government owned equipment from privately owned plants probably will account for the major share of the plant clearance work, it was said.

May Burden Local Units

Of about 5 billions worth of such plant equipment, nearly all will have to be sold to contractors in possession or removed from the plants when no longer needed for war production.

Hinckley said possible large cancellations in certain industrial areas may burden local facilities for providing interim financing to carry manufacturers thru the settlement period.

In surveys under way to determine which contractors may need termination loans, it has been learned that 90 per cent of those with contracts ended either have ample interim financing available or will have no sizable claims to finance.

OCS regulations provide authority for contractors to settle all claims of subcontractors of less than $1,000 where the subcontractor retains or disposes of all inventory. In addition, selected contractors have authority to settle claims of $10,000 or less. About 90 per cent of all subcontractors' claims are below $10,000 and about 60 per cent less than $1,000. Hinckley said failure of contractors to make full use of their authority may delay settlements.

ROAD'S SERVICE MEN TO VOTE IN LABOR ELECTION

Pennsylvania railroad workers in military service will have a vote with other Pennsylvania shop workers in deciding whether they wish to be represented by the CIO or the Brotherhood of Railroad Shop Crafts, an independent union, the national [railroad] mediation board disclosed yesterday. It approved requests from both unions that 15,000 service men be permitted to cast their ballots by mail. Voting will continue from Aug. 20 to Sept. 26, but the service will have until Oct. 4 to return men ballots. Approximately 1,400 Pennsylvania road workers in Chicago will participate.

[This is the 23d article in a series outlining opportunities for returning war veterans.]

BY ANTHONY WIRRY

A program to train 10,000 returning veterans as monument craftsmen was announced recently by the Monument Builders of America, a country-wide industry organization located in Chicago.

The program provides for three years of classroom and shop training, including a 90 day probationary period. State vocational education departments are cooperating, and trainees are eligible for educational benefits under the GI bill of rights.

The classroom education includes 600 hours of instruction in such subjects as mathematics applicable to the trade, free hand drawing, architectural drawing, designing, and lettering. It amounts to about 10 per cent of the training period.

Major Study in Shops.

The other 90 per cent is spent in the shops of a dealer where the veteran is taught rough shaping, polishing, finishing, lettering, and carving of stone. He also will be taught to apply the proper decorative symbols and choose designs appropriate to various locations.

When the training is finished, the veteran will have mastered standard monument procedures and will be accepted as a finished monument maker by members of the organization in any part of the country.

The veteran may choose the place in which he takes his training. Since monument builders are located in every county seat of the country as well as large cities, the ex-serviceman can learn the trade at home or in a nearby community.

Pay from U. S., Teacher.

While he is in training he will receive $50 a month, if single, and $75 if married, from the federal government under the GI bill. He also will receive wages from the monument builder to whom he is apprenticed. At the start this will be approximately 50 per cent of the wages of a journeyman monument maker, but will increase progressively until it is 90 per cent. In Chicago a journeyman earns $1.37 to $1.75 an hour.

Veterans interested were advised to apply to a state vocational education office, the veterans administration, or a monument builder. Already begun in Wisconsin, Ohio, and Michigan, the program soon will start in all other states.

STRIKERS TOTAL ABOUT SAME THO SIX MORE START

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

The number of idle workers thruout the country remained virtually static at 64,000 yesterday with more than two-thirds of the idle in the metal industry.

Six new strikes were reported, but back to work movements settled old disputes at the McQuay-Norris and Monsanto chemical company plants in the St. Louis area.

New strikes included about 1,000 employes of the Republic Steel corporation in Cleveland. Neither company nor CIO union officials could give a reason for the strike.

Others included 300 at the Air-Way Electric Appliance corporation, Toledo, O., over piece work rates; 1,200 Franklin county, Ill., miners, over staggered lunch periods; 125 employes of the Georgia-Florida railway, Augusta, Ga., wage increases; 350 National Supply company, Springfield, O., employes, over the discharge of a worker, and 525 in 10 Atlanta, Ga., foundries, wage rates of 125 molders.

Prepare Collaborators' Blacklist in Philippines

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 7 (AP)—The United States treasury department's Philippine office of foreign funds control is preparing a blacklist of persons and businesses which collaborated with the enemy during Japanese occupation. Pending a complete investigation, a "watch list" of certain blocked nationals was issued to Philippine banks to prevent individuals who may be placed on the blacklist from anticipating restrictions and taking evasive action. The department has refused to issue import licenses to individuals on the watch list.

London, U. S. Markets Take Diverse Paths

Opposite stock price trends in London and in New York yesterday indicated a difference in attitudes regarding the prospect that the atomic bomb may hasten the end of the war with Japan.

London stock prices advanced all along the line after a week of declines attributed generally to the election results. London commentators interpreted the recovery tendency in that market to a belief that it already had discounted economic dislocations which would result from an early end to the war.

Prices of stocks listed on the American exchange, in contrast, registered broad declines yesterday, indicating at least a momentary market belief that an early peace might adversely affect corporate prospects because of the lag in government reconversion preparations. Stocks of such big war producers as General Motors, United States Steel, and Bethlehem Steel were lower whereas London industrials advanced.

Uranium Influence Marked

An interesting result of the atomic bomb announcement took place in Toronto, Ont., where shares of Canadian companies having a possible connection with uranium production, however remote, advanced. Most of these shares were in the lower price group.

The New York stock market action was much different than on Monday when announcement of the bomb failed to create a ripple in the market. Trading also broadened substantially yesterday.

Some brokerage house officials said they believed much of the decline in stock prices in recent weeks may be attributed to a discounting of the effects of an early end to the war.

Holding to this view, Arthur M. Betts of Betts, Morland & Co. said capital gains tax provisions require buyers to be more cautious than in the past in considering the outlook.

Considering More Careful

"A buyer naturally does not want to buy a stock that in six months will be selling below the price he pays for it," said Betts. "He must consider all the unfavorable possibilities. I believe buyers already have considered the effect that victory would have on their stocks. The necessity for holding stocks six months to take advantage of the [more lenient] capital gains provision of the income tax has resulted in giving us a better market barometer than ever before."

Under the capital gains provision only 50 per cent of the profit on sale of stocks held longer than six months is reported as taxable income whereas the entire profit on stocks held less than six months must be included in income.

TRIAL REMOVAL OF PRICE CURBS HELD PROBABLE

Price control may be suspended when production and demand are in sufficient balance to remove the danger of a price increase, an OPA official yesterday told a Chicago Association of Commerce war problems school in the Palmer House.

Suspensions of control would be practical only for a tentative period so the effects could be carefully watched, said Earl H. Morse, chief of the OPA electrical generators and power equipment section, machine price branch. Controls would be replaced at the first sign of inflationary increases, he explained.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 7 (AP)—Negotiations for sale of the British owned Mexicano railroad to the Mexican government were reported today, with the company asking 45 million pesos [9 million dollars], and Mexico offering 40 million [8 million dollars]. The railroad operates between Mexico City and Vera Cruz.

STOCK TRADERS FINALLY REACT TO BOMB NEWS

Prices Off Steeply; Volume Swells

New York, Aug. 7 (AP)—After appraising the atomic bomb attack on Japan for almost 24 hours, Wall st. decided today that the amazing new development may mean a quicker than expected peace and resultant selling drove prices of many stock market leaders down 2 points and more.

Altho there had been some discounting of an early Japanese defeat, the consensus today was that the new weapon heralded a much quicker enemy collapse with its attendant problems of reconversion, cutbacks, unemployment, and other post-war considerations.

Rails, Steels, Aircrafts Drop

The biggest declines appeared in the heavy war rated rails, utilities, steels, aircrafts, and metals. A few favorites managed to gain.

Volume rose to 980,000 shares from 490,000 Monday, which was the lowest turnover for almost a year. Of 906 issues traded, 693 declined, 94 advanced, and 119 were unchanged.

RAIL BONDS SELL OFF

New York, Aug. 7 (AP)—Railroad bonds were sold heavily in today's market and declines of major fractions to 2 points or more were plentiful at the close. Other departments had a preponderance of declines. Sales activity broadened to $5,230,000 from $3,350,000 Monday.

CHICAGO PRICES LOWER

Prices declined and turnover increased to 28,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Volume leaders losing fractions included Chicago corporation common, Utah Radio, Hupp Motor Car, and Admiral. New York Central fell 1¼.

POULTRY SENT TO MARKET IN LARGE VOLUME

Poultry shipments to Chicago yesterday were more than twice as large as a week ago as sellers took advantage of high prices remaining in effect until Monday, when a new department of agriculture order will channel 50 per cent of midwestern poultry into army processing plants, the department said yesterday. Arrival of 26 trucks of poultry, among the largest receipts of the year, compared with 10 trucks and one car a week earlier.

An even heavier volume was predicted for the end of the week. Beginning next week, poultry cannot be shipped more than 100 miles from the grower's farm without a special certificate permitting the grower to sell to a licensed processing plant. Chicago poultry dealers predicted farmers will sell most of their stock this week to obtain higher prices than the army will pay for chicken.

Sales of Butler Brothers, Walgreen Climb in July

Walgreen company yesterday reported sales in July rose 2 per cent above volume a year earlier to $10,061,483. Butler Brothers had consolidated July sales of $9,161,319, up 13.08 per cent.

WHAT'S GREATER?

Every time we write one of these pieces about the Times-Herald, we say to ourselves that, this time, we're really going to develop a great argument for the national advertiser in the City of Washington.

But it's awfully hard to think up an argument that is greater than the greatest circulation in town!

$100,000 Six Month Budget Adopted by Transit Authority

A budget of $100,100 for the period from June 28 to Dec. 31 this year was adopted yesterday by the governing board of the Chicago Metropolitan Transit authority, which also adopted the calendar year as its fiscal year. It is proposed the authority buy and operate the surface and elevated lines under public ownership.

The largest item of the budget was $70,000 for salaries [six members draw pay at the rate of $15,000 a year and the chairman, Philip Harrington, at $25,000 a year]. Next largest was $15,000 for legal services. Listed as assets by the board were gifts of $100,000 each from the city of Chicago and the state of Illinois.

Counsel Outlines Obstacles

Before the board can borrow the 87 million dollars needed to make the proposed purchase of the traction lines several obstacles must be overcome. These were outlined briefly by Werner W. Schroeder, counsel.

He said the next important step taken will be an advisory report to federal District court next Monday by the securities and exchange commission informing Judge Igoe as to the fairness of the price offered. The court, in charge of the properties in bankruptcy, must certify as to fairness. This report will be argued next Wednesday, with indications security holders may offer objections.

Supreme Court will Rule

The act creating the authority will be presented to the Illinois Supreme court at its September term for a ruling on its validity. Judge Julius H. Miner of the Circuit court already has upheld the law.

Schroeder, who is being assisted by William H. Sexton, city traction attorney, said it was likely the Supreme court would hand down its decision in November.

Election of Henry F. Dever as president of the Brown Instrument company, subsidiary of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company, was announced yesterday by Harold W. Sweatt, president of the parent company. Dever formerly was associated with the Underwriters Laboratories in Chicago and is a graduate of Northwestern university.

Barnes, Chicago district manager, said yesterday. The plan becomes effective Friday.

UNION SECURITY DENIED BECAUSE OF FOUR STRIKES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP)—The war labor board today denied a maintenance of membership clause to a union representing employes of the Bower Roller Bearing company, Detroit, Mich.

Its decision, affirming an order of the 11th regional WLB in Detroit, was taken because of four strikes at the plant, the board said. Labor members dissented. The plant has 1,600 employes, represented by the United Automobile Workers [CIO].

The board specified that the action applies to the 1944 contract and is without prejudice to consideration of the maintenance issue pending before the regional board in the 1945 contract.

SOCONY PROFIT IN SIX MONTHS OFF 10 MILLION

Pure Oil's Earnings Little Changed

Socony-Vacuum Oil company yesterday estimated consolidated net earnings in the first half of 1945 at 21 million dollars, or 67 cents a share, compared with 31½ million, or $1.01 a share, in the 1944 period. Domestic sales increased approximately 6 per cent above a year ago.

The company said profits in both periods were exclusive of any equity in earnings of Standard-Vacuum Oil company, in which Socony has a 50 per cent interest. Standard-Vacuum operated in the far east and its business has been disrupted by the Pacific war, officials explained.

Consolidated net earnings of Pure Oil company in the first half of this year were approximately $6,600,000, or $1.17 a share, against 6½ million dollars, or $1.14 a share, a year ago.

Liquid Carbonic Earns More

In the nine months ended June 30 net sales amounted to $15,375,179, compared with $16,329,997 a year ago. Nine month profit was $900,219, or $1.09 a share, compared with $987,431, or $1.21 a share.

P. F. Lavedan, president, reported the recent acquisition of all assets of Carbo-Ice Ontario, Ltd., of Toronto, Canada, for an undisclosed amount of cash. He also said the company would start construction of new factory buildings in Morrison, Ill., and Chicago as soon as war production board authorization is received.

E. L. Shea, president of North American company, in reporting decreased 12 month profits, said the corporation has been placing orders for generating equipment to meet expected increased electricity demand after the war.

Consolidated net income was $18,748,186, or $1.74 a share, in the 12 months ended June 30, compared with $19,674,002, or $1.85 a share, a year earlier.

Republic Aviation corporation reported net earnings of $1,550,000, or $1.57 a share, in the six months ended June 30, compared with $1,808,176, or $1.84 a share, a year ago.

In the first six months Reo Motors reported net profit, subject to audit and year-end adjustments, was $1,353,116, or $2.79 a share, compared with $958,443, or $2.06 a share.

REPORT UNRRA TO ASK FOR 1½ BILLION MORE

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP)—The United nations relief and rehabilitation administration, beset by a financial crisis, will demand increased contributions of funds and supplies from nations able to pay, it was made clear to today's opening session of the organizations 3d international convention.

Facing a tough winter's work in ravaged Europe and the far east, the UNRRA program thru 1946 will require new contributions from the participating nations of between $1,500,000,000 and $2,300,000,000, a responsible American source said. Details of the financial program will be disclosed tomorrow when Director Gen. Herbert H. Lehman presents his report.

UNRRA's financial crisis has snowballed as a result of ever increasing demands that far exceed original expectations. China alone has requested aid equivalent to nine million dollars, Russia seven million dollars and a big request is likely to come from Poland.

UNRRA representatives say much of the difficulty is due to the fact that the original program was laid out before the liberation of the countries now in need of most aid, and no accurate measure of the devastation in those areas was possible.

Lehman in a brief opening address described the war's chaos in Europe as he saw it in a recent field inspection tour, and indicated that further pleas would be made for belt tightening—especially in America—to meet the needs.

UNRRA's biggest prospective slice of cash is coming from the United States, which has pledged $1,350,000,000, or roughly 72 per cent of UNRRA's total appropriation, but so far has made available only $800,000,000. Appropriation of the remaining $550,000,000 must wait until the end of the congressional recess.

The prospect was grimly put today by Britain's new foreign secretary, Ernest Bevin, when he warned the 44 nation parley that liberated Europe must be aided in the next 12 months or be plagued with "misery, disease, anarchy, and bloodshed."

"UNRRA cannot continue without the continued support of all the united nations," Bevin said bluntly. "Some great powers already have been impoverished by the war and demands of the war."

[The Yugoslav news agency reported that a cargo of 1,000 tons of barley, 835 tons of footwear and clothing, and many horses was lost when the UNRRA relief ship William Palmer sank within 30 minutes of striking a mine in Trieste harbor, a Reuters dispatch from London said. The crew of 17 and a number of horses were reported saved.]

ADM. M'INTIRE TO WRITE STORY OF F. D. R. HEALTH

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7—Vice Adm. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician to the late President Roosevelt, who was criticized on the floor of congress for failure to advise the American people of his chief's illness, has undertaken his own defense in a series of magazine articles, it was learned today.

Vice Adm. M'Intire

The burden of the articles, which are scheduled to appear in a magazine of national circulation, is that Franklin D. Roosevelt was in excellent health until his death, which came as a surprise to the nation and particularly to his personal physician, whom he had elevated in 12 years from the rank of commander to flag rank as a vice admiral.

It was reported that Adm. McIntire will state that Roosevelt never suffered a stroke until the cerebral hemorrhage which ended his life last April 12 and that the late President was in excellent health for a person of his years at the time of his death.

Called Other Doctors

The admiral was at his desk in Washington when the late President died. Within two hours of the death of the man who was his personal patient as well as his public charge as surgeon general of the navy, McIntire told reporters that he found it difficult to explain the suddenness of the death of his chief.

As surgeon general of the navy McIntire had commissioned a New York heart specialist a commander in the navy in 1942 to stand by the late President's bedside. From time to time McIntire released public statements in which he declared the chief executive's health was as good as could be expected.

In the fourth term election campaign the admiral said the President was fit to undertake the campaign and that there was every indication the President could live out his fourth term. Mr. Roosevelt died 11 weeks after he took his fourth term oath.

Illness was Reported

During the former President's last year, a number of physicians were called into consultation on his condition. It was understood that, by strict observation of medical ethics, these are barred from discussing his condition.

One of these physicians reported privately months before Roosevelt's death that the late President could not possibly live until July 1. Another, who saw the former chief executive a few weeks before his death said Mr. Roosevelt was a dying man.

Persons who saw the chief executive regularly were amazed by his deterioriation within the last year. Several of these expressed their amazement publicly, which observations constituted the first public notice of Roosevelt's condition.

At one of the late President's last press conferences many newspaper men agreed, in the words of one, that "he was a dead leaf at the end of a limb waiting for the wind to blow him away."

BERLIN, Aug. 7 (AP)—Mail delivery has been resumed in Berlin, and the Russian occupied zones of Germany. Letters must be open and written in German, Russian, English or French. A new set of stamps in four denominations has been substituted for the issue with Hitler's portrait.

LEGION LEADER DENOUNCES BAN ON CONVENTION

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7 [Special]—Refusal of the office of defense transportation to permit the American Legion to have 75 delegates in attendance at its national convention, to be held here Sept. 24 and 25, was denounced here today by Wayne M. Armstrong, Indiana representative on the Legion's executive committee.

The committee voted last week to hold the convention in accordance with ODT regulations which limit out-of-town attendance at national gatherings to not more than 50 persons.

Armstrong said he is inquiring into reports that the ODT has authorized from 60 to 70 national conventions to have an attendance larger than the limit of 50. He has been informed, he said, in an interview, that one such gathering was an anti-war group.

Cites Communist Convention

He expressed interest also in reports that the American Communist party was able to have 90 delegates at its special convention in New York last week.

[In New York it was said 37 of the Communist delegates were from New York and that at least 10 came from as far away as California. Altho the Communists submitted to the ODT a list of 50 out of town delegates, an undetermined number of others came as "special guests," it was said.]

"If any one organization in the nation should receive priority for a convention, it should be the American Legion," Armstrong said.

FEDERAL JURY INDICTS DOCTOR AS DRUG SELLER

An indictment charging Dr. Roy Herndon Cox, 68, a physician with an office at 1628 Belmont av., with unlawful sale of narcotics was returned by the federal grand jury yesterday before Judge Elwyn R. Shaw in federal District court. Assistant United States Atty. Jack Arnold Welfeld said Dr. Cox sold prescriptions for 280 tablets of an opium derivative to a government informer for $5 a prescription. Additional prescriptions for more than 56,000 tablets of morphine sulphate were found in the physician's office, and all were written for notorious drug addicts, Welfeld said.
